TROUBLE WITH TURKEY NEXT

Assault on the American Consul at Smyrna May Start Something.

GOT MIXED UP IN A STRIKE RIOT

A Ship Flying Stars and Stripes Without Right Started It.

Constantinople, Jan. 28.—J. Ridgely Carter, who has been placed at the head of the American embassy with the rank of minister plenipotentiary pending the appointment of a successor to Ambassador Strauss, lodged a protest with the porte today against the assault and indignities to which the American consular representatives at Beirut and Alexandretta were recently subjected.

It appears that a sergeant instigated a mutiny among fifty Turkish soldiers being transported on the steamer New Jersey. When that vessel reached Alexandretta she was flying the American flag and the American consular agent, John T. Peristiany, went on board to investigate. There he was set upon by the soldiers and driven from the ship. During the attack his hand was cut and his coat was torn off. The local police arrested some of the soldiers, but the captain of the New Jersey refused to surrender the sergeant, the ringleader.

The vessel proceeded subsequently to Smyrna, where there was a second row over the question of whether the soldiers or the sailors of the New Jersey were primarily at fault. When the vessel docked its second mate was arrested.

At this stage of the quarrel the American consul general, Ernest L. Harris, took a hand with the result that he was roundly abused by the warring factions. However, he brought about the arrest of the sergeant. At Salonika a boycott was declared against the New Jersey's owners.

STORY OF THE TROUBLE.

Salonika, Turkey, Jan. 28.—The Salonika boycott committee today declared a boycott against the steamers of the Mail Packet Archipelago line and the boatmen and lightermen attempted to prevent the loading of the company's steamer Olympia. The authorities acted promptly and placed Kerim Agha, the dictator of the boycott organization, under arrest.

The trouble started in a mixup between the crew of the New Jersey and a detachment of Turkish soldiers which the vessel was carrying from Beirut, Syria, to Mersina, Asia Minor.

The New Jersey flew the flag of the United States and so involved the American consul general at Smyrna, Ed Harris, and the American consular agent at Alexandretta, Peristiany, in the row. The owners of the New Jersey and Olympia are described as an American company.

Washington, Jan. 28.—The American embassy at Constantinople has made representations to the Turkish government in regard to the attack on John T. Peristiany, United States consular agent at Alexandretta, during the mutiny yesterday on board the coasting steamer New Jersey. The state department was so advised today by Charge d'Affaires Phillip at Constantinople.

If the New Jersey and Olympia sail under the stars and stripes no warrant for so doing is found in the shipping register. There is no record of a New Jersey in Turkish waters. The Olympia is a little craft of 480 tons gross, owned by Haji Daoud Farkouh (Paquebots poste-archipelago), at Smyrna It is of Turkish register.

MURDERED WOMAN HIS MOTHER.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Jan. 28.—News of the murder of Mrs. Oliver P. Smith, of Cincinnati, caused a burglar shot here last December while trying to rob a store, yesterday to admit his identity in connection with the declaration that Mrs. Smith was his mother. When captured the man gave his name as John Pennimore, claiming Detroit as his home. Now he says his name is Gundy and has a wife and child in Chicago.

BOARD TAKES TIME ON JOB

No Selection Made for Chief of Police and Mayor Keeps Mum.

HAD TALK WITH HEAD OF BOARD

Errington Connected by Rumors With the Place of Chief.

If Mayor Grice or the members of the board of public safety are considering anybody for the office of chief of police they are keeping very quiet about it and outside of a rumor connecting the name of Samuel J. Errington with the place little gossip can be heard from the sources that are usually willing to take upon themselves the burden of fitting out the city with a brand new man for the head of the force.

"We are taking our time and nobody has been presented to the board as a man for the place," said Mayor Grice. He admitted that there are some applicants, but said at the same time there was nobody in the lists that looked like a man fit for the place.

"I want to get the right man and make no mistakes," continued the mayor. "It's hard to get anybody good enough for the place to take it. Men who we would like to have either have places that are paying more than the $125 a month the city pays its chief or they do not want the place."

"Have you offered the place to anybody?"

"No, not yet. All I want is a little time. Mr. Henderson, of the board of safety, has gone out of the city and we don't want to do anything until he gets back."

Held Long Consultation.

The mayor was closeted for more than an hour this morning with City Attorney H. G. Hogan and Joseph C. Hutsell, president of the board of public safety and at the end of this conference the mayor denied in the most strenuous terms that he had either asked for or been tendered any resignations.

"Do you look for any resignations from the board of safety?"

"None as I know of," was the mayor's reply.

The officials engaged in the conference had nothing to say after they had finished their talk and whether it touched upon the appointment or not could not be ascertained. It was evidently a consultation on police matters with only one member of the board of public safety present, as Mr. Johnson had no voice in the matter.

Henderson Would Resign.

"If I thought for a minute," said W. D. Henderson, of the board of public safety today before he left for Chicago to be gone several days, "that George Eisenhut and Ward Hall were made goats at the time that revolver deal was pulled off the mayor would have my resignation before night. "I have tried always to be honest and I'm getting too old to try anything dishonest now. When this thing came up I asked a former member of the police force what had been the usual custom in taking care of revolvers taken off prisoners and he told me that some policeman always got them and added that he had one then that had been obtained in the same way.

"I thought this was the custom and these fellows were doing just what had always been done, so I believed a little punishment would be sufficient, but if I thought for a minute the mayor had anything to do with that deal I'd quit right away.

"When Borgman quit I had no idea it was because he had any objection to the board of public safety. I thought it was all on account of his health which was bad at the time. I'm not the kind of a fellow to quit under fire, but if I have been double-crossed in any way, then it's time for me to give up."

New Story About Linker.

Louis Linker did not tell this story about his watch that he got from Georgia Albright, but it is neighborhood gossip, and if it is true there is no reason he should not have gone before the board of public safety with it and have cleared his skirts.

AMERICAN MINISTER TO CHINA AND HIS PEKIN RESIDENCE.

Fear of the plague has driven most of the foreign population from Pekin, China, but Minister Calhoun is still sticking to his post.

AFTER MAYOR LEWIS SHANK

Insurgent Wells of House Will Ask That He Be Ousted from Seat.

SAYS HE INSULTED THE LEGISLATURE

Thorny Path Ahead for the Chief Magistrate of Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Jan. 28.—Mayor Lew Shank has run afoul of Representative S. B. Wells, the democratic insurgent from Scott and Jennings counties, and if the latter has his way "his honor" will be cited by the legislature to appear before that body and explain what he meant when he, in a newspaper interview, is alleged to have attributed the lid-tilting in the Indianapolis resort to bibulous and sporty statesmen.

Representative Wells today drafted a resolution which he declares he will introduce in the house Monday calling upon the speaker to name a committee to prefer charges against Mayor Shank and to ask the city's executive to show cause why he should not be removed from office.

The Resolution.

The resolution follows:

"Whereas, Mayor Lewis Shank, of Indianapolis, has without cause and with premeditated, malicious intent, in an attempt to justify the failure of his police force to enforce the laws among the resort keepers of Indianapolis, cast unwarranted, malicious, libelous and slanderous reflections upon this body in a published interview in the Indianapolis News of Friday, January 27; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the speaker of the house appoint a committee to prepare charges against Mayor Shank, and further be it

"Resolved, That he be brought before this body, acting as a committee of the whole, to show cause why he should not be removed."

The Cause of It All.

In the interview, to which Representative Wells takes exception, Mayor Shank is reported to have said:

"Do you know what I believe? I believe some of the members of the legislature have been going to those places, and finding liquor not for sale, have told the ktepers to get some liquor and have it on hand when they, the legislators, visit the places again.

"I'll bet those legislators have been telling the resort keepers that it will be all right to sell liquor to members of the legislature."

Recall Bill Has a Chance.

Representative Wells declared today that he had understood Mayor Shank had been greatly worried over the prospect of the passage of the Shively recall bill.

"If the mayor," said Mr. Wells, "has had reason to feel alarm in the past he has even more reason now. A number of legislators have been lukewarm on the recall proposition, but with the appearance of Mayor Shank's interview, the Shively measure stock went up, and if it does not pass both houses by a big margin I will miss my guess."

UPLIFT FOR POOR LO.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Superintendents and farmers in the employ of the United States Indian service are making every effort to put the American Indian on a self-sustaining basis, according to a bulletin made public today by the service. Among the means used by the Indian officials to get the government's wards to farm their allotments are the establishment of experimental farms, the formation of farmers' clubs and the institution of state fairs.

NO RELIEF FOR EDITORS.

Manila, Jan. 28.—The supreme court today denied a writ of error to Theodore Kalaw and Martin Ocampo, formerly manager and editor respectively of the Manila Renacimiento, who were convicted of having criminally libelled American Commissioner Dean C. Worcester, but accepted a bond staying the prison sentences for four months pending an appeal to the United States supreme court.

Sol D. Bayless lodge No. 359, F. and A. M., will have work in the Master Mason's degree Monday evening.

SCOUT THE THEORY OF KIDNAPPING

New York Police Believe the Missing Miss Arnold Will Turn Up.

BROTHER IS COMING

New York, Jan. 28.—Developments today in the search for Miss Dorothy Arnold, the missing heiress, included the receipt of additional letters demanding a ransom for the young woman's return, a reported declaration by Deputy Police Commissioner Flynn that he believed the girl had not been harmed and would return home in a few days and the announcement that Miss Arnold's brother, who has been abroad on a secret mission since her disappearance, was on his way back to New York.

Both the police and the lawyers directing the search scout the theory that Miss Arnold is held for a ransom. John S. Keith, of Mr. Arnold's legal advisers, asserted his belief today that the letters were written by blackmailers. If they were taken seriously, he said, the searchers would face the untenable theory that Miss Arnold was held for ransom by four different persons or more.

Mr. Keith was disinclined also to credit the reputed theory of the police that Miss Arnold would return home shortly. There were no fresh clues in the case nor was there anything upon which to base such a theory, so far as he knew.

The trip of John Arnold, the missing girl's brother, to Europe, which was made soon after Miss Arnold disappeared, had nothing to do with the search, Mr. Keith declared. The young man went abroad in the interets of his father's business, the lawyer said.

A demand for $7,000 ransom for Miss Arnold, and an intimation that Mr. Arnold's home may be blown up, are contained in one of the letters made public by Mr. Keith today.

FIRE CLEARS TWO HOTELS OF GUESTS

Brace of Seventeen Story Hostelries in Chicago Menaced by Flames.

FIRE STARTS AT TOP

Chicago, Jan. 28.—Fire drove hundreds of guests from their rooms in the Majestic and Great Northern hotels, which adjoin at Dearborn and Quincy streets, early this morning. The fire, which started in the kitchen of the grill room on the seventeenth floor of the Majestic, was extinguished with a loss of about $40,000, mostly from water. Both hotels are seventeen stories high and it was feared that firemen would have difficulty in reaching the fires but the water pressure proved adequate and the flames were soon put out.

NO LONGER LOVED; WOULD DIE.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 28.—Declaring she wanted to die because her husband has ceased to love her, Mrs. Frank Moore, who came here from Canada a short time ago, was prevented from taking her own life late last night only through the vigilance of a police guard set to watch her following two futile attempts at suicide.

SEPARATE CHURCH AND STATE.

Lisbon, Jan. 28.—Foreign Minister Machado announced today that the government's decree seperating the church and state would be promulgated within a month. Nevertheless, he added, that the government had expressed regret to the vatican that the pope had no representative in Portugal, where "the faithful are so numerous."

THE WEATHER.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Forecast for Indiana and Illinois: Fair tonight and Sunday; colder tonight in central and south portion.

Ohio: Fair, colder tonight; Sunday fair; moderate variable winds.

Lower Michigan: Fair tonight and Sunday; moderate winds, becoming south.

VOTE TRAFFIC PROBE HALTS

Nothing Doing in the Danville Grand Jury Room and Fizzle Impends.

WHOLE INQUIRY MAY END IN A POP

Judge Kimbrough Admits With Pain That He Expects Nothing.

Danville, Ill., Jan. 28.—The grand jury search for vote traffic in Vermilion county today was at a complete rest. The grand jury will reconvene Monday when a new host of witnesses will appear to tell where the money went which it has been acknowledged was spent in the campaign at the November election, but the general discussion of the search, which has monopolized conversation on the streets all the week, today seemed to have been suspended with the grand jury's work.

Vigil Is Abandoned.

All interested, directly or indirectly, in the outcome of the inquisition today abandoned their watch on the grand jury's deliberations. Much interest is still felt, however, in the announcement by City Attorney Frank W. Jones, whose alleged "confession" of vote buying and his subsequent repudiation of any such statement brought on the crisis, that he wished to go before the grand jurors and tell them anything and everything they desired to ask him. The city attorney explained his non-appearance up to this time by saying he had been ill.

Judge Is Skeptical.

No less an authority than Judge E. R. E. Kimbrough, who started the investigation and was a witness himself, has said he feared no practical results would come from the present search, but that it was still possible something might be turned up by witnesses heard next Monday afternoon and Tuesday morning. If this effort fails, it is intimated, the court will advise the grand jurors to abandon the traffic question at this time and adjourn until the day before the spring election, meeting at that time as a moral agent to secure purity at the polls.

WEDS LONDON JOURNALIST.

London, Jan. 28.—Winifred Hunter, the pianist, and daughter of Mrs. Flora Hunter, of Indianapolis, and William Orten Tewson, a journalist, were married here today. Mr. Tewson was for some time private secretary to the late Cecil Rhodes and subsequently engaged in newspaper work in New York city, Paris and London.

SUICIDAL EFFORT SUCCEEDS.

New York, Jan. 28.—Jefferson D. Levy, of Memphis, Tenn., a member of a dry goods firm of that city, who shot himself in the left breast late yesterday at the hotel in which he was stopping here, died today at the New York hospital, where he was taken after his attempt at suicide. It is not known why he wished to kill himself.

DISABLED STEAMER TOWED IN

Fayal, Azores, Jan. 28.—The British steamer Georgian, from Boston for London, came in here today bringing to port the British steamer British Sun, which she had taken in tow 800 miles to the westward. The British Sun lost her propeller blades and anchor, but her cargo was not damaged. The crippled freighter was bound from London for Philadelphia when she broke down.

SPAIN WANTS TO KNOW.

Madrid, Jan. 28.—La Manana, the ministerial organ, commenting upon the effort to rise the wreck of the battleship Maine, in Havana harbor, recommends that the government ask the United States to forward to Madrid an official report of the investigation.

BLACK HAND BOMB EXPLODES.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—A bomb was exploded today in Giuseppe Macalone's produce store, following receipt of letters signed "The Blackhand" and demanding money. Six families live above the produce store, but all escaped injury.

STATEMAN IN MERRY FROLIC

The Marriage of Bachelor Member of House Provokes Resolution.

COMMANDED TO SAY HOW HE WON OUT

Love Feast of Republicans Made Occasion for Some More Resolving.

Indianapolis, Jan. 28.—In the house of the Indiana legislature late yesterday the men here to make and unmake laws and to map out a course of conduct in civil procedure turned long enough from disheveled desks to notice the plunge of a fellow member into the matrimonial sea.

Representative William A. Hammond, of Peru, took unto himself a bride Thursday evening, but not even his "next friend" knew of the ceremony until it was over. Friday, however, the secret was out, and reached the ears of his colleagues. The report was verified. The bride was Miss Almeda Murphy, also of Peru, and the marriage vows were spoken at Franklin, Ind. Mr. Hammond and Miss Murphy met by prearrangement in Indianapolis and traveled together to Franklin for the ceremony.

Bachelor Brother Weds.

When the news of the marriage reached representatives' hall, Representative C. R. Pleasants, of Poseyville, out of compliment to Representative Hammond, sent the following resolution to the desk:

"Whereas, Our distinguished colleague, W. A. Hammond, a bachelor for more than half a century, has clandestinely departed from the ways, habits and customs pursued by so many of his colleagues who have so long been searching for a way out of the distressing condition they have dropped into; and

"Whereas, Our colleague from Miami county is the only member who is possessed of the knowledge necessary to extricate the balance of the bacheirns of the general assembly from their present condition; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That he inform the house how he did it; and, be it further

"Resolved, This house has several charming stenographers of marriageable age, who were not even consulted, much less considered, in the transaction, and they hereby stamp their feet and serve warning upon any man of this distinguished body who commits such a rash act without first consulting at least one or more of them."

Representative Keegan moved that the resolution be referred to the committee on affairs of the soldiers' and sailors' orphans home.

"I insist, Mr. Speaker," shouted Representative Racey, "that the resolution be referred to the committee on public morals."

"The resolution," said Speaker Veneman, "I think should go to the committee on rights and privileges, and it is so ordered."

Representative and Mrs. Hammond will live in Peru.

With a Political Tinge.

Representative Harry Strickland, of Greenfield, by way of relaxation, and perhaps to call up failing memories, sprang this:

"Whereas, this being the first weekly anniversary of the election of the Hon. John W. Kern by the sixty-seventh generally assembly of the state of Indiana, and

"Whereas, During the progress of the ceremonies incident to that elec-

NOTICE OF A DIVORCE SUIT

That is What Mrs. Schenk Meets as She Comes from Jail.

RELEASED ON HER OWN RECOGNIZANCE

Lone Juror Who Voted for Conviction Boycotted by Tradesfolks.

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 28.—Mrs. Laura Farnsworth Schenk, whose trial on the charge of attempting to poison her wealthy husband, John O. Schenk, resulted in a disagreement of the jury Thursday, was released from jail today on her own recognizance, but before she had left the court room divorce papers were served upon her. She had been held in jail unable to procure bond of $10,000.

Prosecutor Handlan stated in court that he had read in the newspapers that Isaac Heyman, the juror who had voted against the acquittal of Mrs. Schenk, had been boycotted by the trades people of Wheeling and hissed by his neighbors. He asked the court to use his power of contempt and scored the jury for giving out Heyman's name as the dissenting juror. Judge Jordan wanted specific cases and stated that when the grand jury met the first Monday in March the matter would be brought to its attention.

Lady May Be Enjoined.

It was stated in the divorce papers that application would be made February 4 for an injunction to restrain her from communicating with or harassing her husband, or from interfering in any way with her children, Virginia and Robert Schenk, or from entering their house on the island. The amount of alimony will also be argued at that time.

A counter suit for divorce is being prepared by Mrs. Schenk's counsel, and the papers, it is said, will be served early next week.

Where John Lost Out.

Since John O. Schenk neglected to announce that he would not be responsible for the debts contracted by his wife, it is held that he will be called upon to pay the costs of the late trial, about $100,000.

Immediately after the announcement that she was at liberty, Mrs. Schenk, accompanied by her counsel, went to her lower room in the jail, where plans for her immediate future were made. Soon afterward she entered the automobile of Attorney J. J. O'Brien and was driven to the residence of Mrs. Lasch, her island neighbor, who had testified for her during the trial. It is stated that she will make her home there for the present.

MINEWORKERS VERY BUSY.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 28.—The United Mine Workers of America are expected to continue their deliberations on the resolutions before them today. About ninety resolutions are to be acted upon, but as the big questions are out of the way, it is expected that the business of the convention will be pushed through rapidly.

IMMUNITY BATH COMES ON.

Washington, Jan. 28.—The administration immunity bath bill, exempting from prosecution witnesses compelled by the prosecution to testify and disclose the truth at all hazards, has been ordered favorably reported by the house committee on the judiciary.

SCHENK PAIR WILL SEEK DIVORCE.

MR. & MRS. JOHN O. SCHENK

MISSING DAUGHTER OF NEW YORK MILLIONAIRE.

NEW PRINCIPAL AT STATE SCHOOL

Miss Frances Hamilton at Head of Educational Department.

SUCCEEDS C. D. MEAD

Miss Frances Hamilton, of this city, has been appointed principal at the Indiana school for feeble minded youth and is now in charge of the school department at the state institution.

Miss Hamilton, who some years ago was connected with the Fort Wayne city schools as principal of the Hoagland school, succeeds Prof. Cyrus D. Mead, who left the institution during last summer to take up special work at Columbia university, where he is now engaged.

Superintendent Carroll said today that the work is being rushed as rapidly as possible to get the new cottage for adult females at the institution under roof. The new building is located just east of and is connected with the present building for women. It is hoped that the new structure will be ready for occupancy by June 1.

ROBACKER IS AFTER PLACE

Thinks He Could Clean Up if He Were Made the Chief.

IS IN EARNEST ABOUT THE JOB

Believes That a Clothes Cleaner is Just the Needed.

Sam Robacker wants to be chief of police.

Sam's on the level about it, too, because he has made application.

He don't think he will get it. He's modest enough to admit that, but in support of his application he says he's a cleaner and he'll clean things from top to bottom.

He's a cleaner all right because he has been cleaning clothes for Fort Wayne for these many years and most everybody knows him. Up to the time that commercial expansion drove him out of his quarters he operated a cleaning place upon Jefferson street west of Calhoun.

At this time he is ensconced in a hand-painted establishment on West Main street that makes Joseph's coat of many colors look like a selling plater in a Kentucky "darby."

Thought of It Today.

Strange as it may seem Sam didn't realize what a good chief of police he would make until this morning. Maybe that's the reason his application was delayed and maybe it's because he didn't want to seem in undue haste about horning in on Ben Elliott's job.

At any rate Samuel was at the mayor's office early today. He came bare-handed and with no other recommendations than he carried in his head, but he unloaded these on the mayor before he could escape.

The mayor told him that all applications for the place would be taken up by the board of public safety and he went out and came in in a short time with a recommendation signed by Judge Owen N. Heaton and Judge R. R. Dreibelbiss.

Mayor Was Busy.

The mayor was busy at the time and Samuel had to content himself with as much encouragement as he could get from Miss Winifred Spalding, clerk to the board of safety.

"Think I'll get this job?" he ventured.

"Oh, I don't know; you may."

"Well, I tell you, I think I'll make a good man for the place. You know I'm a cleaner."

"What do you clean principally."

"Clothes; but I can clean most anything."

"That's a good recommendation."

"Well, now you see I might not get this job. I ain't sure, you know, they'll appoint me; but if they do there'll be a cleaning all right. Maybe I won't take it anyhow because if I do take it they will have to let me run it my way. I don't want nobody to dictate to me, and if I thought they would try it, I don't believe I would take the job."

Be sure and see Il Trovatore at the Colonial tonight.

RECRUITS TO COLUMBUS.

Six Enlisted Men Sent From Local Station to Barracks.

Six recruits enlisted by Sergeant Seller, of the local army recruiting station, were examined and passed by Lieut. Edward Calvert, district commander of the Toledo recruiting district, and left last night for Columbus recruiting barracks. The recruits were: Mainard Ampey, Fort Wayne, infantry; George Lillie, Lima, O., cavalry; Roy E. Smith, London, Ont., coast artillery; C. R. F. Hann, Syracuse, Ind., coast artillery, and Charles H. Gossert, Redding, Penn., cavalry. Gossert and Lillie enlisted yesterday morning while the other recruits signed their papers earlier in the week. Shortly after the departure of Lieutenant Calvert, Sergeant Seller secured three more recruits, two of them, Walter C. Cramer, coast artillery; George C. Brown, infantry, and R. Leads, infantry, all of the recruits being from Fort Wayne.

LOCAL BANK CLEARINGS.

Total Again Jumps Back Above Million Dollar Mark.

The total of bank clearings in Fort Wayne this week is $1,129,954.08 as against $999,560.96 for last week, and $1,073,176.60 for the corresponding week last year. Balances are $203,194.43, and by days the clearings were:

Monday	$210,822.41
Tuesday	175,880.59
Wednesday	204,768.96
Thursday	196,568.12
Friday	174,270.5
Saturday	167,637.35

CITY BREVITIES.

Dr. Stamets was at Auburn on a business trip yesterday.

Hope hospital is experiencing one of the busiest times it has had in several months as every bed in the hospital is occupied.

D. B. Douglass, secretary of the Fort Wayne Auto Motor Co., and A. M. Hafer, mechanical engineer for the company, will leave for Chicago Monday to attend the automobile show in the interest of the company. George Loesch, treasurer of the company, will also attend the show, leaving the first part of the week.

W. H. Dreier has returned from a business trip to Chicago.

Col. D. N. Foster, who has been confined at Hope hospital recovering from an operation, has so far improved that he will be able to leave the hospital the fore part of next week.

Judge O. N. Heaton is at home from Valparaiso, where he has been presiding in an important law suit this week. It is not yet completed, and Judge Heaton will return to Valparaiso on Monday.

RIOT OF REVELRY OPENS ON MONDAY

Fort Wayne Lodge of Elks in Annual Charity Minstrel Show.

WITH US ONCE MORE

For the twentieth time in as many years, Fort Wayne lodge No. 155, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, will be seen next week in its annual charity minstrel entertainment, the big show appearing at the Majestic theater on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

The Elks' minstrel entertainments have become an institution in Fort Wayne, and the advance sale of seats already assures three tremendously large audiences for the present effort to amuse while providing funds for disbursement in a charitable way to the deserving needy in Fort Wayne. The show this year is under the personal direction of C. E. Roesch and Prof. F. J. Reineke, and all previous claims for "the greatest show on earth" go double for the forthcoming engagement.

What One May Expect.

Frank E. Bougher is scheduled to officiate as interlocutor this year, with Messrs. Shreve, Hallenstein, Bailey and Weichman as tambos and Messrs. Russell, Cress, Carr and Monahan on the bones end of the first circle. The bill of fare for the performance is as follows:

GRAND FINALE.
By the Entire Company.

The audience will confer upon us a big favor by remaining at their seats until the final drop curtain falls.

Note—The ushers and attendants have full power to search all suspicious characters who might attempt to bring into the theater such matter as eggs, cabbage, fruit, etc., of an ancient character.

The Accompanying Chorus.

The big chorus which will accompany the soloists and render the ensemble numbers includes Messrs. C. Rastetter, J. V. Wilson, Ray Shreve, Sam McClellan, Harry Hattersley, Frank Bougher, Lee Yahn, Ed Harkenrider, Fred Williams, Chas. S. Carr, J. H. Doyle, Otto Ortlieb, Oscar Menefee, Geo. Roach, Herman Hobrock, C. P. Sondahl, Carl Keisling, Larry Russell, H. P. Traxler, Ed Densell, K. E. Hatch, Elmer Stoll, L. C. DeLagrange, Geo. Piepenbrink, Geo. Ryan, J. McBennett, H. A. Bailey, Geo. Cress, Ed Derheimer, R. McMillan, J. M. Frase, Chas. Hart, Geo. Haag, Wm. Walsh, Darrell Hallenstein, Maurice Niezer, Frank Rohan, M. Laughlin, Chas. E. Roesch, Nate Beadell, Gus Fox, A. J. Monahan, Al Wiechman, Val Ewig, W. A. Gordon, O. H. Meyers, Clem Fox, Fred Marhenke, Herman Ehrman, Geo. Graffe and others.

Special effects for the performances are declared to be in every way more elaborate than for any of the nineteen entertainments which have already been perpetrated by the Fort Wayne lodge, and the promoters of the enterprise are prodigal in their claims regarding the excellence of the bill. The work is under the general direction of the entertainment committee, which is composed of J. H. Hobrock, chairman; Nate Beadell, secretary; F. E. Bougher, Maurice Niezer, C. E. Roesch, Fred Reineke, A. C. Aller, W. F. Ortlieb, H. A. Wiebke, Val Ewig, Ed. Derheimer, Darrel Hallenstein, W. J. Bowker, Otto Ortlieb and Fred Hartman.

Trying to Please Everybody

Philosophers say that it can't be done. They are right, but that is no argument against an honest effort to please as many people as we can. With this end in view we have added a little more quality in the Gold Seal, 5c Cigar. Al Hazzard, Mfg.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Eliza Brown, wife of William Brown, formerly a prominent farmer of Lake township, died January 18, 1911, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Gust Kobe, at Hart, Mich., where she had made her home for the past two years. The remains were brought to Fort Wayne by Mrs. Kobe, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Ed O'Rourke. Funeral services were held from the Cathedral January 21, and were attended by many old friends of the deceased. Rev. John R. Quinlan, the officiating clergyman, paid a beautiful tribute to Mrs. Brown's memory. The pall-bearers were her nephews—Jared Reed, Oliver Reed, Ben Voors, Henry Voors, James J. Voors and E. F. Clausmier, Jr.

SEEKS HOMES FOR FOUR.

Louis C. Schlaudroff, the humane officer, is looking for homes for four bright little colored children, the eldest 11 and the youngest 2 years old. The parents are dead, the father, who was a cook, dying a year ago and the mother about three weeks ago.

A. J. Vesey and wife will leave for Chicago Sunday to attend the automobile show.

WROTE WARING; DIDN'T HEED IT

Lafayette Editor Weds Fort Wayne Bride Despite Living Cost.

"SCOOPS" OWN PAPER

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 28.—Lafayette's newspaper fraternity was "scooped" yesterday, when Charles K. Mavity, managing editor of The Morning Journal, who was supposed to be a confirmed bachelor, quietly left the editorial sanctum and joined the ranks of benedicts. Mr. Mavity told no one of his intentions, and even his own paper failed to get the news of the marriage.

His bride is Mrs. Lillian A. Edgerly, and ceremony was performed at noon at the home of Judge and Mrs. Clark Lutz in Decatur, Ind. The wedding was a simple one, and was witnessed by only a few friends.

Mrs. Edgerly is the daughter of Alexander Hayes, who is now in Alaska. She is a graduate nurse of Hope hospital at Fort Wayne and of the floating hospital in Boston.

She came to Lafayette several years ago from Fort Wayne to assume the duties of superintendent of the Soldiers' Home Hospital and Training school, which position she held until a year ago, when she resigned to become head of the Home hospital in this city. Mr. Mavity is a graduate of Earlham college, and his first newspaper experience was on The Indianapolis Journal. He later was part owner and editor of The Evening Times in Muncie. He came to Lafayette several years ago.

What caused many friends of the newly wedded editor to be "shocked" at his becoming a husband yesterday, is that for several weeks Mr. Mavity has been pointing out to his readers in the editorial columns of The Journal the exceedingly high cost of living, and the great responsibility a young man assumes who takes unto himself a wife at the present time.

POVERTY FORCED THEFT OF SHOES

Turney Said He Thought He Would Put Them to Good Use.

CITY COURT DOCKET

Suppose you had canvassed about half the city begging for a pair of second-hand shoes to replace a pair that were practically without soles and had failed to get them and should happen along where good warm overshoes were hanging in front of a store, do you think you would steal them?

This was the proposition Alfred Turney was up against yesterday morning and he took the shoes, but was chased down the street by a couple of salesmen from the Goldberry shoe store and turned over to Patrolman Terry. Judge Mungovan let him go. In the meantime the officers at police headquarters had dug down and gotten a pair of old shoes much better than the ones worn by Turney and had given them to him.

Turney said he had never been arrested before, that he was without shoes and his feet were cold and wet and when he saw some arctics hanging out he thought he would put them where they would do some good.

The Other Cases.

George F. Young was placed on trial charged with appropriating money belonging to the National Casualty company for which he was the local agent. He is making a fight on the ground that the company owes him for commissions. The case consumed most of the day.

Thomas Harney and Thomas Murphy, charged with drunkenness, were let go and Wash Shirey was let go.

WRECK ON THE C. & O.

Engineer and Fireman Are Killed in Smash at Blountsville.

Muncie, Ind., Jan. 28.—Engineer Edwards and Fireman Schrock were killed and Brakeman Jesse Swisher was fatally injured as the result of a head-on collision of two freight trains on the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad near Blountsville, Ind., fifteen miles south of Muncie, early today. An extra freight was running east when it met regular train No. 73 on a curve piling up fifteen cars and the two engines. The blame for the wreck has not been fixed. The homes of the three men are in Peru, Ind.

DEAD'S SECRET REVEALED.

Dallas, Texas, Jan. 28.—To conceal from his family the fact that he was tried here for vagrancy, Arthur Herndon, who committed suicide in a local jail, had arranged to be buried under an assumed name and his identity was not discovered until just before his funeral today. He leaves relatives in Terre Haute and Jasonville, Ind.

GUNBOAT WHEELING SAFE.

Washington, Jan. 28.—The gunboat Wheeling arrived in Guantanimo Cuba, today. This advice was dashed to the navy department by wireless, setting at rest the fears for the little vessel's safety. It was rumored to have met with an accident at sea.

NAVAL BILL REPORTED.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Carrying a total of $125,421,528 the naval appropriation bill was reported to the house today to Chairman Foss of the naval affairs committee. The bill carries $5,929,316 less than the current appropriation and $2,044,621 less than the estimates submitted by the navy department.

It is said that one night Linker was called down to the place kept by the Albright woman, and in making an arrest some fellow's arm caught in his watch chain and spilled his timepiece all over the floor. The Albright woman offered to pay for it at the time, but he wouldn't accept anything, and at Christmas she sent the new watch to his home and it was accepted.

Linker was at headquarters today and surrendered his police property and says he is out looking for a job. He had nothing to say except that he made a mistake when he told the board he never got a watch. He is certain that if he had told the truth he might have been disciplined, but his place would have been safe.

Eisenhut in Charge.

George Eisenhut, appointed lieutenant of police when Mayor Grice took his place at the head of the city, is acting in the capacity of chief, and Patrolman George Strodel is night captain. Martin H. Rundell, a patrolman, and for a short time one of the members of the detective force, will go on duty tomorrow night as sergeant in place of Linker.

For the place of captain the name of John Neufer, a member of Capt. Henry Stoll's Pennsylvania police force, has been suggested. Whether or not he is an applicant is not known, but it is believed he would take the place if it were offered to him.

There is also some talk of advancing men temporarily from the force to the place until one is found who is capable of holding down the job. This is a hard task for the reason that the ranks are filled with men who have been used to the rotten system that obtained through previous administrations and who are prejudiced and biased in such a way that their usefulness would be impaired.

Double-Crossed the Board.

One instance of the disloyalty that permeates the whole force came to light a few weeks ago when a raid was contemplated upon the Calderwood hotel. The raid was set for a certain night and when the officers arrived on the scene the hostelry might have been taken for one of the most correctly conducted places of its kind in the city of Fort Wayne.

It has been openly charged that the proprietor of the place had been informed that the raid would take place and had been advised to clean up before the arrival of the police. This may or may not be true, but it is being talked of and it is certain that the raid was contemplated and that an officer visited the house.

Tendered Resignation.

Ben Elliott's resignation came to light last night along with those of Elmer Young and James E. Barr. The old chief remained on duty until he was advised that it had been accepted and then he closed up his desk, surrendered his equipment and went home.

He has not talked much about his case, but it is known that he will fight the indictment on the ground that he accepted nothing as a bribe and that the Charlie Clark diamond was simply a gift given and accepted without any intention of influencing his action as a police official.

Will Say Nothing At All.

If the city administration contemplates carrying the cleaning process any further than it has gone, nothing is being said about it. When Mayor Grice was asked if he contemplated asking for the resignation of any of the members of the board of public safety he answered that he did not know.

This same silence is maintained about everything connected with the disclosures and while some policy has probably been outlined the public is not to be let in on it.

Mr. Hogan Is Sore.

City Attorney Harry Hogan is sore over the criticism to which he has been subjected because Prosecutor Thomas decided he had no right to administer oaths before the board of safety.

That Mr. Hogan believed he was acting fully within the law is borne out by the fact that last May he wrote to the attorney-general of the state for an opinion as to whether he could hold the office of city attorney and act as a notary public.

The attorney-general wrote to him saying that his personal belief was that the law permitted this, and Mr. Hogan has the letter to show that he went to the highest legal office in the state to get advice upon the matter. He feels that he has been misrepresented in the investigation and that he was acting strictly within the provisions of the law as interpreted for him by a man who ought to know.

WARRANTS TO BE SERVED AT ONCE

Sheriff and Deputies Busy on Task and Bonds are Being Given.

TRIALS NEXT TERM

Sheriff Reichelderfer has his force busy serving the warrants on the grand jury indictments as fast as they are placed in his hands and up to this time most of the persons arrested for renting houses for illegal purposes have been brought in and have given bonds.

Jennie Wickliffe, owner of the Arlington hotel, was in this afternoon and Charlie Clark became her bondsman. K. J. Bauer has given bond in two cases, Mary Maloly and Emma Mason in two and the others are being brought in as fast as the deputies can get at the work.

Deputy Clerk John Dowling finished up the task of getting out all of the warrants today and by Monday night they will all have been served.

The sheriff has instructed his men that the women of the under world will be compelled to come to the court house and give bond in the regular way and that no bonds will be taken any place else.

None of the cases will be taken up for more than a week as the November term of the circuit court closed this afternoon and the new term will not begin until Monday, February 6. Prosecutor Thomas is in Detroit, but Deputy Prosecutor Harry Hilgemann says that as soon as the new term begins the cases will be taken up and disposed of as fast as they can be heard. There will be very few trials as pleas of guilty are expected from most of the people who have been indicted. Otto Bonahoom was arrested late yesterday afternoon and gave bond. Six women who are indicted are also held under bond as witnesses against Charlie Clark on the blind tiger affidavit and on the one for conducting a house of ill-fame.

Spent His Wife's Money.

Pearl Dennis says of Harley Dennis in a divorce complaint that she sold eggs and raised and sold chickens to get together $9 to pay her hired man with and that she gave the money to her husband, who spent it for cigarettes, drink and with one Thelma, an inmate of the district through which the grand jury recently sent a fine comb.

Mrs. Dennis says also that hubby is a confirmed cigarette fiend and that he will not work to support her, but forced her, while she was ill, to cut and husk corn in the cold weather. She also accuses him of having cursed and abused her. Judge R. K. Erwin filed the suit.

Young Sues the Company.

George F. Young has filed suit in the circuit court against the National Casualty company on contract to secure $850, declared due as commission on insurance business secured by plaintiff for the defendant. William C. Ryan and H. C. Hanna represent him. This company recently caused his arrest.

Articles Are Filed.

Articles of incorporation of the Bash Hay and Grain company have been filed with the county recorder. The capital stock is $10,000 and the incorporators are C. S. Bash, Peter Smyser and Charles Solomon Bash.

MAJESTIC THEATER

This Evening—"The Wolf."
Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday—"The Elks' Minstrels."
Thursday, Friday and Saturday—Miss Cecil Spooner in "The Fortunes of Betty."

IT WAS A "PROP." WOLF

But It Caused Big Sensation in Northern Maine.

E. Fernandez, who is playing Jules Baubien in "The Wolf," had an amusing experience at the end of his summer vacation in Maine. He can laugh heartily over it now, although it did not afford him much merriment at the time of happening and for a time it looked as if the tour of "The Wolf" would have to be postponed indefinitely. Mr. Fernandez, while at a camp in the wilds of Maine, had purchased a magnificent specimen of the taxidermist's art in the shape of a stuffed wolf's head and when he went to ship it to his residence in New York encased it in one of the large crates that had been used last season to carry the "properties" of "The Wolf" company through the country. On the top slats of this crate the words "The Wolf" were painted in large letters and "Handle with care" was also written on the box. After a ten-mile drive to a small railroad station, Mr. Fernandez was making arrangements to ship the box home, when the station agent noticed the inscription on the box. He gave a yell as he peeped through the clatting of the crate and saw a wild animal's head, with jaws agape as if it would devour him at once. Rushing to a crowd of natives at the far end of the platform, he told them of the wild animal in the cage and how a crazy man wanted to ship it. They all shouted to Mr. Fernandez of the danger he was in, but he only smiled and sat on top of the crate. After a time the station agent approached the box with faltering footsteps and listened in open-mouthed astonishment to Mr. Fernandez's description of how he had been fooled by a stuffed animal. This so angered the station agent that he then declared that Mr. Fernandez was trying to take a game animal out of the state that he had shot illegally and despite the protestations of the actor he sent a friend on the still hunt for the game warden of that district. He refused to let the box leave the depot until the arrival of the official and also refused to sell Mr. Fernandez a ticket. This delay made the actor miss the train that day and delayed his departure to New York for two more days on account of missing boat connections. When the game warden arrived and saw that the actor had told the truth, he made no objections to the shipping of the trophy to New York, but the mischief had been done. On this tour Mr. Fernandez has had all the boxes and crates of the company labeled "The Wolf Company. Props.," so that no officious person may delay the tour.

CECIL SPOONER HAS PLAYED MORE THAN 1,200 CHARACTERS

Cecil Spooner in the "Fortunes of Betty," Majestic Theater Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Matinees Thursday and Friday.

Cecil Spooner, who will be seen for the first time in her new rural play, "The Fortunes of Betty," in the Majestic theater next week, has known naught but the theater all her life. Long ere she had reached her second year she played parts, although, truth to tell, they were of the unthinking order, as she was carried over the ice by Eliza in her flight in "Uncle Tom's Cabin." In "Dora" she was seen many times as a babe, and also in "The Gilded Age," in which she was one of the celebrated colonel's numerous progeny.

It is interesting to note that the first part which Miss Spooner studied all by herself was Peanuts in "Under the Gas Light," one of the earliest of the plays of Augustus Daly. She played the boy who is shot by the Danites, and the business and fall which she originated herself made a great sensation wherever it was introduced. Her first part of magnitude was the title role of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," which she first played in Des Moines.

Another play in which she did well was "Little Miss Mab," a sort of companion play to "Fauntleroy," the part being a girl instead of a boy. Miss Spooner's first real soubrette part was Sally Annie Waddles in Bartley Campbell's "Divorce."

During the '90s her father sent her over the "Silver Circuit" as a star in "Peck Bliss, the Circus Girl." Then followed a season or two as a star in "The Girl From Texas," a soubrette play, written especially for her by C. T. Dazey, author of "In Old Kentucky." In this connection it is interesting to note that the part of Madge in "In Old Kentucky," was written for Miss Spooner by Mr. Dazey, but, owing to the fact that she was too young, she was not allowed to play it when the piece was first produced in New York. In 1900, the exposition year in Paris, Miss Spooner made a visit to Europe, where she traveled in England, France and Ireland. While in London, Miss Spooner, under the patronage of Mrs. James Brown Potter, danced at the Palace, being immediately signed for the following year. Being the guest of Mrs. Potter, she lived a while in London, at the former's home in St. John's Wood, and was entertained at Windsor castle and presented to the queen.

During her stage experience Miss Spooner has played over 1,200 parts. She is an ardent horsewoman, but has never taken kindly to the woman fashion of sitting on one side of the animal. Rather does she sit astride, and any fine afternoon may be seen mounted on her big coal black mare, "Roaming Nell," in the parks. Parts in which Miss Spooner has been particularly successful are Lady Babble in "The Little Minister;" Lady Ursual in "The Adventures of Lady Ursual;" the title role of "Phroso," etc.

MISS CECIL SPOONER.

She Will Be Seen Here Next Week in "The Fortunes of Betty."

There will be laughter, tears, song and dancing at the Majestic Thursday, Friday and Saturday with the Cecil Spooner company, probably the most pertentious offering of her career will be in this new one of "The Fortunes of Betty," which receives its first performance on any stage here, presented by an excellent cast. The stellar role of "Betty" has been especially created to cover the many accomplishments in Miss Spooner's possession, the full scope of which will be brought into the play.

The character depicts a rural maiden, who, by sheer determination, tears herself away from the thraldom of country existency to that of an actress, in the course of which she displays both the serious and sentimental phases of nature. Incidentally attaching various periods of her dancing accomplishments, in which she undoubtedly towers over the greatest recognized stars of the terpsicorean world.

In her support are the following carefully selected artists: Rawden Hall, Joseph Manning, William Dale, Philip Leigh, Arthur Jennings, James Furey, James Flannigan, Miss Fannie Louise Carter, Miss Gracey Beebe, Maude Stevens and George Saunders.

EIGHT HERAS FAMILY.

World's Greatest Troupe of Acrobats on First American Tour at the Temple Next Week.

AN INDIANA PRIMA DONNA AND HER WORK AND WORDS.

New York, Jan. 25.— Looks as if the prize for quick dressing will have go go to Miss Grace Van Studdiford, prima donna of "The Paradise of Mahomet," now playing at the Herald Square theater. Four minutes after she releases her last golden note from captivity, she has made a complete change of costume and is on her way home. At least that was the speed claim she put forth yesterday, and as she had just come from Paradise it is inconceivable that she should resort to an earthly fib.

Most men, especially the married ones, will be inclined to doubt the singer's claim, but she was the personification of earnestness when she made it. Seeing that her statement was about to be questioned, Miss Van Studdiford reinforced it by first crossing her heart and then her ankles, after which it would not only be unclubby but ungallant to doubt her veracity.

Four minutes! One, two, three four, with a deep breath in between each numeral and your wife is ready for the theater! Married men who have to lie in state for three or four hours while their better halves are getting hobbled and hatted will give the matter the deepest consideration and will then decide that it cannot be done. They will reach the unanimous conclusion that the singer's watch has a Philadelphia movement.

Truth compels the statement that less than ten minutes elapsed between the fall of the curtain on the tuneful performance and the time that the actress was found in her dressing room all dressed for the street. When she was complimented on the lightning change she made the announcement which is bound to cause an argument in more than one household.

"You mean fourteen minutes," was suggested.

"I mean four minutes," she answered. "Why I've done it thousands of times. With the assistance of a maid any woman should be able to dress in that length of time, provided, of course, her gown is not too elaborate. As a matter of fact I have often dressed in three minutes."

"But Eve's best record was thirty minutes and all she had to put on was"—

"But Eve didn't have a maid you must remember," interrupted the actress. "I make a complete change from shoes to hat. While my maid is doing one thing I am doing another, and most of the time I am out of the theater right on the heels of the audience."

Doesn't Know Tired Feeling.

"Don't you ever feel like sitting down and resting for a few minutes after the performance?"

"I don't know what it is to feel tired. And this is the easiest role I have ever sung."

"Do you like it as well as your other parts?"

"I'm just crazy about it. I have some delightful numbers and I enjoy them as much as the audience. The music isn't as heavy as I have been accustomed to and I guess it's the change that appeals to me."

"Have you ever thought of returning to grand opera?"

"Not very seriously. Since the season that I sang at the Metropolitan opera house I have been at the head of some great big productions, and now I am well established throughout the country. I couldn't very well afford to give up all this even for an easier berth."

"Do you consider grand opera easier for a singer than light opera?"

"Ever so much. There is no comparison. I said that my present role was easy, but it is difficult compared with grand opera. In grand opera—that is, in the cases of historic old pieces—you have years of precedent to guide you. The music is splendidly written and your path is all marked out. There are less ensemble work, fewer performances and only an occasional matinee.

"In light opera you spend weary weeks perfecting yourself in a role the music of which is very often poorly constructed. In addition to singing at least seven times a week you do a lot of talking, and talking is anything but beneficial for the voice. You have to take part in all the ensemble and unless you happen to have a genuine New York success you are kept jumping about the country. Grand opera is play compared with light opera. I am referring to the lighter grand operas. Some of the tragic roles are very hard and put a tremendous tax on one's strength."

"You look as if hard labor agreed with you."

"Oh, I've always been ridiculously healthy, but that is because I take care of myself. Most of my girlhood was spent in the open air, and I guess that's the answer."

"What brand of air did your folks use?"

"Indiana brand," laughed the actress. "They are still using it and wouldn't exchange it for any other. I was born in North Manchester, and my father and mother still reside there."

Where the Wabash Flows.

"The Wabash runs right by the town," volunteered Miss Van Studdiford's maid.

"If you could see the town you wouldn't blame it," said the actress with a smile. "Everything else runs right by it, too. I ran right by it as soon as I was big enough."

"Not very enthusiastic about the sycamore scenery, eh?"

"Yes, I am, but it's such a sleepy little place. Honest, it's so still it sounds noisy. I spend a week or two there every summer. Along about May I begin to feel that there is no place like home, and the minute my season closes I take the first train for North Manchester. After I'm there a few days I begin to feel that there is no place like New York and back I come."

"How did you come to take up an operatic career?"

"I had a good voice, and my parents decided to have it cultivated. All the members of my family were good singers. My sister is on the professional stage, and has been successful as my understudy in several productions. There is a strong resemblance between us. After my public school days were over I went to Chicago and devoted my time to vocal study. I made my debut with the Bostonians in 1897. It was a fine organization at that time, and I was getting along fine, but after a few months I left the stage to get married. Two years later I rejoined the same company and created the leading role in 'Maid Marian.' The famous company was on the down grade then and a few seasons later went to pieces."

"How long did you remain in grand opera?"

"But one season. Miss Grace Golden and myself were the only American women in the company that year. It was the season that Mr. Grau and Mr. Savage joined hands in the management of the Metropolitan. The following year I began my career as a star. 'The Red Feather' and 'The Golden Butterfly' were my best known productions. Strange as it may seem, I've never had an emphatic hit."

"You are rather frank about it."

"Why not? I have been successful personally and my plays have made money, but I have never had a piece that aroused great enthusiasm. You see what I mean, I have never enjoyed the sensation of turning people away for any great length of time."

"Wasn't 'The Red Feather' a success?"

"On the road, but not in this city. It was the same way with 'The Golden Butterfly.' No production ever received much more flattering notices, and yet we could not coax the people in."

"How have you been received in your present piece?"

"We did a fine business on the road and it was decided to bring the play to this city. The box office indicates a healthy interest in the piece. I think the music is delicious."

"How do you spend your time when you are not at the theater?"

"Pretty much like any other woman, I guess. There's nothing very mysterious about my routine. I eat a little, sleep a little, read a little and sew a little."

"And talk a little?"

"Not as much as I would like, but, as I have told you, talking is bad for the singing voice. I save my voice as much as possible."

"Haven't you got a single hobby concealed about you?"

"Not any more. I was very fond of horses and spent a great deal of time in the saddle, but I stopped riding several years ago. I got two or three bad falls, and I guess that cooled my ardor. One day I said to myself, 'Heavens! suppose one of these falls should break your nose? What would you do then?' I couldn't conceive of any manager wanting to engage a leading woman with a broken nose, so I gave up the sport."

"What led you to think you might land on your nose?"

"Two previous rehearsals had something to do with it," said the singer, with a laugh.

AVIATOR'S WIFE TALKS OF HEROES

MRS. EUGENE ELY.

"Bravery? Why, the knights of the olden days were children in comparison with the twentieth century heroes," recently declared Mrs. Eugene Ely, wife of the famous battleship aviator, while watching a flight being made by her husband.

Mrs. Ely is young. In fact, she is so very young that one involuntarily looks for her hair ribbon and sailor collar. She is pretty, petite, piquant and lots of other adjectives that go to epitomize radiant youth.

The little woman followed every motion of the biplane with shining eyes and eager comment. She looked so far from fear that she was asked how it felt to see one's husband suspended in thin air.

"With just an erratic bit of machinery between him and sudden death," supplemented Mrs. Ely. "Well, let me see. Were you ever in an elevator that shot up suddenly for about twelve stories, and all the time you felt it might go on indefinitely? You closed your eyes and held your breath, didn't you? That's exactly my sensation when Mr. Ely makes the ascent. Once up, I never allow the thought of accident to enter my mind. The thought might be communicated to him and create an unfavorable condition.

"Many times the biplane hovers uncertainly in the air, and I know something is wrong with the machinery."

"Then what do you do?"

"What do I do? Why, I just shut my eyes tight and wish him to safety. Your desires are your prayers, you know. I keep saying, 'He must be safe; he shall be safe; he is safe,' and sure enough, when I look up again he is winging on."

Patrolman Edward Bevelheimer, of 623 Hendricks street, was given a surprise party on his birthday anniversary Thursday night, at which a number of the day patrolmen were present.

The Temple Theater

Lillian Mortimer and Co., Great Favorites Here, Head Big Bill Presenting, "The Arrival of Betty"—Eight Heras Family of Acrobats Are Added Attraction.

"THE ARRIVAL OF BETTY."

Lillian Mortimer and Co. Big Feature at the Temple Next Week.

Miss Lillian Mortimer and her own special company of players head the excellent bill of vaudeville booked at the Temple, opening Monday matinee. Miss Mortimer, who is recognized as one of the cleverest comediennes in vaudeville today, is a most painstaking artiste. For detail and technique she has no superior and few equals. Of a most charming personality, she is a woman whom it is a pleasure to meet at any time. When on the stage, she is entirely obvious to all else but the work in hand. She throws her whole soul into her characters, hence the perfect illusion that she is able to convey to her audience. She makes her stage women real live personalities. In her latest creation "Betty," in "The Arrival of Betty," she has been most successful. The success of this sketch has created a demand for Miss Mortimer in "The Arrival of Betty" that is taxing the diplomacy of her manager. The management were indeed very successful in securing this big local favorite and is already assured of a most flattering reception.

Another most extraordinary feature will be the Eight Heras Family of acrobats, who are on their first American tour. They are the primer acrobats of the world and will be the most sensational and novel attraction ever brought to this city. They were secured at a nenormous salary. They are the feature of the bill at the Temple, Detroit, this week.

DeVine and Williams are said to have a most novel offering in their latest comedy success showing the difference between the traveling salesman and the female drumer. It is said to be a clever bit of comedy work.

The Brownies and company will be seen in a roaring comedy sketch, entitled "The War Is Over." It is brim full or good, clean comedy, well acted and brighly interspersed with song specialties.

The Berinos will appear in fifteen minutes of opera, including selections from grand oper, musical comedy and popular ballads. Thew were both featured with Henry W. Savage's "Prince Eagle in Woodland." This will be a great treat to the lovers of good singing. Rush Ling Toy and company, presenting the mystic creation, "A Night in the Orient," will be another of the good things. Del-A-Phone, the clever mimic and impersonator, is said to have a dandy act and the motion pictures, showing two new comedy subjects, complete the great bill.

THE GRAND JURY.

The grand jury that probed conditions in the Fort Wayne underworld, performed its work diligently, thoroughly and with signal results. The people of the city are under obligations to these gentlemen who performed a good work for the city and for good morals in general.

In reaching out for the persons who rent property for immoral purposes the grand jury has struck a blow at certain phases of immorality and vice that we believe will cause them to flourish less in Fort Wayne than heretofore. The suppression of beer sales in the Fort Wayne resorts had the effect to reduce the number of places as well as to take from the bagnio business the chief source of its profits. Now that it has been found possible to get to the owners of property tenanted by harlotry, there should be less trouble dealing with the vice. The enormous rentals that property suited to such purposes have been bringing are responsible for the way the business has flourished here until the anti-beer order went forth, and now that letting property for such purpose means exposure and punishment, there will be no haste of any one to engage in such investments.

In view of the results secured from this session of the grand jury we believe there should be more frequent looking into general conditions of morality, more especially in the city. It is true enough that the municipality should keep its own house clean and that a great deal of money is spent to that end; but the grand jury disclosures show that the city government may be recreant to its duty, or too weak for its job, or not smart enough to protect itself against deception. At all events, a grand jury inquiry into city conditions will hurt none, and frequently it may help.

PROSECUTOR THOMAS.

The people of the city have special occasion for gratitude to Prosecutor Albert E. Thomas for the results he made it possible for the grand jury to secure. Mr. Thomas directed the work and drew out the testimony with great ability. It is not a pleasant task to put to moral crucifixion men who have served usefully at public tasks and have borne good repute among their neighbors, and therefore greater is the need of courage for the work. Prosecutor Thomas added to his courage both zeal and experience and the results of his labors do no less credit to him than they do good to the community. There has come of this season's work by the prosecutor and grand jury some results that will have far-reaching consequences. It will be a long time before the city shall cease to profit from these results. There has not been made an end of vice, immorality and crookedness, but all have been halted and we believe that it will be found conditions have been permanently bettered. Prosecutor Thomas deserves vast credit for his invaluable part in the work.

If the Proctor saloon regulation bill becomes the law Fort Wayne will realize distinct benefit from that, even if the Proctor county option repeal law is undoing good works wrought under the county law. The Proctor regulation law will fix the number of saloons at one for each thousand of population, and in Fort Wayne, this would leave perhaps less than a third of the number of saloons now operating. This city, Indianapolis, Evansville, Terre Haute, South Bend and other centers of population that are in counties which have had no prospect of voting "dry" get at least that much benefit out of the change and have to that extent advantage over those counties which are "dry" and under the law just repealed could be kept "dry."

The standpats who promise trouble for the reciprocity treaty with Canada will force the president to look for safety of his plans to the democrats in congress. The democrats saved the Roosevelt railway regulation bills, they may save Canadian reciprocity and certainly if the tariff is revised downward during the Taft administration it must be democrats who make it possible. Canadian reciprocity affords a good test of sentiment on tariff reforms. It will show up a good many republicans and there are democrats he may hesitate and halt.

Indiana republican editors, who a year ago were harrassed with doubt of the Taft administration, have seen the breaking of a great light and through it beheld the multiplying perfections of the present white house regime. Which shows, among other things, that the republican editors of Indiana have a better understanding that for brethren to dwell together in unity and love will carry more elections.

Sweet Mary Maloly has had an abject apology for the libels uttered against her character much to the damage of her high repute, now let the city of Fort Wayne, which has been for a year past slanderously advertised as the home and hotbed of the white slave traffic, be also set right before an offended world.

If you want to learn how fast the country will go to the bow-wows and eternal smash under Canadian reciprocity, just ask any lumber baron this side the border. He will tell you and the awful picture of impending doom will scare you dead.

Fort Wayne's acephalous police department will be better in that condition than with a head that is picked in too much of a hurry to be any improvement over what now and then have been had.

DR. MARY WALKER HAS COME BACK

DR. MARY WALKER

Oswego, N. Y., Jan. 28.—Clapping her gloved hands and with a smile lighting her face, Dr. Mary Walker expressed her delight at the news from Paris that fashion had decreed trousers for women.

"It's a vindication!" cried the doctor. "I knew it would come and I knew I would live to see it."

Dr. Walker came to town today from her home in Bunker Hill arrayed in the habiliments of man, which she has affected for fifty-five years. Her trousers were almost hidden by a great coat. Around her shoulders was a fur cape and topping her head a fur cap. Now that fashion's decree has been issued the doctor wants to enlist in the cause and make addresses before New York women in advocacy of the proposed change. But she opposes most emphatically tight trousers and "corset coats" for men, declaring the men are namby pamby enough now.

"I have tried every sort of style," said Dr. Walker, "and at one time had twelve suits, all of a different cut and length. I had them of silk and trimmed with all kinds of decorations. The result of my experiments convinced me that the only proper kind was the same as men wear, and all women have got to come to this style of dress.

"I want them loose around the waist because I don't believe in corsets, which are abominable, and if worn with trousers the whole effect would be spoiled."

THE MUNICIPAL LIGHTING PLANT

By CHARLES M'CULLOCH.

To the Editor of the Sentinel: As I do not remember of seeing the annual report of our Municipal Lighting plant for last year published by any of the newspapers, I cite a summary of the controller's report, believing it will be interesting to a good many citizens, who, like myself, were anxious to have the city own its own plant, feeling confident that within a reasonable length of time it would prove to be a valuable asset, and would serve a useful purpose in keeping the general light bills of our citizens at fair figures.

Here is a plant worth at least $300,000.00, without one dollar of bonded indebtedness, and the money collected by taxation was so gradual, and at so low a levy, that it was hardly realized by the tax payers. Its net earnings last year were $46,226.58, so that the city officials were able to use $30,000 of this amount for additional machinery and improvements.

To show that Fort Wayne is not alone in a fortunate municipal lighting investment, I see that our neighboring city, Richmond, has also a grand report to make, showing the total receipts for the year ending January 1st, 1911, to be $77,341.00, with total operating expenses of $48,649.00—a profit of $28,692.00. If there is any more profitable investment published in these days than these two lighting plants show I would like to see it.

No wonder the gentlemen owning the Wabash Valley Traction company were so anxious to prevent the city from establishing a local lighting plant, and I venture to say that if the figures of their lighting plant could be fairly and carefully separated from the traction supply business they would show also a handsome return.

I am so much of a believer in municipal ownership that I feel confident that city officials could manage a gas plant, a telephone plant and a street railroad system just as economically, and therefore profitably, as private corporations do, and I wish the city of Fort Wayne owned all of these public necessities at a cost representing a liberal sum for construction.

Former Mayor Hosey deserves the thanks of our citizens for his untiring devotion to the establishment and construction of the lighting plant, and the city administration is to be congratulated on its management of both the water works and Municipal Lighting plants the past year.

Respectfully,
CHARLES M'CULLOCH.

Honorable Charles Boston,
476-7th Ave., New York City.

Dear Charlie:-

It was with a great deal of pleasure that I received your very kind letter of August 25th. On the same day came the box with the magnificient presents that you so kindly sent. I hardly know how to thank you for your great generosity and regret very much that it is impossible for me to reciprocate at this time, but trust when I accept your invitation to visit you the next time I am in New York, that I will be able to present you with some little souvenir, to express the high esteem in which I hold your friendship.

Wishing you success and trusting it will be my pleasure to see you often, I remain,

Very sincerely,

CHARLES BOSTON

New York, Jan. 28.—Fourteen United States customs inspectors made a raid on a Chinese tea store in Seventh avenue, near Thirty-seventh street, confiscated several thousand dollars' worth of opium and opium smoking apparatus and found many letters addressed to Charles Boston, a wealthy Chinese, who owns the place. All bore the names of leading public officials of Pittsburg.

Correspondence showing that Boston, now a fugitive sought by the federal secret service, has been conducting a traffic in opium in this city, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Chicago, Jacksonville, Fla., and other cities, was also found. Another raid made on a place conducted by Sam Lee, in Seventh avenue, near Fortieth street, resulted in the discovery of many opium smoking outfits, large quantities of the drug and disclosed an elaborate system of steel barriers to protect inmates.

Boston, the Chinese for whom secret service agents are now looking, is one of the leaders of the On Leong Tong, whose battles with the Four Brothers society have helped make history in Chinatown for years.

When a custom inspector broke open Boston's locked desk with a crowbar he found letters to "the Honorable Charles Boston," and bearing the names of J. M. Morin, director of the department of public safety of Pittsburg; Thomas A. McQuaide, superintendent of police of Pittsburg; E. R. Walters, director of the department of public health of Pittsburg, and Joseph P. Murray, police captain of the First district of Pittsburg. Each of the letters acknowledge receipt by the writer of a gift from the Chinese.

There was also found a letter purporting to have been written by Thomas A. McQuaide, superintendent of police of Pittsburg.

TOWNSHIP EXPENDITURES IN ALLEN COUNTY SHOW DECREASE

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 28.—Comparative statements of the township expenditures of the twenty townships in Allen county, compiled from the reports of examinations made by the state board of accounts of Indiana, show a net decrease of $14,480.05 for the fiscal year 1909 from the figures of the fiscal year 1908. There was an increase of $5,524.44 in the tuition fund, which is expended for the common schools, and an increase of $940.10 in the dog fund, all other funds showing a decrease. CRIMEAN HERO FRIEND OF JAIL BIRDS.

GEORGE JONES

THE JONES' HOME

New York, Jan. 28.—Often Sunday mornings the prisoners in the Queens county jail are addressed by a fine looking man, who has an erect, military carriage, despite his more than seventy years. He is George Jones, Cameron terrace, Woodside. He has lived there for more than a quarter of a century. He is one of the few survivors of the Crimean war in this country. Tall and scholarly in appearance, with a long white beard, the prisoners have come to love him for his messages of sympathy and good cheer.

Long a religious worker, his visits to the jail and his other work in the interest of religion and temperance have not kept him from many other activities. He has been a prolific author all his life and has written more than three thousand poems, most of them strongly religious in sentiment.

Many times he has filled pulpits in Queens when the regular pastors have been ill or away. Families have often sent for him when some of them has died and they have been poor.

MARRIED THEM IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 28.—While Miss Lillian Pamuell, of Wabash, Ind., did not want a large wedding, she wanted the ceremony to be performed in a large place, and as a result she was married in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel to Mr. J. Wood Wilson, of Marion, Ind. While Miss Pampell was planning her wedding she did not want her intimate friends to miss it, nor did she want to have any other clergyman perform the ceremony than her own minister, so she brought her wedding guests, minister, prospective bridegroom and trousseau all to this city with her.

The friends of the couple who were invited to attend the ceremony were a little taken aback when they learned in the short carriage trip they were to travel hundreds of miles to the wedding, but all were enthusiastic, and none more so than the Rev. Charles Little, of Wabash, moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church, who has been Mrs. Wilson's pastor for some years.

WILL WED MAN INVOLVED IN PATRICK CASE.

MISS SELMA H. BARNETT

New York, Jan. 28.—Assured that he will never be brought to trial for complicity in the alleged forging of the will of William Marsh Rice, for whose murder in 1900, Albert T. Patrick is serving a life sentence in Sing Sing prison, Morris Meyers, a lawyer, with offices at No. 41 Park row, will marry Miss Selma Henrietta Barnett. She is the daughter of a contractor, whose home is at No. 538 West 186th street.

Confident that Mr. Meyers was [illegible] cent of any wrongdoing, Miss [illegible] delayed the marriage for [illegible] months, knowing that time would prove the truth of her belief. Her fiance meanwhile has done everything in his power to clear his name, and in his work of cutting official red tape has had the earnest assistance of his bride-elect.

SOCIETY A Page for Women FASHION

HEUMAIER.

A reception of unusual beauty was given by Mrs. Henry Bowerfind and Mrs. James H. Haberly at the home of Mrs. Bowerfind in West Wayne street this afternoon. One might easily have considered the day one in early April for indoors it was a veritable springtime and the sunshine and mild temperature further suggested a later season. The decorations were spring flowers with jonquils and narcissus filling silver and crystal vases in the living room where the two hostesses received their guests. White candles, unshaded, filled candelabra and single candlesticks and seemed quite a fitting accompaniment to the delicacy of the flowers. In the dining room a spring garden greeted the eyes of the company for the long table had been literally converted into a temporary flower bed by the florist. Miss Flick, and there were growing among the mosses and ferns, primroses, white, yellow and lavender. At either end of the table dispensing refreshments from handsome brass servers were seated Mrs. Gaylord M. Leslie and Mrs. Percy Olds. Assisting Mrs. Leslie and Mrs. Olds were Miss Haberly, Miss Reuss and Miss Paul, while in the reception room were Mrs. Hugh Keegan and Miss MacDougal. The dining room was further decorated with wicker baskets of spring flowers that stood on the mantel and buffet and the long window shelf was filled with Marguerites and ferns whose green formed a pretty contrast to the tall white candles on either side. During the reception Young's orchestra played a program of lively and appropriate selections and the music added to the enjoyment of the guests. Invitations had been issued to two hundred ladies and the response was very general.

Miss Marcelline Gerow's second party within the month was given this afternoon when young women to make five tables, enjoyed a game of bridge at her home in West Main street. The rooms were extremely attractive with their festooning of smilax about the chandeliers and stairway, and vases of two shades of pink carnations. After the game Miss Gerow served a tempting supper. Among the guests were Miss Winifred Callahan, of Conneaut, Ohio, and Mrs. Dorian, of Chicago, who is visiting Mrs. Frank Dinnen.

Miss Jennette Nelson, of Peoria, Ill., who is visiting Mrs. Kerr Murray Crossler and Miss Edna Heaton, of Indianapolis, who is visiting Miss Josephine Dinnen, were the honor guests at an informal bridge party for which Miss Mary Randall, of East Berry street, was the hostess this afternoon.

FOR WINTER RESORTS.

WORN BY MISS MYRTLE WELLINGTON WITH LESLIE CARTER IN TWO WOMEN

Every woman is interested in the new styles for next summer, and this lovely gown is typical of the afternoon frocks which will be the fad for midsummer days.

This costume was built for a woman who intends to make a fortnight's stay at one of the smart villas at Palm Beach this month.

The material is white voile with a petticoat of heavy lace. Above this is a delicate embroidery done with white beads; this beading appears also on the bodice. Belt and piping around the low neck are of dark green silk.

The Home telephone girls have arranged to give a dance on the twentieth of this month.

Mr. and Mrs. John Brooks, of Boston, Mass., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Jones, of Hoagland avenue.

Lieut. and Mrs. Charles Reese will entertain the club of which they are members, at bridge on Monday evening, at their home in Wildwood avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Grosvenor, of South Wayne avenue, have as their guest, Mr. Grosvernor' mother, from Amherst, Mass.

Mrs. Oliver Evans and Miss Italia Evans are spending a few days in Chicago. Miss Evans will entertain the Junior Orphans' Home club on Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shuman, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Vordermark and Mr. and Mrs. Dayton Jenness, all of East Wayne street, have gone to Chicago to spend a few days with friends and to attend the automobile show.

Mrs. Henrietta Trisch, of 1923 Spy Run avenue, observed her seventy-fifth birthday anniversary recently by receiving a number of remembrances from friends. Mrs. Trisch received more postcard souvenirs than she has lived years.

Mrs. Mason Long, Miss Zoe Long and Miss Irma Henderson, left today for San Francisco, Cal., where they will spend some months with Baron Long. In the party leaving today were Mr. and Mrs. Austin Stults who are to spend two months in the west, and W. D. Henderson, who will be in Chicago for two or three days.

GOOD TASTE IN MOURNING.

The woman who thinks that quantities of black in all degrees of brilliance, including glittering jet, constitute morning is making a mistake in good taste. Simplicity in line and an inconspicuous adherence to the etiquette of mourning are the two points that are necessary for correct mourning garb. Any overemphasis or extreme exploitation of the idea is an outcry against the very spirit of the custom.

clerk's office, in which Mrs. George Orcutt Roe, of Philadelphia, seeks to recover $25,000 damages from Mrs. Mamie Taylor, of No. 98 Lafayette avenue, Brooklyn, for the alienation of her husband's affections.

Service of the summons and complaint was obtained on Mrs. Taylor on her return from the Metropolitan opera house. She was accompanied by a man who is said to have resembled Mr. Roe. The process server awaited her until after midnight on the porch of her home. When she admitted her identity he handed her the papers. He says that Mrs. Taylor's escort, realizing what was happening, took his departure without waiting to say good night.

ART IN RIBBONS

Live and learn. Three words of advice upon which the entire advancement of civilization depends. An active life requires constant educational changes in order to make life worth living.

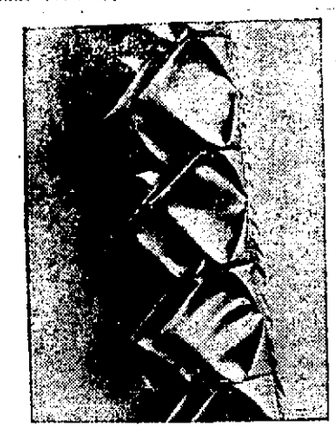

There is no trade or profession to which a serious application of study is more necessary than that of millinery. Every new idea, every out-of-the ordinary wrinkle and every late design should be known by every modiste in the land. The manufacturer who does not exploit his wares in those things that are created especially for fashionable attire would reap no reward from his efforts unless he makes it possible for the milliner to know what he is doing. The millinery profession is one that is light, fascinating and successful if the one who conducts it is ever up-to-date in at least copying the latest creations, if she is not able to share the glories and fame of the designer.

It is not that materials wear out by constant use. It is not that velvets, silks and satins become treadbare and must be thrown aside, but it is the ever-crying demand for something new and out of the ordinary that causes employment to countless thousands throughout the world. Hats may be made over, feathers used times without number and materials that do not fade even appear in a new guise and under a different form so that they can baffle the most scrutinizing observer and defy anyone to announce that they have been used before. It is a bold and careless woman who would essay to wear for any length of time a hat that was passe. A shape becoming one season must be altered and refreshed if used the next. Steam is the greatest aid to the milliner and dressmaker known in the world. By its aid anything may be made almost as good as new. Certain articles of millinery merchandise spring into prominence, are admired and worn, and are then relegated to the past. The predominance of feathers for spring and summer use, the liberal quantities of flowers as used in the winter, have transposed to a certain extent those materials which were, a few years ago, known as the property of seasons other than from which they have been most recently employed.

The time has arrived for a change; the advent of something new will be welcomed. The arrival of a liberal use of ribbons, like the light in the east to the patriarchs of old, is welcomed with delight by the milliners and modistes and searchers after the new. History tells us that ostrich feathers have been in vogue off and on for nearly four hundred years. The manufacture of artificial flowers since 1833, has evoluted from crude copies of Nature's handiwork until now one may purchase a silken flower that almost defies detection from one that has grown from the ground. So perfect have they been copied within the last few years that many foreign countries now prepare wreaths for the dead from artificial flowers that are so lifelike in their natural nests that they almost appear to breathe of the perfume with which Nature endowed the originals. These in all their glory will no doubt be supplanted by the liberal use of ribbon bows, thus giving the silk worms an opportunity to work overtime, and also will add music to the busy hum of the wheels of many looms to sing upon the air.

That the fine silken thread must call to its aid the handiwork of man to evolve the finished ribbon from the raw material is a work that gives employment to countless thousands and thus many homes are made glad.

Few people stop to consider how many have aided and abetted in placing upon the market this narrow band of silk of which no higher type of millinery or costume garniture is known. The illustrations accompanying this article are but a few of the marvelous, wonderful, new and rich designs recently constructed by the deft fingers of Mr. Ora Cne, man milliner and celebrated designer of New York city and Fort Wayne.

The sewing machine plays an important part in the industry of bow-making. Accuracy and quickness are easily obtained by the aid of the machine.

The Abeille is a bow under the French name of the Bee, because when finished it bears a striking resemblance to that busy little insect. It is best worn on the back of a close-fitting hat in order that the ends of the wings may not be fettered.

The Grace, a bow with identically the same foundation as the Bee, has the wings spread apart and the center is covered with the shirred, knotted bow known as True Love. This is more plainly illustrated in the Vraiami.

Rosette

The Vraiami in itself is a three-yard strip of ribbon tucked underneath. Fine wires are drawn through these tucks, the ribbon pushed together and tied to the Knot.

The Choufleur is many separate loops folded and sewed flat on the machine, mounted on a strip of wire and drawn to the circle. This center is then wrapped with ribbon between each loop. Three or four of these in different colors, intermingled with dainty foliage, forms an all-around crown for the wide-brim hats.

Vraiami.

The Rosette bow is always at home when placed at the bottom of a cluster of feathers or a monture of flowers.

The Garniture trimming band looks well if used as a ruffle on an underskirt, as the band trimming of a dress, or panels on evening costumes. It might also encircle the crown of large hats, the points being permitted to fall on the brim.

Garniture.

Mr. Cne will soon be sent en tour throughout the country in order to disseminate his knowledge about these trimmings to the milliners, modistes and florists.

AT THE COLONIAL.

The Colonial theater is presenting "Il Trovatore" today for the second time. This picture has been a taker wherever it has been shown, and as the Colonial had packed houses when the picture was shown before, they thought it necessary to again rerun it. This is the only picture the Colonial has shown the second time since they opened. The Colonial is considered the liveliest moving picture show in northern Indiana. A four piece orchestra will assist in entertaining the patrons of this popular theater.

RECIPES.

Bread and Cheese Pudding.

Cut some stale bread into neat pieces about two inches or less square; sprinkle the bottom of a baking dish holding one quart and one pint with grated cheese and dots of butter; then fit the pieces of bread nicely into the dish; beat four eggs without separating until light; add a salt spoon of salt, three dashes of paprika and one quart of sweet milk; pour this mixture by spoonfuls over the bread; let it stand until thoroughly moistened through and through; it should stand about half an hour; then sprinkle grated cheese over the top; bake in a good oven until the custard is set and the cheese delicately browned; this part also takes about half an hour, or possibly a little longer.

Calf's Heart Stuffed.

Wash the heart, stuff with forcemeat. Sew. Arrange half a cupful of onions and carrots in the bottom of the casserole, place the heart on this layer of vegetables. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and paprika, dredge with flour and bake in a hot oven for two and a half hours. Baste often with hot dripping. Remove from casserole and make a brown gravy, using four tablespoonfuls of the fat from the casserole, adding three tablespoonfuls of flour and two cupfuls of boiling water. Serve the gravy around the heart.

BRAIDED SOUTACHE SUIT.

POSED BY MISS VIRGINIA GUNTHER OF "THE GIRL AND THE KAISER CO." PHOTO BY JOEL FEDER.

So closely are the lines of soutache placed on this smart little suit of dark blue serge that a hairline stripe is suggested.

The lines of both skirt and coat are exceedingly pretty, and the slender effect is increased by the tapering panels of braiding on the coat.

The collar and cuffs are of black satin.

The hat is of cream straw, with dark blue velvet over the brim, a velvet bow at the back and a puffed drapery of silk around the crown.

SCALP MUST BE RESTED AT NIGHT IF FALSE HAIR IS WORN DURING THE DAY

Puffs, Curls and Switches, Heat Scalp and Prevent Circulation That Keeps Hair Healthy

Rest for the scalp is imperative to overcome the strain of wearing the large quantities of false hair that are now fashionable. For in addition to the mass of curls, puffs etc., many pins are required to hold the coiffures in shape. These pins naturally pull the hair roots and weaken the hair so it falls, unless special measures are taken to preserve the roots.

The greatest aid that can be given the scalp for this purpose is to let the hair hang loose at night. For in this way not only is the strain taken away, but the scalp gets more than the usual amount of ventilation. The latter in itself is excellent, as it strengthens the roots.

That short locks may not fall over the face at night, a section of the hair over at may be gathered up and tied with a ribbon, after the manner in which many women wore their flowing locks when they were little girls. If tying is done loosely there will be no pull on the scalp and unruly short licks will be held in place.

If a thorough brushing is given when all pins are taken out, the hair will not tangle unduly, and such snarls as come may be smoothed away in the morning by the careful use of a brush.

Rubbing the scalp for a few minutes after the pins are taken from the hair will do it good by increasing circulation, for the blood under the scalp is likely to be in a dormant condition at the end of the day, and rubbing sends it through the veins with new energy.

To rub the scalp the fingers are thrust through the locks to the middle of the head and then rubbing is done vigorously, though not so extremely as to cause knots in the hair. One minute's rubbing (it cannot be called massage) is good, but five minutes' work will be excellent.

A lazy but possible way of applying a hair tonic is to pour some of the lotion over the scalp before rubbing. To apply the tonic the bottle containing it is held over the top of the head and a teaspoonful or more of the liquid is turned out.

A lotion which may be used in this way is made from one ounce of alcoholic tincture of cantharides, one and one-half ounces each of spirits of rosemary, glycerine and aromatic vinegar and three ounces of rosewater.

The applications should be made nightly.

ETIQUETTE CONCERNING CONDOLENCE LETTERS AND CALLS OF SYMPATHY

Notes Written by the Bereaved Family Must Contain and Expresion of Thanks.

It is difficult to give an exact form for writing a note of condolence, for it should vary to suit each correspondent. There are, however, general rules to be followed and, remembering these, a woman may adapt her communication as required.

For instance, "thanks" for the sympathy extended is important and appreciation of it must be expressed. Usually there is some allusion to the individual who has died, but in this latter particular there is latitude. Many persons prefer not to speak of their loss more than is required for strict politeness to inquirers and such a wish is, of course, respected by others.

A note of thanks which would do for all purposes of formal response might read:

My Dear Mrs. Lackstaff:

The sympathy of our friends in our bereavement brings consolation, and their thought helps us through this sad period.

Believe me, we thank you deeply.

Sincerely,

MARY LOUISE HOWARD.

Length is not necessary to such a communication, but if the note is to a person who knew the departed one, an allusion to the dead may be included. Precisely what this reference may be depends wholly upon what the writer wishes to say.

Notes of condolence, like those on any social matter, are to be responded to as soon as they are received.

When the acquaintance is a large one, it is customary to have a formal engraved card for response, and one must be sent to all persons who write or call.

A visiting card intended as one of condolence, may be answered by a card on which the word "Thanks" may be written, or no writing need be put on unless the sender wishes.

All visiting cards sent as calls of condolence should be replied to by visiting cards sent through the mail after a few weeks have elapsed. A person in mourning is not supposed to make calls, yet the visits of her friends must not be ignored.

So her own card is sent to fill the requirement.

ETIQUETTE FOR GIRL DEBUTANTE

Must Not Go With Man Unchaperoned Later Than Ten O'clock to a Dance.

Provided the parents of a girl invited to dinner are acquainted with or know of the persons to whose house she wishes to go, there is no objection to her accepting an invitation to an informal dinner with.

It should be understood that no mother can be too careful on the score of where her daughter goes and who are her girl friends. A girl who goes about or is identified with persons who are socially undesirable is made the same herself, even though she may be of different caliber and has chosen her associates through ignorance.

It is this error particularly that a mother is supposed to guard her daughter from. Therefore, before allowing the girl to accept any invitation from persons unknown to her, the mother should make careful inquiries as to the standing in the community of said person, and if it appears undesirable, the invitation must be refused.

On the other hand, if the individuals are such that a mother would like to have her daughter know them, the fact that the parent is unacquainted with them need not prevent the girl from accepting. It is taken for granted that in the natural course of events the girl's mother will become acquainted with her daughter's friends.

Under no circumstances is it good form for a girl to be brought home from a dinner or party as late as midnight, unchaperoned, by a young man. If she has known the man for a long time he may be permitted to accompany her as late as half-past nine o'clock, but not later than ten. It is unwise, socially, for a young girl to be seen unchaperoned with a young man after ten o'clock. Other persons do not know that she may have known the youth all her life and in this way she gains an undesired reputation.

Generally speaking, a girl should not be taken home even at an early hour by a young man who has just been introduced to her. The exception of this would be when the hostess, an older woman, asks the young man to act as the girl's escort. It is taken for granted that an older woman would not do this except when she knows the young man well.

Rigid etiquette disapproves of a young girl going without an older woman to the theater in the evening with a young man. Yet there is a latitude and under some conditions she may go unchaperoned. Leniency in this particular is due to the great expense incurred by a young man on taking a girl to the play and the fact that buying another seat might entirely prevent his extending an invitation. The theory that if he cannot afford three tickets he should not go at all is too hard to admit of strict observance.

Therefore, if the girl is old enough and wise enough to behave herself properly, objections will not be raised to her going occasionally to the play with a young man. The outing should be regarded as an exception, for if she is seen frequently unattended by an older person she makes herself undesirably conspicuous.

When she does accept she should go immediately from the house to the theater and return home at once after the play. To go to a restaurant or to daily returning would be bad form.

AFTERNOON SCARF.

Effective are the jaunty fur hats worn with big scarfs and muffs, and these wraps are donned over little afternoon dresses of satin, chiffon, permo stuff and other lightweight fabrics when a carriage is to be used in transit.

The wrap shown, like many of the new models, has a different pelt on each side, the outer side of the scarf being skunk and the inner side of chinchilla.

The hat is chinchilla with a feathery aigrette and the big chinchilla muff has a border of skunk

A THEATER HAT.

Picture hats are accompanied by picture wraps, with huge muffs to match, and charming are the poses milady manages by the aid of these graceful accoutrements.

The hat illustrated is a Lewis model of lace and velvet, with one of the gay little bandelet caps of lace underneath. This cap rests on the hair and is trimmed with a wreath of tiny pink rosebuds, and is altogether the most captivating and coquettish creations Paris has ever produced in headgear.

The scarf matches the hat, for it is of black chiffon and broadtail, with a lining of pure white unspotted ermine fur.

HOSTESS MUST BE COMPOSED

Nervousness in a Woman Who Entertains Guests at Dinner Makes Servants Irritable and Guests Unhappy.

A woman who scolds and makes her maids nervous when she is preparing to entertain friends, will never be a successful hostess, for, naturally, if she is nervous, her condition will communicate itself to the maids, because she will be constantly talking to them or finding fault.

A certain element of philosophy is necessary to the perfect hostess. She must arrange matters previous to her guests' arrival, and then she must recognize the fact that, should there be any trouble in the kitchen, nothing will be gained by talking to the maids about the difficulty. Also a hostess who is nervous is unable to give her guests the attention they should have, and they, like the maids, will be quite conscious of any irritability.

If the entertainment is to take the form of a luncheon, or dinner, all possible preliminaries should be prepared the day before, and the last hours left free to grapple with whatever unforseen emergencies arise. The mistress of the household should give her instructions clearly as to linen, glass and silver to be used. A safe way is to write a list of what is to be put on the table and give one copy to the maid and another to the cook, that there shall be no misunderstanding between the two as to the time of serving. A list of the foods and the courses in which it is divided should also be made for both cook and maid.

If the hostess wishes to superintend setting the table, she should do so early in the day, or several hours before dinner, that the maid shall be left alone at the last to do the work required of her before dinner is served. Some maids are completely upset by a change in routine, and is the mistress keeps talking to them, as ordinarily she does not, they may lose their usually clear discernment.

As a matter of fact, if the woman who is entertaining appears to be at her ease, and to have confidence in her maids, they will usually give far better service, because their self-confidence is not weakened. But if they once have the idea that their mistress is doubtful of their abilities, they may become worthless through self-consciousness.

A consoling thought for any hostess, when all does not go as well as she would have it, is that unless the mistake or oversight is a glaring one, it will not be observed by her guests. For she is the only person, besides the maids, who knows exactly how things should be. Therefore, nothing short of an accident will attract attention.

A CURIOUS ACCIDENT.

"It is well known that the coats of certain animals are affected by climate," said a naturalist. "Thus, in the cold north, the fox, the ermine and the ptarmigan change their coats in winter from brown to pure white. But the influence of temperature on animals was never so clearly demonstrated as in a recent accident to a cat on board an ocean liner sailing between Southampton and India.

"The cat, a jet black one, was locked accidentally in a cold-storage room. This room was not opened until the boat's arrival at Aden, thirty-six days later on. The poor cat, hardly recognizable, emerged from its polar existence with an ear frozen off and with its coat very much longer and thicker than usual. But what was most surprising was that on its back the hair had changed from black to almost white.

"The summer heat of the Read Sea soon caused the cat's uselessly heavy coat to fall off, and the white hair on its back disappeared, so that, on arriving in London, it had regained the normal appearance of a cat of the temperate zone."

A CHRISTMAS TOMATO HARVEST.

Harvesting tomatoes at Christmas time is a novel industry that keeps thirty-five men busy at North Wales. The tomatoes are growing on a four-acre tract, all of which is under a monster greenhouse, the largest in the world.

Some years ago a company that made a specialty of raising American Beauty roses put up a greenhouse 150 feet wide, 575 feet long and 32 feet high on its grounds at North Wales, and 45,000 plants were grown in the great glass house. The profits were so satisfactory that another greenhouse of the same height and width, but 700 feet long, was built. As it was not completed in time for last year's planting of roses the owners raised tomatoes in it.

Apparently the returns were even greater than those from roses, for this year tomatoes were again planted. There is virtually a big truck farm under glass, and 80,000 tomato plants are now producing fruit, which is sold at high prices in the big cities. Elsewhere on this tract 55,000 carnation plants are now in bloom.—Philadelphia Record.

RECIPE FOR BIBLE CAKE.

Half a pound of Judges, v., 25; the same of Jeremiah, vi., 20; 1 tablespoonful of I. Samuel, xiv., 25; 3 tablespoonfuls of Jeremiah, xvii., 11; ½ pound each of I. Samuel, xxx., 12, and Nahum, iii., 12; (chopped); 2 ounces of Numbers, xvii., 8, blanched and chopped; 1 pound of I. Kings, iv., 22. Season to taste with II. Chronicles, ix., 9; a teaspoonful of Amos, iv., 5, and 3 tablespoonfuls of Judges, iv., 19.

Beat the first, second and third ingredients named to a cream; add the fourth, on at a time, still beating; then fifth, sixth and seventh, still beating. Next add eighth, ninth, tenth and eleventh, having previously mixed them together, and last of all, add twelfth.

Bake in rather a slow oven and less than an hour and a half.

DRESSMAKING HINTS.

Always begin at the shoulders in fitting a blouse. If these fit in the proper manner, you need have no fears about the rest of the bodice.

Always cut the center front of a bodice on the straight of the material. If necessary, it may be taken in very slightly at the waist when being fitted. But if you slope it much the set of the blouse will be wrong, and this is true even when it is to fit a very stout figure.

Always cut the center back of the lining of a blouse on the straight also. Slope it only very slightly, about half an inch, to the waist.

MARIBOU MUFFS.

Now that the maribou articles are reduced in price it would be a good investment to secure such accessories as scarfs, stoles, capes and pelerines, even though a woman feels such purchases superfluous, for there will be lots of spring days when a fur muff will be too warm and one of maribou will then be comfortable; but it is quite certain that anything bought for the neck will have plenty of wear, for even in summer there are cool evenings, and days, too, when a woman appreciates the warmth afforded by such accessories.

SMART EVENING WRAPS.

Brocade and plain silk are combined in the smartest evening wraps this season, and if a woman cannot afford the real brocade, excellent substitutes may be found in the upholstery departments of the high class stores. The bodies of these coats are plain, cut rather full and in one with the sleeves. The lower edges are gathered into deep bands of the brocade outlined with fur or maribou trimming. The wraps close double breasted and large revers faced with brocade turn back.

NEW FORCE BACK OF THE BATSMAN

Joe Raidy Will Get Better Catchers for Zanesville Club.

WANTS OUTFIELDER

Zanesville, O., Jan. 28.—Manager Joe Raidy, who was here for a few days looking over the situation and framing up his plans for next season, announced among other things that he does not regard Mickey O'Brien and Hargrove as a strong enough backstopping staff for the Central league and that he will look up at least one high class receiver.

This means the probable retention of O'Brien, who is a willing worker and who hits well enough to be used for utility purpose. Hargrove is a hard working youngster, but he is inexperienced and needs a little polishing before he will ever be strong enough for the Central league. He has a man or two in view and is out among the American association owners and managers looking for materially.

Hugo Swartling will receive the attention of the manager and he must show something to hold down his job. Around the bag he is one of the best men in the Central league and there is no fault to find with his fielding, but he is weak with the bat and this has been his greatest drawback since he was picked up by the club management.

Swartling has been out of the game a lot on account of injuries and Raidy is not much impressed with the big fellow's willingness to get in and work his best for the success of the club. The pitching staff will bother the new manager a whole lot. He has Jones and Connolly left and the latter does not want to pitch.

Jones joined the club the latter part of the season and showed good form for a man with a weak lot of players behind him and he will probably be able to hold a job next season, but four others are needed and there is not much time to get hold of them. Raidy is optimistic, however, and believes that when the major league and class A teams begin to shed their surplus players he will pick up the men he wants.

Before leaving the city Raidy arranged to have his players report here about the first of April for the spring practice. This will give him about four weeks to build up his club and he thinks in that time he can try out all of the men who will be on his roster.

The outfield needs complete reconstruction. There are three men, Hillinger, Baggan and Kennedy, for the garden positions. Of these Hillinger alone is reliable. He is a hard worker, and a first-class ball player. Aside from his weakness when facing southpaw twirlers Hillinger is a batsman of some quality. He is an excellent anchor man, and is counted upon for a good baseball season. Baggan showed flashes at times last season, but was prone to quit under adversities. He left here in the fall with a bum ankle and cannot be counted upon as any kind of a certainty. Kennedy, first name Maurice, is a recruit from the Williams college team of near Boston, and is touted as a speedy man. He is also an unknown.

TRYING FOR BIG MATCH.

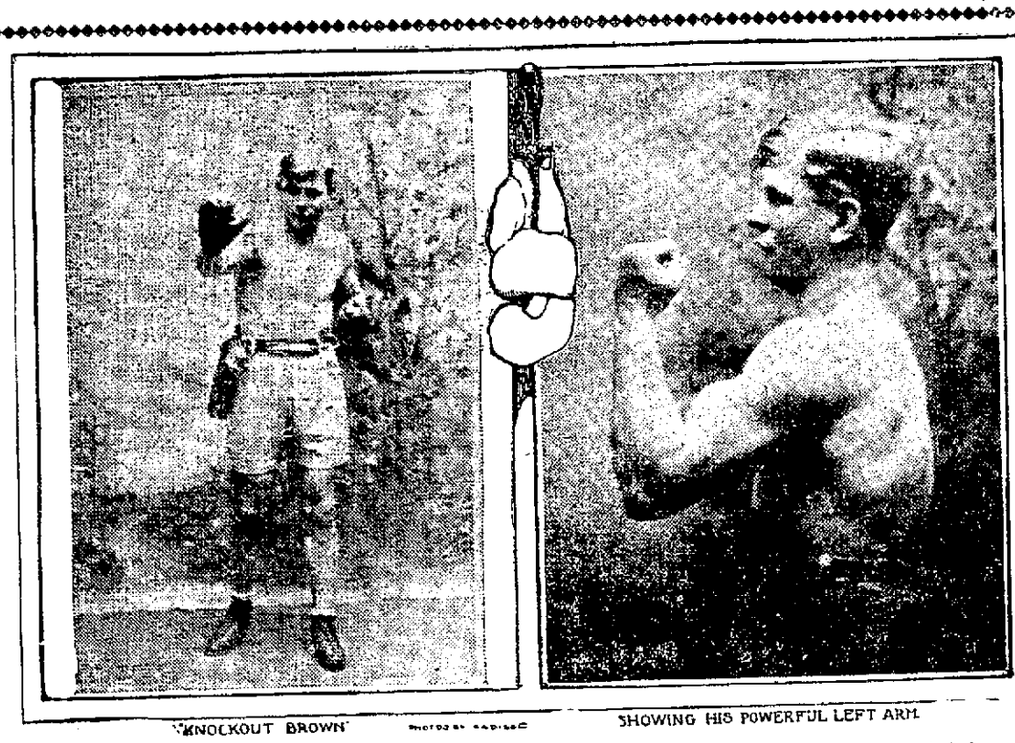

Promoter Wants Al Kauffman to Meet Johnson.

New York, Jan. 28.—The probability that Jack Johnson, the heavyweight champion, would meet Al Kaufman in a six-round bout in Philadelphia some time during February was the absorbing topic of discussion today among followers of pugilism here. Johnson's reported recently expressed desire to appear in Philadelphia if a big guarantee was offered him for a six-round bout is declared to have paved the way to the making of a match with Kaufman as the latter has expressed a desire to meet the champion.

Current reports here have it that Jack O'Brien wired Kaufman to come east and that the Californian is already on his way.

Should Kaufman decline to meet Johnson, Joe Jeanette will be substituted, it is said.

THIS IS AN ASPIRANT FOR HONORS

"KNOCKOUT BROWN" SHOWING HIS POWERFUL LEFT ARM

"Knockout" Brown, the eastern lightweight, is out for the championship, and several good judges predict that the left-handed wonder has a good chance of landing at the top of the heap. "Knockout" is surely a swell puncher.

PARKER LANDS A PAIR FOR STAGS

Ike Butler Wants to Pitch for Grand Rapids if He Can Make It.

OWNER IS ON JOB

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 28.—Catcher Klipp and Outfielder Wickland from the nucleus of the Grand Rapids team, according to Dr. Harley Parker, owner and manager who is here settled down on the job and who has taken up the work of recruiting a club in earnest and who says he has some high-class material in sight, but cannot tell for fear he will lose out in his efforts to close up the pending deals.

He has also announced that Ike Butler wants to try a "come back" in the Central league and that he wants to be a member of the local club. Isaac was a mighty popular flinger here at one time and was one of the men who figured in the winning of the pennant under John Ganzel. He has been working out on the coast and says he will try for his release so he can join the Parker squad.

During his stay in Chicago, Parker framed up a number of deals by which he can pick off some promising recruits at any time, but he is waiting for a conference with Charles Comiskey, president of the White Sox, before he makes his final plans. Comiskey has been hibernating in Florida, but will be back in Chicago next week and the local magnate will then go over his plans with the "Old Roman."

Klipp was obtained from Louisville and President Grayson doesn't want to let him go as he is a young receiver of promise and will keep a string tied to him. Klipp suffered a broken leg during the early part of last season and was unable to play again until late in the fall. Grayson says he is fast and a good sticker for a catcher and believes he would "turn up" any class B league in the country.

Wickland is a center fielder and Parker declares he is a winner. The Stag owner has seen him play in the Chicago City league with the Logan Squares. Clark Griffith advises Parker that he will let him have the Chicagoan and the doctor believes that he will not miss it far by grabbing the youngster. He led the city league in hitting and is as fast as any man in the Central.

"I have received word," said Parker, "that the Central league meeting will be held either next week or the week following, and when that session is over, I will know just how I stand as compared with the other owners and managers. I expect to make a stand for opening the season in the northern cities this season and if successful, we will train here in Grand Rapids. If the old course is followed and the southern cities get the first games I don't know where we will train. There are a great many details which I have been unable to attend to, but now that I am here practically for good, I will devote all of my time to getting baseball affairs in shape."

Pickups From the Sport World

Eddie Gagnier of the Lincoln team, secured last summer by the White Sox, is very well thought of in that city. The Lincoln fans really believe that Gagnier is going to beat Rollie Zeider, Russell Blackburne and Roy Corhan out of the shortstop position.

Ban Johnson may be thinking of annexing the island of Cuba in a baseball way, and his presence visit there means that he is getting a few pointers on how to answer when the island magnates ask for admission to organized baseball next fall.

One of the greatest tributes one pitcher can give another was handed to Walter Johnson by Addie Joss. "If I had an arm and the skill of Johnson and was with a good team," said Addie, "I would agree to pitch for nothing if I could not win at least 70 per cent of my games."

Although the new owners of the Boston club blocked Fred Tenney's first trade, that of Dave Shean to the Giants for Arthur Shafer, Tenney will have full say about such things in the future. Criticism of the owners in preventing the swap caused them to make this announcement.

Cleveland has a white "hope." The way he sizes up he has about as much chance as any of these other contenders, excepting, possibly, Carl Morris. Tommy Barrett is the boy who would uphold Cleveland's dignity in the heavyweight division. He is only 18 years old, but he's mighty big for his age.

Umpire Bill Klem has signed his contract with President Tom Lynch of the National league again for next summer. Many ball players around the country will be sorry to hear it, and it may be that several members of the Cub team will be among that number. Klem winters at Ludewood, N. J., and plays golf for a pastime during the pleasant days.

A baseball statistician has just figured that the spring training of all the major league teams this year will cost about $200,000. Nearly 500 players will begin practice at the major league camps this year. Of this number at least the will have to be dropped when the proper time limit arrives. The remainder will draw about $1,000,000 in salaries, averaging $2,500 to a man.

The Lansing club of the Southern Michigan league, owned and managed by Johnny Morrissey, a former Grand Rapids favorite, has again secured permission to play its week-day games on the state park in the center of the city. There had been some opposition aroused, but Morrissey presented the signatures of 1,500 citizens, many of them prominent in business circles, favoring the lease.

Clark Griffith refuses to waive on Ham Hyatt, Pirate outfielder, until he secures a good utility man for the Red gardens.

Orvie Overall, the giant Cub pitcher, will assist Coach Jimmy Schaeffer of the University of California baseball team to get his men into shape. Orvie will do what he can for his old team before he leaves for the east to take up the burden of his summer work.

Outfielder Jack Thoney will be given another chance to make good in the outfield of the Boston Americans. Thoney has had more than the usual share of tough luck since he tried to break into the limelight as a member of the Red Sox. He broke a leg the first season, threw out his arm the next and finished by seriously injuring his shoulder. Thoney has advised John I. Taylor that he is once more sound as ever.

BERGHOFFS TAKE BEST OF SERIES

White Fruit House Team Drops Two in the Brunswick League.

THE BOWLING SCORES

Members of the Berghoff bowling team cut into the First Brunswick league games last night with a combined line of rolling and went through for a total of 2,765, taking two of the three games and giving the Fruit House five another little push away from the top place in the club standing.

Although Brossard did not get a double he led the team in the matter of averages, while Pannert, the left-hander of the squad, tabbed 212 in his opening game for the best score of the series. Eddie Hecht was second in the average column, with Pannert third. Captain George Stang slipped in his second game, but made a good average, while Tony Haas, usually one of the best bowlers in the company, trailed behind.

Fred Reynolds was thirty points below his usual average and Furman bunched his pins in the second and third games. The Berghoffs did their best work in the first and third and fell off enough in the second to lose out by half a dozen pins. The scores follow:

CALLED JACK O'CONNOR.

It's a good bet Grover Land didn't lose his nerve in the Frankfort, Ky., shooting scrape, for which he is under $500 bond. Jack O'Connor tried to scare Grover in a game at St. Louis. Grover blocked Corridon. Brown third baseman, at the plate. "Why didn't you spike him?" O'Connor roared to Corridon. Then to Land: "If I was a base runner I would cut your legs from knees to ankles."

"You're manager; why don't you run for one of your players?" Land drawled.

Is Slated for a Wheeling Berth

ROY MONTGOMERY.

Out of Wheeling comes the report that Roy Montgomery, for two years the leader of the Zanesville club, has been signed as manager of the Steeles and that Bill Phillips has stepped down and out.

In the first place all the reports that come out of Central league cities is not correct and a few days may develop the fact that Bill is still at the helm and will continue the leader of the Wheeling outfit.

Assuming, however, that Montgomery has signed for the place it looks like a wise move on the part of B. F. Perkins and William W. Erwin, chief owners of the club. Montgomery will give Wheeling a different brand of baseball from what it has been used to.

Bill Phillips is an old head at the game and a wise one. He knows the game and is a good judge of players, but his methods are entirely the reverse of those employed by Montgomery. Phillips takes his place on the bench during the games, directs his men with signals and very seldom gets out on the coaching line.

Montgomery don't do it that way. He stays out on the line all the time he is not at bat or running the bases; he couches in a deep bass and is fighting from the time the umpire calls play until the game is won or lost. He made a good showing at Zanesville. There he had no financial backing and very little support of any kind.

In the face of all this he fought hard and with the remnant of a poor team he went out the latter part of the year and gave the very best of the clubs some tough battles.

The new manager has a pretty fair lot to start building up his club with and the owners will probably give him the money to get some new men if they can be had and if Montgomery is on the job Wheeling will at least have a club that is fighting every step of the route.

EGGSACTING.

Dr. J. S. Black, the English food expert, said in a recent lecture in Duluth:

"The secret of health is two meals a day with an occasional fast. But people won't avail themselves of this superb secret. It is too unpleasant—like the fresh egg.

"A gentleman, after cutting the top off a soft-boiled egg, summoned the waiter and said:

"'Waiter, take this egg back to the kitchen, wring its neck, and grill it for me.'"

LONDON PRINTERS STRIKE.

London, Jan. 28.—The general strike in the job printing trade is already under way and the number of employes involved will be rapidly increased in the coming week when strike notices expire. The men have been offered a working week of 51 hours, but they demand a maximum of 50 hours. The daily newspapers are not affected. Their compositors have agreed each to contribute $2.50 weekly in aid of the strikers.

Will Carry Staff With Him

It is a question whether a major league manager's duties are being lightened or increased by the tendency to increase his number of assistants.

It is only a few years since the manager had to do all the work; direct his team on and off the field, guard the hotel elevators at night to see if the players went to their rooms at or before a specified time, scout for young players, etc., etc.

Year after year more men have been engaged to help out the manager, until now the real up-to-date boss of a ball team has a staff under him in addition to the men who wear the uniforms. From the list of assistants with some of the clubs, one might suspect that the time is coming when all that a manager will have to do is to order his valet around, see that his automobile is kept supplied with gasoline and look pleasant on the bench.

The old saying, though, that "too many cooks spoil the broth," may also be interpreted as meaning that too many assistant managers may add to a manager's labors.

For instance, when the Cleveland team goes south in a few weeks, all of the club's scouts will be ordered to help Manager McGuire whip the players into shape. McGuire being an old catcher, will work with the catchers. Tom Daly, the former Philadelphian, who was a star second baseman for years, will look after the infielders. Bob Gilks, a former pitcher, will have charge of the twirlers, and Sam Kennedy will teach the candidates for outfield places.

With such a staff as this Manager McGuire will have to hire a stenographer to keep the club owners posted on the daily reports of his assistants.

INDIANA BOWLERS ON.

Flenners Hold the High Mark in Tournament.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 28. In the doubles and singles at today's session of the American Bowling congress tournament, South Bend and Indianapolis, Ind.; Wheeling, W. Va.; Cleveland, Louisville, Milwaukee and Chicago bowlers will clash.

The tournament record of 2,921, established by the Flenners of Chicago, will be a mark for the Cosmos of Chicago, 1910 champions, among other prominent fives.

RAIDY SIGNS FOR 1911.

Joe on a Jaunt Through American Association Cities.

Zanesville, O., Jan. 28. Joe Raidy has signed a contract to lead the Potters. The terms had previously been arranged, and only the formality of affixing his name to the agreement remained.

Raidy has left the city for a trip to Columbus, Dayton, Indianapolis and Grand Rapids. It is thought he will be able to pick up a number of men from "Hickey" Quinn at Columbus, or "Jimmy" Burke at Indianapolis. He will return to Zanesville the first of the week.

Comiskey Ready to Meet His Men on the Salary Question

Charles Comiskey, boss of the Chicago White Sox, has it on every club owner in the major leagues in that he is the only owner who is a practical baseball man. Commy was a star first sacker in his day and no players, past or present, made a more careful study of all departments of the game than the Old Roman.

Some may wonder wherein Comiskey has the advantage over other club owners in being a practical baseballer. It is in dealing with the players that Commy has it on the other big guns of the national pastime.

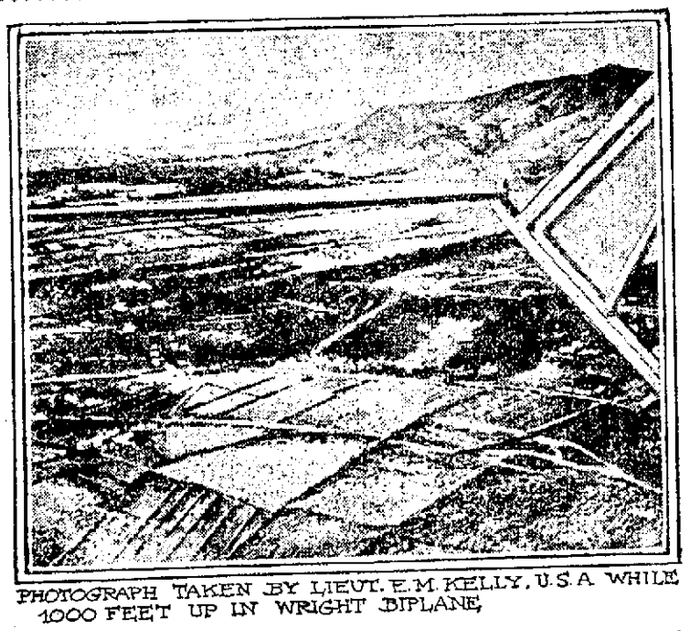

It's a habit with ball players to look for an increase in pay each succeeding year, no matter what article of ball they may have played during the preceding season. As a result the club owners have an argument on their hands.

Poor, indeed, is the diamond athlete who can't produce an alibi for each and every offense committed on the green sward, when these things are brought to his attention by the fellows who handle the long green. Not being practical baseball men they are oftimes compelled to accept the explanation of the players.

It's different with Comiskey. Some players have tried to put something over on him in the days gone by, but they all regretted their attempts. Comiskey is one of the regulars at all the games played in Chicago. He never misses an inning. He pays particular attention to the miscues of the head more than those of the hands and feet of the men whom he employs, and any time they approach him with a request for a boost in pay he cuts loose with a line of misplays that fairly makes the players' heads swim. He does not seem to forget anything—at least nothing of importance.

Comiskey isn't a hard taskmaster. He is willing to reward the men who earn an increase in pay. In fact they get boosts without the asking. But woe be unto the man who tries to put one over on him.

BUSINESS SLACK, HE FORGED NAMES

Warrant Sworn Out for Arrest of Magazine Agent Who Worked Columbia City People.

Columbia City, Ind., Jan. 28.—Sheriff H. A. Schumaker left Friday for Hammond having in his possession a warrant calling for the arrest of John M. Carlisle, a crew agent for the David O. Cook Publishing company, of Elgin, Ill., who is wanted here on a charge of forging installment contracts for which he received a commission. Carlisle was in this city some time last October soliciting the sale of magazines for the above named company, the same to be paid on the installment plan of 25 cents per week. From all appearances business was very slack in this field, and before leaving he forged the names of several local people to his contracts, namely, Jacob Garber, H. J. Pence, Miss Viola Reynolds and Mrs. A. T. Steele, which he sent into the company and received his commission on the sales. The magazines were sent out by the company, but as the weeks rolled by the company received no remittances from this locality on the contracts they held, they became suspicious and Thursday sent into this territory their general agent, Edward J. Costello, who called upon the above named people and there first discovered that they had never ordered the magazine and had never signed the contract for the same and that their names were forgeries pure and simple. Mr. Costello went immediately to the office of Deputy Sheriff Porterfield and there laid all of the evidence before him, and in consequence an affidavit was made out and duly signed by Mr. Costello and the warrant placed in the hands of Sheriff Schumaker.

ALFREY SHOT HIS WIFE.

And Then He Turned the Gun on Himself.

Logansport, Ind., Jan. 28.—Crazed by his wife's alleged infidelity, and constant brooding over the thought, John Alfrey, age twenty-seven, an employe at the Panhandle freight offices, yesterday afternoon shot and seriously wounded his wife, and turning the gun on himself, inflicted two wounds in his temple that will probably result fatally. The shooting took place at 12:10 o'clock, at the rooms occupied by the Alfreys at the home of Mrs. J. C. Kelso at 209 Wheatland avenue. The shooting was the climax of several months' estrangment and quarreling between the couple. Mrs. Frank Kennedy mother of the woman, was in the room when the shooting took place.

HUSBAND WAS BRUTAL.

Logansport, Ind., Jan. 28.—Myrtle M. Brunner, in a complaint for divorce she has filed against Charles H. Brunner, claims that he cursed, beat and threatened her life; that once he kept their child in a saloon until midnight, and told him that he had bought a gun and was going to kill mamma. She says that he drank to excess and that she had to work to support herself and two children. Brunner is a carpenter. She wants the custody of the children and $1,000 alimony.

CAPS AND GOWNS ABOLISHED.

Roanoke, Ind., Jan. 28.—Superintendent Orville Craig, of the Roanoke schools, is going to do away with caps and gowns in the high school commencements in Roanoke and is thinking of abolishing the eighth grade commencements. Mr. Craig feels that they are needless features of the school work, adding up expense and worry to pupils and parents.

MEDAL CONTEST AT DIXON CHURCH

Temperance Will Be the Themes of the Young People Participating in Event.

Monroeville, Ind., Jan. 28.—A literary contest for the prize of a silver medal will be held Thursday evening of next week at the Dixon M. E. church, the contestants and their theses being:

Recitation—"He Never Blamed the Booze" ..... Hattie Dewert
Recitation—"Is Intemperance Nothing to Me?" ..... Ura Geddis
Recitation—"The Land and the Map" ..... Durward Geddes
Recitation—"Standing Treat"..... Inez Marquardt
Recitation—"Shall We Be Left Faithful?" ..... Cara Savlee
Recitation—"Praying for Papa"..... Flossie Mencer
Recitation—"Who Killed Joe's Baby"

Other participants on the program, but not competing for the prize, will be Gladys Emery, Grace Youse and a quartet. Rev. Mr. Reeves will conduct the devotional services. The meeting promises to be largely attended.

SALOONS AT LOGANSPORT.

Logansport, Ind., Jan. 28.—Ten applications have been filed for license to operate saloons in this county, and the board of commissioners will consider them at their next meeting next week. The rush is due to the proposed passage of a high license law. Those granted license now will hold them for a year at the same rate. Applications have been made by Garfield Chilicote, Frank McGrath, E. E. Howard, Martin McHale, Frank Downey, William Saunders, Lee Henderson, Emil Foersch, Samuel DeHaven and Frank Keinly.

DEATH WAS VERY SUDDEN.

Huntington, Ind., Jan. 28.—Feeling an attack of heart trouble coming on while she was at church last evening, Mrs. John Gusman, of Markle, hastened at once to her home where she died shortly after arrival of her husband and son from lodge. She had gotten as far as the dining room at her home when she was overcome and fell to the floor. Unable to help herself she lay there and when the men arrived was unconscious. She was carried to her bed and although the physician who was summoned did all in his power she died in a very short time.

IS CRIPPLED FOR LIFE.

Huntington, Ind., Jan. 28.—Mrs. York, aged 74, of Roanoke, sustained injuries in a fall down stairs yesterday which will maim her for life. There were severe injuries to her left hip and the main nerve in the leg was ruptured, so that she has no use of it. Owing to her age, such injuries seldom mend and she will doubtless be a cripple the rest of her life and the shock of the accident may prove fatal. She was at her home and in going down stairs early in the morning lost her balance and fell to the bottom.

TAX LIST IS SMALL.

Portland, Ind., Jan. 28.—The list of lands and town lots returned delinquent by the county treasurer for the non-payment of taxes for the year 1909 and previous years and remaining delinquent December 31, 1910, are now being advertised for sale by County Auditor Smith. The list this year includes less than half of the number advertised for sale one year ago, there being only 127 properties.

LIBRARY HAS 750 BOOKS.

Kendallville, Ind., Jan. 28.—The Kendallville public library already has 750 books as the result of the donation from the state and the book shower held Thursday. The state donated 250 volumes and 500 more were received from the citizens of Kendallville at the shower.

PROVISIONS IN FULL OF NEW PROCTOR OPTION BILL SOON TO BECOME A LAW

The new option measure which has passed both the senate and house will become a law in full force and effect as soon as the governor attaches his signature, probably on Monday.

According to the plank in the democratic state platform and the recommendation of Governor Marshall in his message to the general assembly, the bill amending the county option law and providing the units of incorporated city, township not containing an incorporated city, and the territory embraced within a township, but exclusive of an incorporated city, was drafted and introduced in the senate on Jan. 10, on the first roll call for bills, as senate bill No. 32, by Senator Robert E. Proctor, of Elkhart. It was referred to the committee on public morals. On Jan. 16 the bill was read the first time and then referred to the committee on elections. The bill finally passed the senate on Jan. 24 by a vote of 29 to 21. The engrossed senate bill was then sent to the house, where it finally was passed Jan. 26 by a vote of 60 to 39.

Under the provisions of the bill for counties which have been voted "dry" under the county option law to become "wet" automatically upon the expiration of the period of two years from the date of the election for which they were voted "dry," seven counties in Indiana now "dry" will be "wet" as soon as the governor signs the bill, with the exception of such portions as may be under restriction by the Nicholson and Moore laws, neither of these laws being repealed in any section by the provisions of the new law. The seven counties are: Wabash, Lawrence, Pike, Decatur, Hamilton, Putnam and Tipton. The two-year period in Randolph county expires Jan. 29. Huntington, Parke and Switzerland counties become wet Feb. 3; Clinton, Feb. 9; Adams, Daviess, Grant, Howard and Newton, Feb. 23; Morgan, Feb. 24; Fayette and Fountain, Feb. 25, and Carroll and Gibson, Feb. 26. Seventeen more will follow in March. All but eight of the original counties voted "dry" will be back in the "wet" class by the end of the year.

The Proctor bill in full follows:

A bill for an act to amend Secs. one (1), two (2), three (3), four (4), five (5), six (6), seven (7), nine (9), ten (10), eleven (11), and twelve (12) of an act to better regulate, restrict and control the sale of intoxicating liquors and providing for local option election, approved Sept. 26, 1908.

Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Indiana, That Sec. one (1) of an act entitled "An act to better regulate, restrict and control the sale of intoxicating liquors and providing for local option elections," approved Sept. 26, 1908, be amended to read as follows:

Sec. 1. That whenever a petition has been signed and filed with the county auditor, as hereinafter provided, praying the board of county commissioners of any county for the privilege of determining by ballot whether the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage shall be prohibited within the limits of any incorporated city in said county, or in any township in said county not containing an incorporated city, or the territory embraced within any township in said county outside of and exclusive of the territorial limits of all incorporated cities in such township, such board of commissioners, at its next regular session, shall order a special election to be held in the territory designated in such petition in not less than twenty (20) nor more than thirty (30) days thereafter. Such elections shall be held at the usual places for holding general elections, and ten days' notice thereof shall be given in the same manner now provided by law for notice of general elections.

Sec. 2. That section two (2) of the above entitled act be amended to read as follows:

Sec. 2. Such petition shall be addressed to, and filed with, the board of commissioners of the county in which the territory, or the greater part thereof, in which said election is sought to be held, is situated. The form of petition shall be substantially as follows:

PETITION FOR LOCAL OPTION ELECTION.

To the Board of Commissioners of the County of ———

We the undersigned legal voters of (designate the territory for which election is petitioned) ——— County, state of Indiana, would respectfully petition that an election be held to determine whether the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage shall be prohibited in said (designating the territory for which said election is petitioned).

Name.....Address.....

No person shall be entitled to sign such petition except he be a bona fide legal voter in the territory in which such election is sought to be held. The county auditor upon receipt of such petition shall immediately file the same in his office.

Sec. 3. That Sec. (3) three of the above entitled act be amended to read as follows:

Sec. 3. The petition for an election provided for in Sec. 1 of this act shall be deemed sufficient, and the commissioners shall order such an election when the petition is signed by a number of the qualified electors of the territory in which such election is petitioned for equal to not less than 20 per cent of the aggregate vote cast in the territory in which such election is sought to be held for secretary of state at the last general election, which fact shall be verified by affidavit in writing by one or more of the petitioners who are freeholders. After said petition is filed, no voter shall be permitted to sign his name thereto, or to withdraw his name therefrom. In any indictment, affidavit or information for selling intoxicating liquors as a beverage without license in such territory, it shall not be necessary to set forth the facts showing that the required number of voters in such territory petitioned for the election, and that the election was held, or that a majority voted in favor of prohibiting the sale as herein provided, but it shall be sufficient to allege that the act complained of was then and there prohibited and unlawful.

Sec. 4. That Sec. four (4) of the above entitled act be amended to read as follows:

Sec. 4. The ballots in a special election held under the provisions of this act shall be in the following form:

(YES) (NO) Shall the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage be prohibited (here inserting the particular territory in which such election is held)?

All ballots marked with a cross in the square containing the word "Yes" shall be counted in favor of prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage in such territory, and all ballots marked with a cross in the square containing the word "No" shall be counted opposed to prohibiting such sales therein.

Sec. 5. That Sec. 5 of the above entitled act be amended to read as follows:

Sec. 5. The board of election commissioners for said election, held under this act, shall consist of the county auditor and two resident freeholders of the territory in which such election is to be held, one known to be in favor of prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage in such particular territory, and one opposed to prohibiting such sale therein, both to be appointed by the board of commissioners of such county at the time of ordering said election. Any two members of such commission shall have full power to act in all matters enjoined upon such commission by this act. Said election commissioners shall prepare and distribute the ballots, and shall on the day after said election, at 10 o'clock a. m., meet at the auditor's office in the court house of said county and canvass the returns of said election and certify the result to the board of commissioners of said county.

Sec. 6. That section six (6) of the above entitled act be amended to read as follows:

Sec. 6. The board of commissioners, when possible, shall appoint on the election board of each precinct, one judge and one clerk to be in favor of prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage in the territory in which such election is to be held and one judge and one clerk opposed to prohibiting such sale therein.

Sec. 7. That section seven (7) of the above entitled act be amended to read as follows:

Sec. 7. The certificate of said election commissioners shall be filed with the auditor of said county not later than five days after said election, and the board of commissioners of said county shall make and enter an order of the next regular session declaring the result of such an election. If a majority of the legal votes cast at said election shall be in favor of prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage in the territory in which said election was held under this act, it shall thereafter be unlawful for said commissioners or any court to grant a license to any person for the sale of intoxicating liquors in such territory, and the board of commissioners thereafter shall have no power or jurisdiction to hear or consider applications for license to sell intoxicating liquors nor to grant such license to any person in such territory until at a subsequent election held under this act a majority of the legal voters of such territory, voting at such subsequent election, shall vote against prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage.

Sec. 8. That section (9) of the above entitled act be amended to read as follows:

Sec. 9. If a majority of the legal votes cast at said election shall be in favor of prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage in such territory, then, after ninety days from the date of holding said election, all licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors granted in said territory after the passage of this act, shall be null and void, and the holder thereof shall be liable for any sale of liquors made by him thereafter, the same as if a license had never been issued to him. If the holder of such void license shall surrender the same within ninety days from the date of holding said election, the county, town or city issuing said license shall refund to the holder an amount proportionate with the unexpired time for which the license fee shall have been paid: Provided, however, that no license issued prior to the passage of this act shall be terminated by virtue of this act or any vote thereunder.

Sec. 9. That section ten (10) of the above entitled act be amended to read as follows:

Sec. 10. If a majority of the legal votes cast in any territory at an election held under the provisions of this act shall be against prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage in such territory, such vote shall not effect, change or alter the legal effect of any order, judgment, ordinance, remonstrance or action making it unlawful for the board of commissioners, or any city or town, to grant a license for the sale of intoxicating liquors in any particular township, city ward, residence district, or to any person, but such order, judgment, remonstrance, or ordinance shall remain in full force and effect according to the provisions of the statute under which said remonstrance was filed, or such ordinance enacted. And in such case the legal voters of any township or ward may remonstrate against the granting of a license to sell intoxicating liquors as now provided by law the same as if no election had been held.

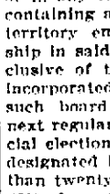

Sec. 10. That section eleven (11) of the above entitled act be amended to read as follows:

Sec. 11. In all elections hereunder, and in all matters and proceedings not herein otherwise specified, all the provisions, including penalties, of the general election laws of the state shall apply as far as the same are applicable. When an election is held under the provisions of this act in any incorporated city all expenses of such election shall be paid by such incorporated city; when an election is held under the provisions of this act in any township outside of any incorporated city, or cities, therein, all expenses of such election shall be paid by such township. The auditor of the county in which the petition for such election was filed shall file with the clerk or controller of such incorporated city, or with the township trustee of such township, as the case may be, an itemized statement of the expenses of such election, setting forth the names of each person to whom the same are payable, and such expenses shall be paid out of the general fund of such city or township, as the case may be, without any specific appropriation being made therefor.

Sec. 11. That section twelve (12) of the above entitled act be amended to read as follows:

Sec. 12. Nothing contained in the provisions of this act shall affect, amend, repeal or alter in any way the act entitled "An act to better regulate and restrict the sale of intoxicating, spirituous, vinous and malt liquors, providing penalties for the violation of the same, providing for the enforcement thereof, and providing for remonstrance against the granting of license for the sale of the same, and conferring jurisdiction upon police courts and justices of the peace in cases of violation of the provisions of this act and other laws of the state on the subject of selling intoxicating liquors," approved March 11, 1895, commonly known as "The Nicholson Law," nor the act to amend Sec. 9 of the above entitled act approved Feb. 15, 1895, commonly known as "The Moore Remonstrance Law," nor any law or ordinance which prohibits throughout any township, ward or residence district the sale of intoxicating liquors, but this act shall be deemed additional and supplemental thereto. Nothing in this act shall in any manner affect any remonstrance which has already been filed, or order made thereon, against the granting of license to sell intoxicating liquors in any ward or township in this state, or against any particular applicant for license, nor shall this act in any manner affect the result of the vote of any county in this state obtained at any election held prior to Jan. 1, 1911, pursuant to the provisions of the act of which this is amendatory: Provided, That the result of the vote of any such election in any county shall be effective and operative for the period of two years only from the date of such election.

Sec. 12. Whereas, an emergency exists for this act, the same shall be in full force from and after its passage.

Hermits Club to Present Play by Amateur Writer and Cast of Members.

The members of the Hermits club, who have their clubhome in the Rice bungalow, are busy these days rehearsing for a play they are to give the last of February in the Majestic theater. Harris Nichols wrote the play which is called "Brooks at Yale," and takes the title part in the cast. Miss Leah Cohen is coaching the company which is composed of members of the club and a number of High school girls. The story of the play concerns a college youth and has been written especially for the Hermits. There are twenty-one characters besides the members of a boat crew and several college boys. The young people who are to form the cast consists of Harris Nicholls, George Cabler, Lee Johns, Carl Rippe, Chester Hinton, Paul Scheiman, Clarence Brown, William Hunter, Earl Rogers, Howard Wilkens, Clarence Hollister, Byron Young, Marjorie Kilgore, Martha Vail, Sally Cabler, Geneva Rogers, Dorothy Kilgore, Lena Rush, Myrtle Nicholls, Gertrude Rippe, Hazel Bevelheimer, who each has a part. In the boat crew are Edward Doehrman, Edward Schmidt, Robert Will, Frank Malone, Miles Hoopengardner, Herbert Schmoe, Elmer Gerhardt. College boys are Ralph Root, Walter Kratzsch, Harry Bolan, Alvin Bohne, Albert Geye, Paul Stonecifer, Russell Bolan, Ralph Markey, Wayne Harrod, Jerome Wersteln, Harrold Beuret, Earl Laughlin, Arthur Irmscher, Victor Fitch, Don O'Rourke, Edward Slagle and Arthur Loeffler.

Why Do Men Fail?

¶ THE SUPREME PROBLEM OF LIFE for you is, how to get money in sufficient quantity to make you independent before your hair turns gray and your eyes grow dim.

¶ The struggle for money is "the struggle for existence" and a man can scarcely hope to be victorious therein except in the days of his strength and prime.

¶ We are all fighting for money (because money means nearly all that's worth while) but few there be who attain it.

¶ Now why should that be so? Why are there so many failures? The answer is simple: The majority are failures because they do not think right! They are in a state of discord rather than harmony with the natural Laws that govern money-making and the creation of wealth.

¶ Is that your case? Is your mind negative? If so you must seek immediate remedy. You must remove the blight of wrong thinking; and for that purpose we strongly recommend to your attention a splendid little book, entitled

"THE LAW OF FINANCIAL SUCCESS"

¶ It is as full of good things as an egg is full of nutriment. It is the essence of money-making boiled down for busy people.

¶ Send for it at once. It only costs ten cents and it will make a new man of you. It will teach you how to be a winner—how to escape the hell of poverty—the worst of all hells.

¶ We honestly declare it is worth no end of money to any man who is desirous of properly directing the forces within him for his own enrichment.

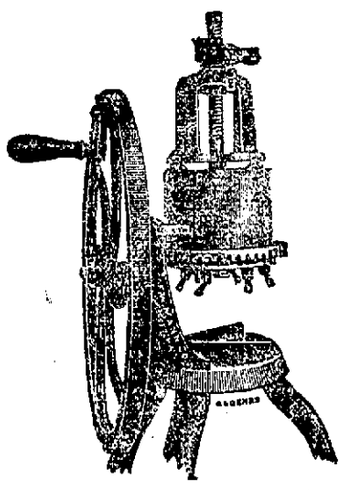

¶ If you have the strength and determination to be a winner, get this book. Get it at once. Follow our advice. Don't put off till tomorrow what you should do today. Fill in the coupon and the book is yours by the next mail, and it may be the making of you. If you don't like it your money will be returned; you run no risk. Special Paper Bound Edition of 16 chapters, 104 pages, only 10 cents. Over 150,000 copies sold. ¶ Don't miss the tide that leads to Fortune.

"The Laying Hen is the Paying Hen"

MANN'S GREEN BONE AND VEGETABLE CUTTER

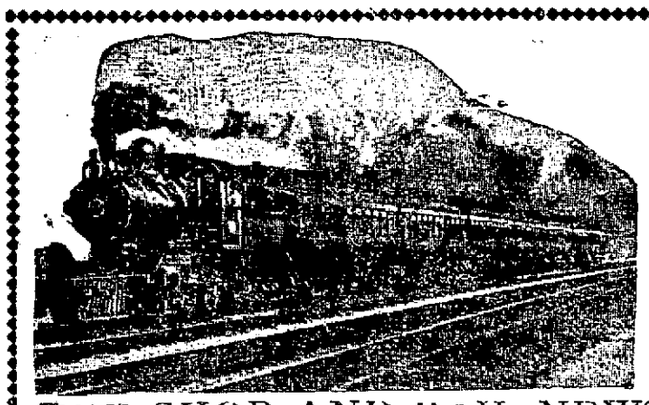

The poultry raiser wants eggs and wants them when, they are worth the most. Green Bone and Raw Meat produce them. There is no doubt about that. Experience proves it—science shows why.

If you give your hens a half a chance by feeding them right, they couldn't keep from laying if they wanted to.

The Mann Bone Cutter then, becomes a matter of investment, and one that you cannot afford to treat lightly, as it will pay for itself in a little while, just as sure as you invest in it and use it.

This is a good season to test our statement. Come and try it.

LOST ARM AND LEG AND DIED

Earl Roby, Vandalia Brakeman, Fatally Hurt at Butler.

BROUGHT TO ST. JOSEPH HOSPITAL

Expired Before Surgical Operation is Performed.

Earl Roby, a Vandalia brakeman, fell under a car while assisting in switching at Butler, Ind., last evening and had his left arm and left leg crushed off. He was picked up, placed on a Wabash train and brought here and taken to St. Joseph hospital at 9:30 o'clock and an effort was made to amputate the limbs, but he was so enfeebled by the shock and loss of blood that the efforts to save his life proved fruitless and he died shortly after midnight. The parents of the young man, who reside on a farm near Logansport, were notified and will be here to get the remains and take them home. The remains were taken to the undertaking parlors of Schone & Ankenbruck and prepared for shipment to the home of the parents.

FIRE LOSSES DECREASED.

Pennsylvania Got Through 1910 With Little of Them.

The annual report of the insurance department of the Pennsylvania railroad system, issued today, shows that the company's losses by fire in 1910 were $280,097, as compared to $402,615, in 1909—a reduction of almost a third.

In the past few years the Pennsylvania has redoubled its efforts to prevent fires along its lines. Many corps of employes have been trained in fire fighting, until today the company's own organization of firemen extends over the entire system, in every station, round house and shop. In addition yard locomotives have been equipped for fire fighting service in congested districts.

That the company's methods are proving efficacious is indicated by the fact that in 1910 there were 379 fires on company property extinguished with the railroad's fire apparatus and by the company's own employes, with only a loss of about $18,000. In 1909 there were 321 fires extinguished by company apparatus and employes and the loss was approximately $20,000.

The railroad insurance department is to issue a circular giving the causes of all fires on the Pennsylvania system, east and west of Pittsburg, in 1910, in order that employes may have their attention called to the number of fires occurring from preventable causes. This circular will show that in all there were 1,009 fires on the system last year and the loss from them was only $280,097.71, an exceedingly small loss as the value of the property on which they occurred was more than $250,000,000.

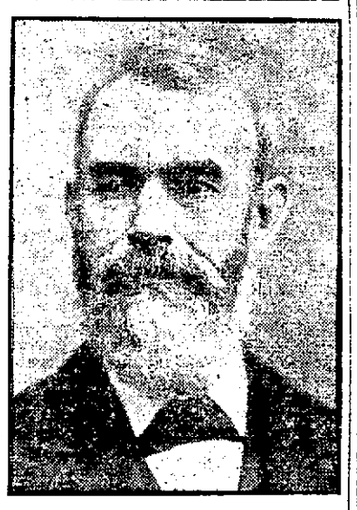

The insurance department's circular will show that thirty-six fires, entailing a loss of $17,000, started on adjacent property. Seven fires were attributed to tramps, while twelve fires, with a loss to the company of $38,950, resulted from careless handling of lighted cigars, cigarettes and pipes. Sixteen fires, with a loss of $16,750, were of incendiary origin.

To increase the efficiency of its fire fighters and their apparatus, the Pennsylvania management recently made elaborate tests of the company's high pressure water systems at various points; all shops and buildings are being thoroughly inspected for the new year and nothing is to be left undone to decrease still further the loss to the company from fire in 1911.

IN SHOPS THIRTY-NINE YEARS.

Anthony Gerard Passes to the Pension List Tuesday.

The 6 o'clock whistle next Tuesday evening will not only announce the arrival of the close of working hours to employes in the Pennsylvania blacksmith shop, but it will also announce

ANTHONY GERARD,
Pennsylvania Employe, Who Has Attained His 70th Year and Must Retire.

the end of active duties in that department of one of their number, Anthony Gerard. That gentleman has attained his seventieth year and, although vigorous and apparently as strong as ever, he is disqualified for further work and must pass to the pension list. His birth anniversary was on New Year's day and as the rules permit an employe to continue at his work until the beginning of the month following that on which his birthday came, Mr. Gerard is working as usual until the close of January. He was born in the Province of Quebec and spent his early days on a farm there. Thence he went to Montreal to take employment in the freight department of the Grand Trunk railroad. He came to Fort Wayne May 1, 1872, and two weeks later—on May 16—took employment in the Pennsylvania blacksmith shop. He has been continuously employed in that department since and, being industrious and economical, has saved sufficient of his earnings to buy a lot and erect a cozy home at the corner of Lillie and Hayden streets and has a little "for a rainy day" besides. Mr. Gerard worked a little over thirty-eight years and eight months for the company and in all that time lost but few days by sickness or other cause.

LEGISLATIVE BOARD MEETS.

President L. D. Redding, of the Fort Wayne Federation of Labor, left this morning for Indianapolis, where he will attend a meeting of the state federation legislative board tomorrow and Monday. Mr. Redding will return Monday night and leave Tuesday for Detroit, where he will attend a mass meeting of the union labor leaders to discuss a proposed educational campaign and other features calculated to help the masses. At this meeting, which will be held Friday night, will be Samuel Gompers and a number of the heads of the international bodies of different crafts will be present and deliver addresses.

WABASH MAKES A GOOD START.

In reporting an increase of $23,075 in the third week of January, the Wabash shows that it has made a good start on the new year. It has been anticipated that in making comparisons of 1911 earnings with those of 1910, the increases would be much smaller than those of 1910, which were compared with the previous year. These expectations are being met in some instances, but Wabash appears to be keeping up its record. The latest report shows that Wabash earnings from July 1, 1910, to January 21, 1911, increased by $824,689.

PRESSMEN'S NEW OFFICERS.

The local union of the Pressmen has elected the following officers to serve during 1911: Kemp Baker, president; Walter Haslup, vice president; Mart Rowan, recording secretary; Dan Steger, secretary-treasurer; Philip Weick, sergeant at arms, and Walter Schmidt, journal correspondent. The reports of the officers showed that the past year had been successful and that during it the wages of the pressmen had been materially increased and the union had received some new members. Following the election was a social session.

ENGINEER KELKER AT WORK.

Engineer William C. Kelker, of the G. R. & I., has resumed his run in the passenger service, after an absence of nine weeks on account of an affection of the eyes. The trouble originated through a cinder in the eye, which poisoned it, and for awhile it seemed that his sight was going to be permanently affected.

THREE MEN INJURED

Conductor Frank Boyer, Engineer Shilling and Brakeman Edward Hammond, of the Wabash, were injured Thursday, when the packing of the throttle blew out as they were in the cab of the engine. Conductor Boyer was most painfully scalded, but the injuries of the others are not serious. The train had stopped at a way station and Conductor Boyer climbed into the cab, as it started, and was reading his order when the accident happened. He is at the Peru hospital.

HEARS OF RELATIVE'S DEATH.

Last night Foreman P. F. Landy, of the Pennsylvania round house, was startled by a message from Richmond, stating that Mrs. Landy's father, Thomas McCarthy, had died suddenly in his home in that city. He was seventy-nine years old and had lived all his life in Richmond, where he was well known and held in the highest regard by the residents. Mr. and Mrs. Landy left for Richmond this afternoon and will remain there until after the funeral. Mr. McCarthy visited Fort Wayne many times since his daughter came here to reside and he is known by many of our citizens.

REPAIRED FOURTEEN ENGINES.

The output of repaired engines from the Pennsylvania erecting shop during the week just closing included the following, which received general repairs: Nos. 7173, 7364, 7497, 7587, 9099, 9631, 9046 9672 9082, 9371, 9286, 9941, 9944 and 2602. The latter engine, which belongs to the Panhandle, has been in service on the G. R. & I. several months.

CLOSED ON ACCOUNT SMALLPOX.

The local Pennsylvania and G. R. & I. ticket agents have been instructed to discontinue the sale of tickets to Pelston, Mich. The notice also instructs conductors and engineers not to stop their trains in that village until further notice. The occasion for this is the prevalence at Pelston of smallpox. The little town has only a few residents and half of them are sick or liable to get sick with smallpox.

LOWER PULLMAN RATES.

The change in sleeping car rates, which becomes effective February 1, includes a cut of 20 per cent. in the upper berth rate, while the prices for lower berths will be from $1.75 to $2.25, which is about the same as the present rate.

FIRST TRIP IN THREE MONTHS.

Passenger Engineer Michael Laughlin made his first trip over the west end of the Pennsylvania in three months last night when he took train No. 9 to Chicago and brought back train No. 18. Engineer Laughlin was badly scalded last October, when a pipe burst in the cab of his engine.

SHOPS CLOSED TODAY.

The appropriation for expenses at the Wabash shops for the month of January are nearly exhausted and to keep within bounds the works were not in operation today and only a very few men were at work. They will run as usual Monday, however.

FIREMAN SUSTAINS INJURY.

E. P. Werder, a Pennsylvania fireman, sustained injuries yesterday which have put him on the disability list for awhile. He fell and sprained his back.

EAST ON BUSINESS.

R. J. Fisher, of the Bass Foundry and Machine company, left today on a business trip for the company. He will visit New York and some of the other big cities.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

J. N. Robertson, general foreman of the Wabash shops at St. Thomas, and for a year or two in a similar position in Fort Wayne, has returned to his home after being at St. Louis two or three days on business for the company.

Ed Kelker and M. Koehl, of the Pennsylvania air brake shop, are sick and off duty.

After working two months H. E. Sutton has resigned a position at the Pennsylvania erecting shop.

Yard Conductor Dennis Hayes, of the Wabash, went to Detroit this morning to spend a few days with his brother-in-law.

Superintendent Kennedy, of the Bowser works, has gone to Chicago to take a look at the auto show and attend to some business for the company.

T. W. Demarest, superintendent of motive power of the Pennsylvania, is in Altoona on business for the company. He will return home Monday night.

C. L. Bartholome, signal supervisor of the Pennsylvania, was at his office this morning for the first time in two or three days, having been sick with the grip.

F. C. Feuchter is a new hammer operator at the Pennsylvania blacksmith shop. He was formerly employed at the factory of Knott-Van-Arnam.

Mrs. S. H. Center, wife of the boiler foreman at the Pennsylvania round house, is very ill with gall stones and it is feared she may have to submit to a surgical operation.

Engine 1878, which had been in service on this division of the Wabash for some months, has been returned to the Buffalo division. Engine 2083, just rebuilt, has been turned out of the Wabash shops in this city.

William Donnell, the veteran employe in the polishing room at the Electric works, called at the factory this morning to see the boys and to tell them that he would be ready for work some time in February. Mr. Donnell was taken sick November 9 and has been unable to work since.

An ordinance passed by the Cleveland city council nearly thirty years ago, will be dug up and attempt made to force the carrying out of the provisions, which require the Nickel Plate railroad to separate grades at Kingsman road at its own expense whenever the order is issued by the city.

wounded. General Lee Christmas, chief aid of the provisional president of Honduras, is tonight in control of the town, and his soldiers are guarding those streets not occupied by American and British bluejackets.

The Honduran government troops in the eastern trenches were the first to give battle when General Christmas advanced from his camp, two miles away, soon after break of day. The rebel leader immediately brought his superior machine guns into play, and, though General Guerrero, governor of the district was fairly well equipped, his army could not bear the sweep of shot trained upon them with fatal effect by the experienced American gunners in the insurgent ranks.

Commander Davis, in command of the United States battleship Tacoma, is looking out for the interest of Americans during the revolution.

WILL SEND TO LEGISLATORS.

Resolutions That Were Passed by the Farmers' Club.

A mass meeting of the members of the Farmers' Home Market clubs of Allen county was held this afternoon at thhe assembly room in the courthouse and arrangements were perfected for sending to the different farmers' organizations in the county copies of the resolutions passed at the meeting of the club two weeks ago protesting against the appointment of a state highway commission in Indiana. These resolutions are sent to these societies for the purpose of getting the signatures of farmers attached. They will then be collected and sent to the state legislature at Indianapolis. Copies of the resolutions will also be sent to each member of the legislature.

OUR TEMPERANCE DEPARTMENT

Does Deviltry Pay?

(Christian Safeguard.)

Present profit often entails future loss. Men claim the privilege of making money as they please, but often their profits are offset by tenfold loss which other people must meet. The cost of the drunkard's cups comes out of the sober man's pocket.

A western secular journal says that, "The first saloon licensed by their board of county commissioners, nearly nine yearsago, paid $50 for that privilege. It met a bitter opposition from the friends of temperance and good order, but the rum-men were alert, and by presenting a bogus petition asking for it the thing was granted, and fifty dollars are supposed to have gone into the treasury.

"A change at once came over our town. Drunken men began to be seen upon our streets. Men who before paid their bills regularly, now paid so much for rum that their bills to honest tradesmen had to go unpaid.

"The air of that saloon, night and day, was made black with profanity, vulgarity and rum. Our young men went there and stayed until the hours of midnight. What effect it had on them will never be written.

"A poor hard-working settler down on the river, who had opened up a farm, and up to that time maintained his family, began to visit the saloon and to neglet his home. One morning he was found outside, with his head fatally crushed by a drunken companion. A long and tedious series of trials followed, costing the county over one thousand dollars, resulting in sending the murderer to prisgn for fourteen years, and breaking up his family.

"The murdered man's widow made an attempt to keep her family together on the farm, and to furnish them with food, but in two or three years she died—no doubt from privation. A daughter soon followed her mother, from the same cause, then the ragged children were sent to their friends in Ohio, at the expense of the county.

"These facts are given from my knowledge of them, and just as they are. Now, let us see how this transaction paid:

The county got for license	$ 50
Paid to keep murderer fourteen years, say $200 per year	2,800
Paid tax to convict murderer	1,000
Sending children to Ohio, say	75
Industry of six children, lost to the state ten years, at $100 per year	6,000
Total expense	$9,925
Deduct license	50
Loss by transaction	$9,875

"So much for this saloon speculation. This nine thousand eight hundred and seventy-five dollars must come out of the pockets of honest, hard-working men, as the offset to the profit made by a saloon keeper on the drinks needful to craze a man and make him a murderer. And this is only one item in an endless account of loss without profit, which stands against the gains of those who engage in this deadly occupation. They do it to support themselves, but others have to support their victims, and it would be more profitable for community at large, to support every liquor dealer and his family, in some boarding-house, hotel, penitentiary, or state prison, than to have them forage about as they do, and grow fat upon the vices, the weaknesses and the crimes that curse the land."

Does Anybody Care?

We will call him Jim, for I do not remember his name. He had lost all respectability and was a common gutter drunkard. His family had disowned him and would not recognize him when they met him. Occasionally he would get a job at the stables where Dr. Davis kept his horses. One morning the doctor laid his hand on his shoulder and said:

"Jim, I wish you would give up the drink."

There was something very like a quiver in the man's lips as he answered: "If I thought you cared I would; but there is great gulf between you and me."

"Have I made any gulf, Jim? Think a moment before you answer."

"No you haven't."

"If you had been a millionaire, could I have treated you more like a gentleman?"

"No, you couldn't."

"I do care, Jim."

"Say it again, won't you?"

"I do care, Jim," with tender little emphasis on the Jim.

"Dr. Davis, I'll never touch another drop of liquor as long as I live. Here's my hand on it."

That was fifteen years ago, and "Jim" is today the respectable and respected Mr. ——. Saved by a kind word. Will you make an effort this week to win someone by kindness?—Christian Advocate.

Cost of Drink.

I knew a prominent New York lady who gave a great reception to a new pastor from across the water—four or five hundred people being present. Many of the young men, Sunday school teachers, etc., became so boisterous that the hostess was greatly mortified, and resolved never again to offer wine at her public entertainments. A prominent New York merchant, originally an Englishman, never sat down to table without his wine and brandy, and his three sons, in consequence, all grew up drunkards. One became so abandoned that his father cast him out of the house. At last some temperance people brought about his reformation, and he came to see his father on New Year's day. The old gentleman said: "My son, I'm delighted to see you again. I'm glad you've reformed." Thoughtlessly he said: "Let's drink to your better life one glass of sherry." The young man hesitated a moment, and then thought he would drink just one glass. The old appetite revived, and that night his father found him dead-drunk in his stable.—W. E. Dodge.

The Snare Discovered.

A so-called moderate drinker was once very angry with a friend who claimed that safety is alone in totally abstaining from the use of ardent spirits, and who insinuated that the moderate drinker himself might be beyond control. "To make plain the question, who is wrong," said the temperance man, "will you just quit one month, not to touch a drop during this time?" Said the other: "To satisfy your mind, sir, I will with pleasure, though I know myself; I will do as you ask to cure overwrought ideas." He kept the promise, but at the end of the month he came to his friend with tears in his eyes and thanked him for saving him from a drunkard's grave. Said he: "I never knew before that I was in any sense a slave to drink, but the last month has been the fiercest battle of my life. I see now I was almost beyond hope, and had the test come many months later, it would have been too late for me. But I have kept the pledge, and by God's help I will keep it for life."

It Saves the Boys.

The best argument I have found in Maine for prohibition was from an editor of a paper in Portland, that was for political reasons mildly opposed to it, says a writer in the Maine Temperance Record. I had a conversation with him that ran something like this:

"Where were you born?"

"In a little village about sixty miles from Bangor."

"Do you remember the condition of things in your village prior to prohibition?"

"Distinctly. There was a vast amount of drunkenness, and consequent disorder and poverty."

"What was the effect of prohibition?"

"It shut off all the drink shops and practically banished liquor from the village. It became one of the most quiet and prosperous places on the globe."

"How long did you live in the village after prohibition?"

"Eleven years, or until after I was twenty-one years of age. Then I went to Bangor."

"Do you drink now?"

"I have never tasted a drop of liquor in my life."

"Why?"

"Up to the age of twenty-one I never saw it, and after that I did not care to take on the habit."

That is all there is in it. This man and his schoolmates were saved from drink by the fact that they could not get it until they were old enough to know better. Few men become drunkards who know not the poison until they are twenty-one.

How No-License Works.

The California Voice in a recent issue quotes Dr. Freeman Bovard as follows:

"Immediately after the great earthquake and fire of April 18, 1906, San Francisco was absolutely 'dry' for a period of seventy-nine days. The record shows that crime was practically unknown during those prohibition days. The saloons in San Francisco were opened July 5, and in one week six thousand revolvers were sold. In the first eighty days immediately thereafter there were eighty-three murders and thousands of lesser crimes committed."

The Voice then gives this bit of illuminating comment on the situation:

"We were at San Francisco during those days of no crime. We attended the police court every morning, and there was an average of only two or three cases a day before the courts. We were present during the month when application was made for saloon license, when Archbishop Montgomery asked the supervisors to grant the license, fixing the price at $500. We were there following the 5th of July, and attended the police courts, and saw them crowded almost to suffocation with drunks and other criminal cases growing out of the saloon. The above from Dr. Bovard sets forth the facts as they existed. Now the question arises, Who is responsible for the change? The answer is, Every man in San Francisco who did not do his very best to prevent the reopening of the saloons."

THE PRACTICAL IDEALIST.

What we want is the practical man who lives by the power of the ideal. Often he has to work almost in the dark; slowly he gropes through the broadening dawn. But he sees the light and whence it flows. And he knows that each steady step is toward the rising sun. He has certain principles. They may be few. But they are sufficient. They are clear-cut, firm-footed, square to all the winds that blow; and they are safe. He knows as the world knows that the same world is not ready to apply those principles immediately and universally to the whole round of human conduct. But he knows what the world does not, that these are the principles by which alone men live, and that the nations which will not adopt them God sends down to hell. He, too, is an idealist of the purest type; but He will labor night and day to apply His principles where and when He can, winning from the unprincipled, anarchic world here a little, there a little, and every little looking to the one far off divine event to which the whole creation moves. Do you tell me that He is living in each little act, each little step, each little gain of justice upon injustice, each day's work well done? I tell you No! He is living in the whole, the good, and the beautiful. He sees life and sees it whole. He is living in the march of deathless generations. He is living in the sweep of the ages. He is living in the triumph of immortal principle. He may tell you, with His rough practical senses alert and His ear to the ground, that He has only to live one day at a time, but He knows, though He keeps the knowledge to Himself, that really and truly He is living in eternity—in "the ages of the ages."—Charles F. Aked.

CERTAIN RESULTS

Many a Fort Wayne Citizen Knows How Sure They Are.

Nothing uncertain about the work of Doan's Kidney Pills in Fort Wayne. There is plenty of positive proof of this in the testimony of citizens. Such evidence should convince the most skeptical doubter. Read the following statement:

Mrs. C. Shoemaker, 131 Baker St., Fort Wayne, Ind., says: "Kidney trouble caused me great suffering. I had pains across my back, was very dizzy at times and often arose in the morning feeling all worn out. I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills after reading of their good work in similar cases and I procured a box at Meyer Bros. Co.'s drug store. This remedy acted effectively and I now keep a supply in the house. I know that Doan's Kidney Pills can be relied upon to bring relief from kidney trouble." (Statement given December 2, 1908.)

A LASTING EFFECT.

When Mrs. Shoemaker was interviewed on July 2, 1910, she said: "I am glad to confirm my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills. The cure they effected in my case has been permanent."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Novel Massage Cream

Perfect Skin Food That Removes Wrinkles and Clears Complexion.

The most delicate skin will quickly respond to the soothing and tonic effects of Hokara, and when this pure skin food is used, pimples are soon a thing of the past.

As a massage cream or after shaving it is unequaled, removing all irritations, and making the skin soft and velvety.

Apply a little to the hands or face after washing and surprise yourself with the dead skin that comes off.

Hokara is the only massage cream that is an antiseptic, and pimples, eczema, and all skin blemishes soon disappear when it is used.

Although far superior to the ordinary massage creams and sold on a guarantee of "best you ever used or money back," yet the price is a trifle, only 25c for a liberal jar; larger size 50c.

RAMBLER CHEMICAL TRUCK

The first public exhibition of Rambler service cars will be made at the opening of the commercial vehicle show at the Chicago coliseum next month. The first car to be shown will be the Rambler combination chemical and hose truck, one of the most complete pieces of automobile fire fighting equipment ever constructed.

A special chassis, built in its entirety in the big factory at Kenosha, will distinguish this car from a majority of other of this class. The car is forty-five horse power, has a speed of from five to forty miles an hour on high gear, will accommodate six men in addition to a thousand feet of two and a half inch water hose, including regular chemical equipment, and is in itself capable of handling a large fire without the assistance of another department.

The Secret of Peace

A SERMON BY
REV. HUGH BLACK, D. D.

Text—John 14:27: "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth give I unto you."

(Dr. Black is a professor in Union Theological Seminary, New York. This sermon is reprinted from the Christian Herald.)

Men make their last will and testament leaving their kindred and friends their possessions. The Master also had a parting bequest to make. Silver and gold He had none; but He left them His estate, His estate of peace, the inheritance of calm joy. He bequeathed to them the treasure of His heart. "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give unto you." If that was a possible thing: if such a bequest held good, as the codicil of a will, what a regal legacy it was! If it was more than a pious wish, if it was a fact, was there ever such a last will and testament? To have His certitude of tread, His serenity of soul, His secret of life which made Him calm at the heart amid all the storms and distresses of an earthly lot; to have the quality which made His life the wonder of the world, could any bequest be really more valuable? For peace is the dream of the race. At the bottom of all our strivings, the explanation of all our ceaseless efforts is this dream. All our ambitions and desires have this at the root. A man gives himself to pleasure, or he works for money or power. But it is not for the things themselves, but for the supposed satisfaction of heart they will bring.

The World Cannot Give Peace.

Blindly, instinctively we stretch out our hands and clutch for the things we think will give us heart's ease and a satisfied life. Men do not love money in itself; it is not the mere gold or scrip that men strive and toil for. You do them wrong to think that such a poor thing can be the ultimate aim of even the man who passes for a money-grubber. He has a soul above that. He invests it with imaginative, almost romantic, properties. It is not itself, but what it stands for, what it can do, or is supposed to be able to do; the security it can give from many evils, its power to beat back the distresses of poverty; the capacity it has for pleasure and the satisfaction of desire. They are not always low desires: they may be even very high and noble desires, the opportunity of doing good and carrying forward plans of large reach, the opportunity for acquiring knowledge, of enriching the life with all that art and the best thought of man can do. If we are dupes, we are not always ignoble dupes. What all men long for and strive after is the state of blessedness these particular things are supposed to give. Our aim, beneath all surface aims, is to attain to peace, content of heart, a satisfied life. If Christ then bequeathed that to His disciples, it was indeed a regal legacy.

But when we read the further description it seems as if He were playing with words. He says, "Peace, but not as the world giveth, give I," and that seems a fatal limitation of the gift. By this we have a suspicion that He is taking away what He appeared to give. And yet, when we think of it, is it not a necessary description of peace? For, if there is to be a peace at all, it must be not as the world giveth; for the world has never succeeded in giving it to any son of man. Peace is the dream of the race: dispeace is the experience of the race. For a few years men long for happiness and perhaps achieve it: for ever they are longing for rest. The world cannot give it with all its good gifts; for it belongs to a region which the world cannot reach. The world can give you happiness; it cannot give you blessedness. The world can give you pleasure; it cannot give you joy. The world can give you distractions; it cannot give you peace. These better things are states of the heart, inward gifts, the water of a fountain that springs up from within, conditions of the soul. To win true peace a man must have his thirst for the infinite appeased; he needs to feel himself held in the keeping of eternal love; he needs to have his soul satisfied and no earthly gift can bring that appeasement.

The Soul's Search for Peace.

We cannot even get near the secret till we give up the belief, or even the hope, that the world can give it. It is not as the world giveth. Wherever else, it is certainly not there! Let the man most fortunate in his surroundings, rich in all the possibilities and opportunities of life, with every avenue of pleasure and power and ambition and knowledge open to him, let him say if the world can give peace. Sometimes it is only when all the gifts of fortune, the world's good things, are torn from a man, that he learns how futile they were, and how little they really did for the satisfaction of life. Shakespeare makes Wolsey in his fall, when his high-blown pride broke under him, realize this. When the killing frost nipped the root of ripening greatness he saw how insecure the foundation of his life had been; and when his servant Cromwell came to him expecting to find him unmanned, and asked how he was, his answer was:

> Never so truly happy, my good Cromwell.
> I know myself now; and I feel within me
> A peace above all earthly dignities,
> A still and quiet conscience . . . too much honor:
> 'tis a burden, Cromwell, 'tis a burden,
> To heavy for a man that hopes for heaven.

Dante in exile, driven from all he held dear in life, visited a monastery and leave there the first portion of the "Inferno." The story of his visit is told by the prior of the monastery. "As he was unknown to me and my brethren, I asked him, 'What would you?' And he answered me not a word, but gazing at the building, I asked him again what he sought. He then, looking round upon me and my brethren, answered, 'Peace.'" How typical of man and the whole life of man the incident was, as Dante turned his burning eyes upon the wondering monks and asked out of his sorrowful heart the one word, "Peace." There was no peace for him, except the peace of soul, which might come from detachment from the vulgar struggles and ambitions of men in Florence. If he could not find it in his "Divina Commedia," he could never find it in the fair City of Flowers.

At the risk of wearisome iteration, this has to be said, and repeated: that peace is independent of outside conditions. We cannot advance one inch towards the secret till we see and confess that it is not as the world giveth. Think of the Master when He left this legacy, and spoke so calmly of "My peace." With failure behind Him in the world's judgment: and before him a cross! A man of sorrows and acquainted with grief! And yet with a serenity of soul, and quiet of heart, with peace brooding in His eyes as He looked beyond the tumult to the triumph. It was a quality of soul, not an accident of fortune.

Look at Paul, His servant, who spoke so much of peace, who had learned Christ's secret, writing about peace to his fellow-believers. He was in prison, after a life of terrible toil and terrible privation, with the care of all the churches, with troubles on every side, fighting without and fears within: a broken and scarred life! Yet as he bore on his body the marks of the Lord Jesus, so he carried in his heart the peace of the Lord Jesus. Surely, surely, not as the world giveth.

We find it hard to accept this, hard to give up our feverish attempts to reach peace by outside means. We put down our unrest and dispeace to our uncongenial conditions. If only we had a sweeter environment it would be well with us, we think. It is true that the world sometimes gives a false peace, an appearance of tranquility of life, when all things go well with a man, and prosperity abounds, and the granaries are full, when health is given and capacity for pleasure. The soul sleeps easily in such days of peace and slumberous calm. But spiritual torpor is not peace; for what about the awakening that must come? Or there may be a spurious peace which is the fruit of ignorance, from a conscience not too enlightened, a taste not too refined, a mind that has never seen the better part of life, from stupid contentment with the lower part, from what Carlyle calls a brutal lethargy.

But this is the damning fact about all forms of worldly peace: that there is no security and no permanence of tenure even. It is a capricious thing, accidental. A slight rearrangement of details, and the palace of dream vanishes. What the world gives, the world can take away, and will take away. None of the world's gifts are evil in themselves, and they may be good gifts of God. The reason why we must not love the world is not because it is evil, but because it is transient. It passeth away. At the best it is not sufficient. It is not adequate as the stay of life. The most fortunate circumstances are only fortuitous after all. At the world's banquet, the richest and rarest, there is suspended the fatal sword of Damocles hung by a hair; and the hair will wear through some time.

Faith the Pathway to Peace.

Apart from this transient character of the world's peace, its quality also is poor and threadbare, and men feel its failure even when they possess it. There are few more impressive and more pathetic pages in literature than those in which Count Tolstoi describes the emptiness and vanity of worldly things in his "Confessions." He was a nobleman, in pre-eminently happy circumstances, with a continually increasing income, respected by friends, praised by strangers, happy in his home-life, with a great position and reputation as an author, enjoying the best of mental and physical strength; and yet he, a healthy and happy man, was brought to feel that he could live no longer. He had to fight against the temptation to commit suicide. He gave up carrying a gun because it offered too easy a way of getting rid of life. The reason was because he felt that life had no meaning for him. He was not content just to exist, and that was all he was doing. His life, viewed from the point of reason, had no reason for continuance. It seemed a foolish and wicked joke played on him by he knew not whom. He gave himself up to knowledge, and studied science, but all in vain: the same torturing sense of meaninglessness remained.

He came to see and confess that faith alone gave man an answer as to the meaning of life, and the consequent possibility of living. He saw that faith alone could clothe with infinity the finite existence of man, and give a meaning to life which triumphs over suffering, privation and death. But though he came to understand this, his heart was none the lighter for it. He, the rich and learned and illustrious nobleman, envied the peasant for his quiet faith. At last when he came humbly to Jesus and bent his neck to the yoke of Christ, he, too, entered into the inheritance of peace. In the introduction to his next book, he write: "For thirty-five years of my life I was a man who believed in nothing. Five years ago faith came to me; I believed in the doctrine of Jesus, and my whole life underwent a sudden transformation. What I had wished for I wished for no longer, and I began to desire what I had never desired before. What had once appeared to me right now became wrong, and the wrong of the past I beheld as right. My soul, once filled with despair of life and fear of death, is now full of happiness and peace."

Oneness with Christ Gives Peace.

It is so with every soul of man that comes to Christ and learns of Him. He brings us into the same relationship with God as He enjoyed. His peace came from a direct sense of sonship with the Father; and in Him we, too, are children, and should have the same peace in our hearts, the peace of perfect love, the peace of forgiveness, and reconciliation, and communion. To know peace a man needs to feel himself pardoned, and sustained by God, and in harmony with His will. Such a blessed state alone can bring heart's ease. The secret of it is submission to Christ, as Lord and Master, whose we are and whom we serve. This peace begins with the forgiveness of sins, and reconcilement to God; but it can only be kept by communion, by a life of discipleship, following Christ, thinking His thoughts, and doing His will, and choosing His way.

So, it is not a peace with the world by a compromise, by base connivance, by giving in to its spirit. But this peace is possible even when in the world there is tribulation. Adversity is its opportunity. With the roar of life in ears and brain, we can still be calm. In the busy market-place, in the crowded street, amid the strife of tongues and the weary ways of men, we can be at peace because our hearts are fixed. There is no room for fear or lasting trouble. "My peace I give unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee, because he trusted in Thee."

CONCEPTIONS OF GOD.

That our God is a living, personal, friendly God and not an impersonal force of nature. That in life as well as in death we stand before God. That we should yield unquestioning obedience to God, whether He says "Retreat" or "Go forward." That God is our hiding place and that only are we safe in Him. That God commands all creatures, using them for His service. That when on source of help fails, God supplies another. That God uses little things for great results. That giving money or service to God is no loss. "There is that which scattereth and yet increaseth." That we should believe, fear not, and do God's bidding. That God will supply all our needs.

"Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and all these things shall be added unto you."—Wilbur F. Crafts, D. D., in The Christian Herald.

THE HOME DINNER.

Sometimes the children unconsciously give the mother a pointer on the home life as it is lived. A little fellow living next door to me so openly rejoiced when his father, who had been absent all of each day for nearly a week, was to be at home for dinner that his mother questioned him about it. "Well, you see," he explained, "we do not have such good dinners when papa's home. I'm awfully hungry for something good." His mother looked at the neat pile of little garments she had worked at so steadily while papa had been absent all through the daylight hours, and then she thought of the lunches so easily gotten and so hastily eaten; and at last she thought of the general irritability and nervousness of the small family of three wee tots. She herself had grown tired and nervous, but she laid that to the too steady plying of the needle. The little folks—was it possible that they really had suffered for nourishment in a home of plenty? She resolved always to cook something tasty and nourishing for the wee ones when they were all of her company for dinner.

I wonder how often we mothers are to blame for the afternoon headache in the schoolroom which is blamed on impure air. It is so easy, when the "gude mon" is absent, to sit down to a lunch of bread and jelly, and so gain time for some big piece of work planned for the day, then, too, if we are alone for a week with the children, what a chance to save for that extra bit of table-linen! It's spending the allowance on the table, you know! It's false economy, too. No: when we are tempted to have that easy, picked-up dinner because father is absent, just let's remember that little folks, who use up so much in growth, need nourishment even more than their elders.—The Housekeeper.

THE COMFORT OF FAITH.

Faith has a tremendous reach and a grasp that binds us to the infinite. It reaches far aut into the unseen; it has no bounds to possibilities; it lives in the present, it commands the future. With faith in God, one stands alone; he is bounded by time. The instincts of life and the many forces from our circumstances and relations may give activity and the pleasure and gratification attendant thereon. He may work for results, but the satisfaction is little more than springs from the consciousness of power and possession. Beyond that there is nothing. He builds and enjoys the thought that likewise others may use what he, with great labor, thus erects; but the legacy is to the hopeless, as he regards them. His purposes do not rise above the level of the present; his strength is not equal to the strain of great burdens and trials. He may do many things which bring honor; he may so cast himself into the struggle and danger of life that is called "heroic," and wears laurels that others place upon his brow; but for himself there is no strength or comfort in hope. He gaith but death ends all. All this is so refers a family into the circle of love, pugnant to our nature that we shrink from it so that in trial or sorrow the soul that does not have positive faith seeks to hear words of comfort and hope. It is not all superstition that bids so many who have lived without faith to call for the minister of the gospel or the Christian friend to give some comfort in hope, for our very nature demands hope in God. The man without faith walks in the light of a candle in his own hand; beyond its narrow circle all is darkness and death.—Selected.

BIGGEST THINGS IN THE CHURCH.

Bishops, secretaries, and other dignitaries of the church, fraternize sometimes with royalty; the pastor toil under the approving smile of the King of kings. Tremendous responsibilities rest upon these men in larger places, but to the pastor is committed the most important work of the church—the bringing of men into loving fellowship with God through Jesus Christ. Great problems press hard upon the various officials of the church, but to the pastor is given the solution of the problem of the ages, the problem which overshadows all others—how God "might be just, and the justifier of him that believeth on Jesus." It is a great work to supervise mission fields, direct campaigns for world evangelism, and map out places for the enlargement of our borders; but it is greater to bring to full flower the budding Christian character. Mighty as is the pen, the quiet, unobtrusive life of the faithful pastor is mightier. Though great the privileges of these honored officials of the church, there are none greater than those afforded the active pastor. Proud though their distinction, there are none more proud than those which come to the faithful pastor.

All honor to the pastor, the biggest thing in the church! Toil on, thou long-suffering and often-neglected pastor. Upon you rests the destiny of souls and the future of the church. Nor place, nor preferment, nor position, nor power, nor salary, nor success, nor honors, nor any other thing shall transcend in beauty or glory or reward the splendid work which you are doing—the biggest work in the church.—Baltimore Methodist.

"THEY SAY."

"They say!" That phrase has blasted more character and wrecked more homes than any other in the language. Call a halt on the lecherous peddler who comes at you with his wares—"They say." Fire point blank at his cowardly heart. "Who says?" That hits the spot. You cannot afford to miss. The person who circulates a scandal or peddles truth (one is as good as the other) is a vampire. He sucks life-blood. No combination of words in the language has caused more trouble, pain and sorrow. Shadowy—it hits in the dark. It is anonymous. It has no personality. It cannot suffer any reaction. It is wholly irresponsible. The phrase ought to be put under the ban. It is this way: You speak to some one of a mutual acquaintance. There is a shrug of the shoulders or a lifting of the eyebrows. Then a lowering of the voice, with the preface. "They say." Even when the gossip fails to give his authority he has put an evil idea in your mind respecting the person he speaks of. You cannot rid yourself of the suggestion. The impression stays. The suspicion lurks. A great wrong is done. "They say." The ears that are eager for that always have the mouth to pass it on to other eager ears. The assassination of character has begun. What "they say" may sometimes be a true message. But is it a necessary message? Will it make the old world the better or the worse for the telling? It is very plain that much suffering and sorrow might be prevented by cutting these ugly words clear out of the vocabulary.—St. Louis Christian Advocate.

SHOW YOUR LOVE.

When a man chooses from all the women in the world one woman to be his companion for life, he solemnly promises before God and man to love her with an affectionate love. And that love should be as real and genuine after they have been married twenty-five or fifty years as it is on the morning of the wedding day. It need not be so demonstrative. We hardly expect the same outward expressions of love in an aged couple as in a newly married couple. But the love should exist just the same—less demonstrative because age is less demonstrative than youth; but real and genuine, and manifesting itself in a thoughtful courtesy, a true politeness, and a loving gentleness toward her who has walked by his side for many years, and with him borne the burdens of life.

You may give your wife costly Christmas or birthday or wedding anniversary presents; you may furnish her with fine dresses, a beautiful home, costly carriages, and sent or take her to fashionable watering places; but her heart hungers for something more—even the free, hearty, continued, daily affection of your heart. Nothing else can take its place. The other things are valuable only as they are tokens of such affection.

And do not always assume that she knows of your love. God knows that we love Him (if thus we do), but He wants us to tell Him of it every day. You know that your child loves you, but you never tire of having that child put its little arms around your neck and say: "Papa, I love you ever so much." It will give your wife immeasurable pleasure if you occasionally tell her, with a kiss, that she is dearer to you than ever.—R. T. Cross.

LINCOLN AND TEMPERANCE.

Lincoln was a total abstainer and an active temperance worker. His motto was to try to "pluck a thistle and plant a flower wherever a flower would grow." There could be no more obnoxious "thistle" than the liquor traffic; and so we find Lincoln, as one who loved his fellowman, opposing that great evil. He said, in 1853, "The most effectual remedy would be the passage of a law altogether abolishing the liquor traffic. There must be no more attempts to regulate the cancer; it must be eradicated."

In 1846 Lincoln spoke on temperance at a log schoolhouse near Springfield, Ill. He wrote and took to the meeting the following pledge, inviting the people to sign it:

"Whereas, the use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage is productive of pauperism, degradation and crime; and believing that it is our duty to discourage that which produces more evil than good, we therefore pledge ourselves to abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage."—The Christian Herald.

FAITH AND LOVE.

In the highlands of Scotland is a mountain gorge twenty feet in width and two hundred feet in depth. Its perpendicular walls are bare of vegetation, save in their crevices, in which grow numerous wild flowers of rare beauty. Desirous of obtaining specimens of these mountain beauties, some scientific tourists once offered a Highland boy a handsome reward if he would consent to be lowered down the cliff by a rope, and would gather a little basket of them. The boy looked wistfully at the money, for his parents were poor; but when he gazed at the yawning chasm, he shuddered, shrank back and declined. But filial love was strong within him, and after another glance at the reward, and the terrible fissure, his heart grew strong, his eyes flashed, and he said, "I will go if my father will hold the rope." And then, with unshrinking nerves, cheek unblanched, and heart firmly strung, he suffered his father to put the rope about him, lower him into that abyss, and to suspend him there while he filled his little basket with the coveted flowers. It was a daring deed, but his faith in the love of the father's heart gave him courage and power to perform it.

BE CANDID.

There are few qualities that count for more than candor, in dealing with young people of the present day. Whether it be an opinion or a practice or a person that is under discussion, the objection that father and mother raise will be listened to with far more respect if it is known that they are quite willing to hear the other side, and to give to it all the weight that it deserves. Youth is naturally open-minded and generous, and prone to take the part of the "under dog," and censoriousness and prejudice are most odious faults in its eyes. Many a child has been driven to a career or a marriage that was not really best to his own inmost thought by the tactless opposition of his parents. On the other hand, a well-earned reputation for fairness in small matters may help a parent beyond his utmost hopes in some great crisis in his child's life.—The Congregationalist.

"OH LORD, THOU KNOWEST"

Thou knowest, Lord, the weariness and sorrow
Of the sad heart that comes to Thee for rest.
Cares of today, and burdens for tomorrow,
Blessings implored, and sins to be confessed,
I come before Thee at Thy gracious word,
And lay them at Thy feet—Thou knowest, Lord.

Thou Knowest all the past; how long and blindly
On the dark mountains the lost wanderer strayed;
How the good Shepherd followed, and how kindly
He bore it home, upon His shoulders laid,
And healed the bleeding wounds, and soothed the pain,
And brought back life, and hope, and strength again.

Thou knowest all the present; each temptation,
Each tollsome duty, each forboding fear;
All to myself assigned of tribulation,
Or to beloved ones, than self no more dear!
All pensive memories, as I journey on,
Longing for vanished smiles, and voices gone!

Thou knowest all the future; gleams of gladness,
By stormy clouds too quickly overcast;
Hours of sweet fellowship, and parting sadness
And the dark river to be crossed alast:
Oh! what could confidence and hope afford
To tread that path, but this—Thou knowest, Lord!

Thou knowest, not alone as God, all-knowing;
As man, our mortal weakness Thou hast proved;
On earth, with purest sympathies o'erflowing,
O Savior! Thou hast wept, and Thou has loved!
And Love and Sorrow still to Thee may come,
And find a hiding-place, a rest, a home.

Therefore I come, Thy gentle call obeying,
And lay my sins and sorrows at Thy feet,
On overlasting strength my weakness staying,
Clothed in Thy robe of righteousness complete
Then rising and refreshed, I leave Th
And follow on to know as I am known'ly throne.

Elijah, the Lion Hearted:

The Prophet Appears in Israel.

International Sunday School Lesson for Sunday, February 5, 1911.
By Dr. and Mrs. Wilbur F. Crafts.

Lesson Text—I. Kings 17:1-16. Golden Text—Ps. 34:10: "They that seek the Lord shall not want any good thing."

A Character Sketch of Elijah.

Elijah was a sturdy mountaineer of Gilead, a region east of the Jordan. Tradition tells us he was a man of short stature and rugged countenance. His face was furrounded by a mass of dark hair and bushy beard, which had never been cut, for he was a Nazarite (Num. 6: 1-5). Both hair and beard were suggestive of a lion's mane and his tanned skin, too, was much the color of the lion. Not alone had he a semblance to the king of beasts physically, but he had lion-like qualities as well. We call him Elijah the lion-hearted, for such his words and deeds have shown him.

> Remote from courts, corruption, crime,
> In that high shepherd land,
> With God alone His soul had grown
> To stature bold and grand;
> From Jacob's seed, or Jokshan's stock
> Unknown, he stands God's seer—
> The Highlander of prophecy,
> God's glorious mountaineer.

King Ahab Reproved.

Ahab, though a native and king of Israel, had, by his marriage with Jezebel, become identified with idolaters. He built a temple to Baal, and his wife stood sponsor for four hundred priests of Baal and likewise maintained at her own expense four hundred prophets of Astarte. Many of the Israelites were led away from the worship of the true God until idolatry became one of the distinguishing features of King Ahab's reign.

It was then that the voice of Elijah was raised like the tone of a great bell to reprove Ahab for his sin. The message given him to deliver had a dire significance. It was—"There shall not be dew nor rain these years, but according to my word." A drought with its consequent famine was looked upon as the greatest misfortune that could befall the land; therefore it must have been a very painful matter for King Ahab to contemplate such a calamity. But it was just the sort of punishment that was needed to make him and his people realize the enormity of their offense in turning away from the true God to the worship of the false.

The drought was sent as a terrible object lesson, for had as the nation had become, such an affliction might lead to repentance and forgiveness. Moreover Baal, the worship of whom was at the bottom of the nation's wickedness, was regarded primarily as the god of agriculture and fertility; therefore, the curse of Elijah was a direct challenge from Jehovah. Let Baal remove the ban if he could.

Another reason was that the prolonged years of drought and famine were to prepare the nation for Elijah's reform. When the relief came it proved conclusively that Jehovah was the true God and Elijah His prophet. God, however, knew that Elijah would be in danger from the royal pair, so He told him, "Get thee hence."

Elijah's Retreat.

Elijah did not falter when God said, "Get thee hence." Like Abraham, "he went out, not knowing whither," but knowing with whom he went. He had the assurance from God that he would be supplied with food by the ravens. So Elijah did according to the word of the Lord. He went and dwelt by the brook Cherith, which to him was as a well of waters. The raven brought him food, God directed the birds where to find it. Though they had voracious appetites themselves, the ravens did not devour the supplies, but carried them to the good man in his rocky fastness by the brook. Thus doth God take care of His own.

> . . . behind the dim unknown
> Standeth God within the shadow
> Keeping watch above His own.

Let our faith be strengthened as we pray in the time of need—"Give us this day our daily bread."

A Chinese Elijah.

Mrs. Howard Taylor, of the Chinese Inland mission, tells how God fed a Chinese prophet of our time in a similar way. It is a touching story of simple faith. Old Li was converted by hearing an impressive sermon on "Covetousness which is Idolatry." After attentively listening, the old man was greatly concerned to think that having given up idolatry he might be betrayed into the same sin by allowing a covetous spirit to have a place in his heart. To avoid this danger he determined to keep no money of his own and to possess no property. He accordingly turned over his house and little farm to his nephew and devoted himself mainly to making known the Gospel, sustained in a great measure by the simple hospitality of those to whom he ministered. He opened up a refuge for the cure of opium smokers and by this he made himself a blessing to many unfortunates. His labors were wonderfully blessed of God spiritually, and resulted in the building up of a church in the Yoh-Yang district. After some years, however, what we now call the "higher criticism" and the scoffing of materialism reached the far-off field of the old man's endeavors. Some passages in the Holy Book were looked upon as fables, or at best but allegories to impress an ideal or sustain a contention. Old Li was told that in the story of Elijah, it was not ravens that fed the prophet, but Arabs who shared with him their own supplies. It was absurd to suppose that birds would act in the way described. This point of view did not at all commend itself to the old man's simple faith. He himself was to disprove it and bear direct testimony in his own case to the truth of the sacred narrative. A time came in his refuge work when he reached the end of his resources.

There were no patients coming in for treatment and all his supplies were exhausted. At this juncture Li's cousin, a heathen priest of the village temple, came to his aid. The priest brought him supplies of bread and millet. Every time Li would receive the gift of food he would murmur, "Tien-Fu-tih en-tien" — "My heavenly Father's grace." At length the pagan priest became offended by these words. "I supply the food," he exclaimed, "and did I not bring it you would starve." "But it is my heavenly Father who puts it into your heart to care for me," returned the old Christian. "Well, we'll see what will happen when I bring no more food." For two weeks the priest did not visit Li. The latter had no food nor money to buy it, but he trusted in God. With simple faith he went into his chamber and poured forth heartfelt prayers to the heavenly Father. As he knelt he heard an unusual clamor and cawing and flapping of wings in the courtyard. He rose and went to see what was happening. A number of vultures and ravens common in that part of China were seen flying above him in great commotion and as he looked up a large piece of pork fell at his feet. Thankfully, the old man picked up the unexpected food, saying, "My heavenly Father's kindness." Glancing around he saw a large piece of Indian meal bread dropped by another bird. Thus was old Li provided for by these feathered messengers of God as Elijah was in the cave.

The brook beside which Elijah tarried dried up and the ravens ceased to bring him food. Was God about to desert him and leave him to starve and to die? No, God gave him marching orders: "Arise, get thee to Zarephath: . . . behold, I have commanded a widow there to sustain thee." Truly she must be a rich widow! God did not say so. Elijah was accustomed to do as God told him, so he arose and went on a journey of ninety miles. No doubt he had some tender regrets about leaving the place where the Lord had so wonderfully sustained him. He had found sweet peace and comfort in that quiet spot.

God Finds a Friend for Elijah.

Zarephath must have been a safe place for Elijah, otherwise God would not have sent him there. However, from a human point of view it could no be deemed a safe place, inasmuch as the father of Queen Jezebel had his residence there. God knew this, still He instructed Elijah to go, and Elijah went because he knew God was able to take care of him. He traveled on foot up the Jordan valley, across the foothills of Lebanon to the shore of the Mediterranean. When at length he came to Zarephath he saw no rich widow's house into which he might enter—he only saw a poor woman gathering sticks to make a fire. Upon inquiry Elijah learned that this woman was a very poor widow, who only had a little oil and a little meal in her house, just enough to make bread once for herself and her little son, and none at all to give away to a stranger. Elijah told the woman that he was very hungry and requested her to knead the oil and meal into a cake that he might eat, at the same time assuring her that his God would always keep flour in her jar and oil in her cruse, enough for all of them as long as he should dwell under her roof. The woman must have been one who loved and trusted God after the manner of Elijah himself, for she went into the house, and taking all she had, prepared the food for Elijah. God recompensed her. The flour jar or the oil cruse was never empty while Elijah remained; they were never full, only just enough to suffice for the passing day.

Soon there came an occasion when God's pensioner on the widow's bounty was a great blessing to her. The little son was taken sick and died—she was called upon to bear a double load of grief, that of being a widow and that of being childless. God was watching. He had not deserted her, Ho know her sorrow, and so in His goodness He gave Elijah the power to unloose the cords of death and bring back the child to life. When the woman told Elijah her child was dead he commanded her, saying, "Give him to me." He took the dead child from the mother's arms and carried him to a room on the roof—the prophet's own chamber—and laid the little boy on his own bed. Then stretching himself above the child he breathed into his nostrils, and prayed, saying, "O Jehovah, my God, I pray Thee, let this child's soul animate the body again." His prayer was heard. The God who breathed into the first man the breath of life, did give life again to the widow's child. The boy arose from the bed, and Elijah took him, now dearer than ever, to his mother, who rejoiced and was exceeding happy that her dead had been brought back to life to comfort her.

What the Story Teaches.

That our God is a living, personal, friendly God and not an impersonal force of nature. That in life as well as in death we stand before God. That we should yield unquestioning obedience to God, whether He says "Retreat" or "Go forward." That God is our hiding place and that only are we safe in Him. That God commands all creatures, using them for His service. That when one source of help fails, God supplies another. That God uses little things for great results. That giving money or service to God is no loss. "There is that which scattereth and yet increaseth." That we should believe, fear not, and do God's bidding. That God will supply all our needs.

"Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and all these things shall be added unto you."

OPPOSE CHANGE IN ROAD LAWS

Farmers Want Railroads to Build Fences Along Highways.

ADOPT RESOLUTIONS

Resolutions adopted by the farmers' institute in session at Huntertown, protest against the enactment of the proposed good roads law creating a state highway commission, and demand legislation whereby railroads shall be compelled to construct fences along right of way adjoining a public highway. The resolutions follow:

"Whereas, The public roads of Allen county and the state of Indiana compare favorably with the roads in other states and as a whole are generally conceded to surpass the roads of adjoining states, and the improvements on said roads, having been made under existing laws, and without excessive burden upon the taxpayers of the state; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That inasmuch as the present law has proved effective, we believe it is the part of wisdom to continue under the present law. We further believe that under the bill known as the 'good roads bill,' and endorsed principally by those who use the public highway for pleasure, a few of the roads would be improved at the expense of the roads in general, and that we as farmers are in favor of making all the roads in a serviceable condition and as the burden has in the past, and would if the proposed bill is enacted into law, continue to fall heavily upon the farmers. We therefore protest against its passage.

"Resolved, That we are opposed to any change in our road law which shall create a state highway commission and take away from the citizens of the state their right to select their own road officers. We appeal to our senators and representatives not to disfranchise us but to use their influence by voice and vote against the proposed bill.

"Whereas, It would be to the interest of the traveling public, inasmuch as it would lessen the danger to human lives from the fact that on the best regulated farms, stock will at times be liable to escape upon public highways and thence upon the tracks of electric or steam railroad or railway, where there is no fence along such railroad or railways next to such highway, and thus endanger the lives of those riding upon the car or cars of such railways or railroads by such car or cars coming into contact with such stock that may stray upon such track or tracks of such railroads or railways; be it therefore

"Resolved, That a law be enacted compelling all such railroads or railways running along highways to build, construct and maintain fences and grates along right of way of such railroads or railways next to such highways, thus lessening the liabilities of such escaped stock from getting upon the track or tracks of such railroads or railways and thus materially lessening the dangers to human lives as well as loss of escaped or estrayed stock."

Baby's Voice

Every woman's heart thrills at the cooing and prattling of a baby, and motherhood is her highest and purest joy. Yet the suffering incident to this great consummation of her life's desire, robs the anticipation of some of its sweetness. Most of this can be avoided by the use of Mother's Friend. This great remedy prepares the expectant mother's system for the coming event, and its use makes her comfortable during all the term. Mother's Friend assists nature in gradually expanding all tissues, muscles and tendons, it strengthens the ligaments, keeps the breasts in good condition, and brings the woman to the crisis in healthful physical condition. The regular use of Mother's Friend lessens the pain when baby comes, and assures a quick and natural recovery for the mother. For sale at drug stores. Write for free book for expectant mothers.

DISFIGURED WITH SCALES AND CRUSTS

Eczema from Top of Head to Waist. Suffered Untold Agony and Pain. Neck Was Perfectly Raw. Doctors Said It Could Not Be Cured.

A Set of the Cuticura Remedies Successful When All Else Had Failed.

"Some time ago I was taken with eczema from the top of my head to my waist. It began with scales on my body. I suffered untold itching and burning, and could not sleep. I was greatly disfigured with scales and crusts. My ears looked as if they had been most cut off with a razor, and my neck was perfectly raw. I suffered untold agony and pain. I tried two doctors who said I had eczema in its fullest stage, and that it could not be cured. I then tried other remedies to no avail. At last, I tried a set of the genuine Cuticura Remedies, which cured me. Cuticura Remedies cured me of eczema when all else had failed, therefore I cannot praise them too highly.

"I suffered with eczema about ten months, but am now entirely cured, and I believe Cuticura Remedies are the best skin cure there is." (Signed) Miss Mattie J. Sheffer, R. F. D. 1, Box 8, Dancy, Miss., Oct. 27, 1910.

"I had suffered from eczema about four years when boils began to break out on different parts of my body. It started with a fine red rash. My back was affected first, when it also spread over my face. The itching was almost unbearable at times. I tried different soaps and salves, but nothing seemed to help me until I began to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. One box of them cured me entirely. I recommended them to my sister for her baby who was troubled with tooth eczema, and they completely cured her baby." (Signed) Mrs. F. L. Marberger, Drehersville, Pa., Sept. 6, 1910.

Cuticura Remedies are sold throughout the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem Corp., Boston, Mass., for free booklet on the skin.

ENTERTAINS WITH DINNER.

George M. Haffner, who was elected treasurer of the State Association of Retail Merchants at the recent convention of that body at Anderson, showed his appreciation of the election by entertaining the local delegates to the convention and local officers at a dinner at the Commercial club Friday night. Covers were laid for nine. Mr. Haffner read the report of the delegates to the convention during the dinner, and this was later approved and will come up at the next regular association meeting.

The Adventures of Mr. Peter Ruff

BY E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

The Little Lady from Servia

COPYRIGHT, 1909, BY THE PEARSON PUBLISHING CO.

"The packet was changed, then, by some one in your room, or some one who had access to it," Peter Ruff said. "How about your servant?"

"It was his evening off," the Honorable Maurice answered. "I let him put out my things and go at seven o'clock."

"You must tell me the nature of the contents of the packet," Peter Ruff declared. "Don't hesitate. You must do it. Remember the alternative."

The young man did hesitate for several moments, but a glance into his sister's appealing face decided him.

"It was our official reply to a secret communication from Russia respecting —a certain matter in the Balkans."

Peter Ruff nodded.

"Where is Count Von Hern?" he asked, abruptly.

"Inside, dancing," the Honorable Maurice answered.

"I must use a telephone at once," Peter Ruff said. "Ask one of the servants here where I can find one."

Peter Ruff was conducted to a gloomy waiting-room, on the table of which stood a small telephone instrument. He closed the door, but he was only absent for a very few minutes. When he rejoined Lady Mary and her brother they were talking together in agitated whispers. The latter turned towards him at once.

"Do you mean that you suspect Count Von Hern?" he asked, doubtfully. "He is a friend of the Danish Minister's, and every one says that he's such a good chap. He doesn't seem to take the slightest interest in politics—spends nearly all his time hunting or playing polo."

"I don't suspect any one," Peter Ruff answered. "I only know that Count Von Hern is an Austrian spy, and that he took your paper! Has he been out of your sight at all since you rejoined him in the sitting-room? I mean to say—had he any opportunity of leaving you during the time you were dining together, or did he make any calls en route, either on the way to the Savoy or from the Savoy here?"

The young man shook his head.

"He has not been out of my sight for a second," he declared.

"Who is the other man—Jermyn?" Peter Ruff asked. "I never heard of him."

"An American—cousin of the Duchess," the Honorable Maurice answered. "He could not have had the slightest interest in the affair."

"Please take me into the ball-room," Peter Ruff said to Lady Mary. "Your brother had better not come with us. I want to be as near the Count Von Hern as possible."

They passed into the crowded rooms, unnoticed, purposely avoiding the little space where the Duchess was still receiving the late comers amongst her guests. They found progress difficult, and Lady Mary felt her heart sink as she glanced at the little jeweled watch which hung from her wrist. Suddenly Peter Ruff came to a standstill.

"Don't look for a moment," he said, "but tell me as soon as you can —who is that tall young man, like a Goliath, talking to the little dark woman? You see whom I mean?"

Lady Mary nodded, and they passed on. In a moment or two she answered him.

"How strange that you should ask!" she whispered in his ear. "That is Mr. Jermyn."

They were on the outskirts now of the ball-room itself. One of Lady Mary's partners came up with an open program and a face full of reproach.

"Do please forgive me, Captain Henderson," Lady Mary begged. "I have hurt my foot, and I am not dancing any more."

"But surely I was to take you in to supper?" the young officer protested, good-humoredly. "Don't tell me that you are going to cut that?"

"I am going to cut everything tonight with everybody," Lady Mary said. "Please forgive me. Come to tea to-morrow and I'll explain."

The young man bowed, and, with a curious glance at Ruff, accepted his dismissal. Another partner was simply waved away.

"Please turn round and come back," Peter Ruff said. "I want to see those two again."

"But we haven't found Count Von Hern yet," she protested. "Surely that is more important, is it not? I believe that I saw him dancing just now—there, with the tall girl in yellow."

"Never mind about him, for the moment," Ruff answered. "Walk down this corridor with me. Do you mind talking all the time, please? It will sound more natural, and I want to listen."

The young American and his partner had found a more retired seat now, about three-quarters of the way down the pillared vestibule which bordered the ball-room. He was bending over his companion with an air of unmistakable devotion, but it was she who talked. She seemed, indeed, to have a good deal to say to him. The slim white fingers of one hand played all the time with a string of magnificent pearls. Her dark, soft eyes —black as sloes and absolutely un-English—flashed into his. A delightful smile hovered at the corners of her lips. All the time she was talking and he was listening. Lady Mary and her partner passed by unnoticed. At the end of the vestibule they turned and retraced their steps. Peter Ruff was very quiet—he had caught a few of those rapid words. But the woman's foreign accent had troubled him.

FEWER SALOONS FOR THIS STATE

Proctor Regulation Measure Limits One for Every 1,000 People.

POINTS OF THE BILL

Indianapolis, Jan. 28.—The limiting of saloon licenses to one for each one thousand inhabitants of a township, city or territory in a township outside an incorporated city with one extra saloon thrown in for good measure, is the difference between a bill introduced in the senate yesterday afternoon by Senator Proctor and a bill introduced earlier in the session by Senator Fleming and subsequently amended in various particulars. The Proctor bill provides that no licenses shall be granted in any city or township in excess of one license for the first five hundred inhabitants or fraction in excess of 250. One additional license may be granted for the second five hundred or a fraction greater than 250. Thereafter one additional license may be granted for each additional one thousand inhabitants.

The license features are the same as in the Fleming bill, although Senator Proctor is known as an advocate of the $1,000 license. The state license fee, payable at the time the license is issued by the board of county commissioners, would be $200. At present the state license fee is $100, but both the Fleming bill and the Proctor bill propose to increase this to $200. It is estimated that this will add something like $700,000 to the state school fund in two years' time.

Other License Fees.

In cities and towns the common council or town board may add a city or town license fee, which in cities of the first class shall not exceed $400; in cities of the second class, $300; in all other cities, $250, and in incorporated towns, $200.

An amendment to the Fleming bill, inserted by members of the committee on public morals and the language of which is found verbatim in the Proctor bill, provides that the individual applicant must be a citizen of the United States. This is aimed at the saloons operated by foreigners. Under the present law a man may take out a license when he has secretly made his declaration, or in other words has obtained "first citizenship papers" and is entitled to vote, although he has not perhaps lived in the country long enough to become fully naturalized, and has not been naturalized by the courts after the five years required for such naturalization.

What is charged to be a very serious defect in the bill as amended lies in this clause, and it is said by some who have read the bill that in its present form this provision is of small value, as its evasion is a very simple matter. The part of Section 2 of each bill which deals with this qualification reads as follows:

Provisions of Section.

"Under the provisions of this act hereinafter provided, any male inhabitant, who is a citizen of the United States and over the age of twenty-one years, who has resided in the state one year, and the township wherein he desires to sell intoxicating liquors ninety days, and is a qualified voter thereof, or any copartnership composed of male inhabitants, each of whom is over the age of twenty-one years, and all of whom have resided in the state one year, and in the township wherein it is proposed to sell intoxicating liquors for at least ninety days, and any corporation * * * desiring to obtain a license to sell intoxicating liquors, or a renewal or a transfer thereof from one location to another, shall apply therefor in writing, as hereinafter provided, and shall give notice * * *" After this there follows a description of the procedure in making application.

It is pointed out by some that while the individual applicant must be a full fledged citizen, this provision is omitted from the clause dealing with the qualifications for members of a copartnership. Members of the partnership must be merely "male inhabitants," twenty-one years old, possessing the residence qualifications. Thus, it is said, while an individual "Hunky" who had never been naturalized could not obtain a license, there is nothing in the provision which would prohibit two or more of them forming a partnership and getting a license, although none of them would have been able to obtain a license had they applied as individuals.

License of Corporation.

The Proctor bill gives a corporation operating a bona fide hotel of twenty-five rooms or more a right to obtain a license and have the bar operated by an agent, who must possess every qualification which is necessary for an individual applicant. Copartnerships also may obtain licenses. The applicant, whether individual or otherwise, shall not be the agent or employe of any person, firm or corporation engaged in the manufacture or sale of any article intended to be sold by the applicant, and in case of a renewal of license the applicant, or in case of a corporation, its officers, must make affidavit that such manufacturer is not the real holder of the license. The applicant also must make affidavit that he has not solicited, received or accepted indirectly or directly, and during the life of the license will not solicit or receive, any gift, loan of money or assistance from any one engaged in the sale of liquor. Such assistance or any misrepresentation is made a cause for revocation or suspension of license.

Restrictive Features.

The restrictive features in the Fleming bill and those in the Proctor bill are the same in all particulars. These include the provision that an applicant must be of good moral character, and a conviction for felony is a bar to obtaining license. The method of revoking the license on complaint of any voter is the same in both bills. The Moore remonstrance law, the Nicholson law and the blind tiger act are left unimpaired except so far as they are in conflict with the bill. It is provided that the act shall not be construed so as to vest any contractural right in the license. The renewal and transfer of licenses from one person to another with the consent of the county commissioners and the provision that a license may be transferred from one room to another with consent of the commissioners, originally brought forward in the Fleming bill, are parts of the Proctor bill. The Proctor bill also provides that when brewers or wholesalers sell "in case lots" the sales must be in "dry territory."

STATESMEN IN MERRY FROLIC

tion, the republican members of this general assembly did have opportunity to extol and praise and commend and eulogize all of their distinguished statesmen, the living and dead, and they did avail themselves of this opportunity, and did extol, praise, commend and eulogize their party's honored names, and

"Whereas, During the entire period the republican members of this assembly were crowning their statesmen's memories, it was a noticeable, strikingly painful, alarming and horrifying fact that no mention was made of or tribute paid to the distinguished ex-Senator James A. Hemenway and the distinguished ex-Congressman James E. Watson by their partisan brothers; now, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the refined cruelty and heartlessness so startlingly displayed by the republican members of this assembly meets with the disapproval of the majority of this body, which owes so much to the services of these distinguished men, especially to the wonderful work of the Hon. James E. Watson and the Hon. James E. Hemenway; and be it further

"Resolved, That inasmuch as their own political brethren disown them and consign their memories to the chilly waters of oblivion, that we, the majority of this house, do wish fully to commemorate their deeds and preserve their memories, and to that end and for that purpose this house do now order this memorial and tribute to these distinguished republican statesmen to be spread upon the records of this house."

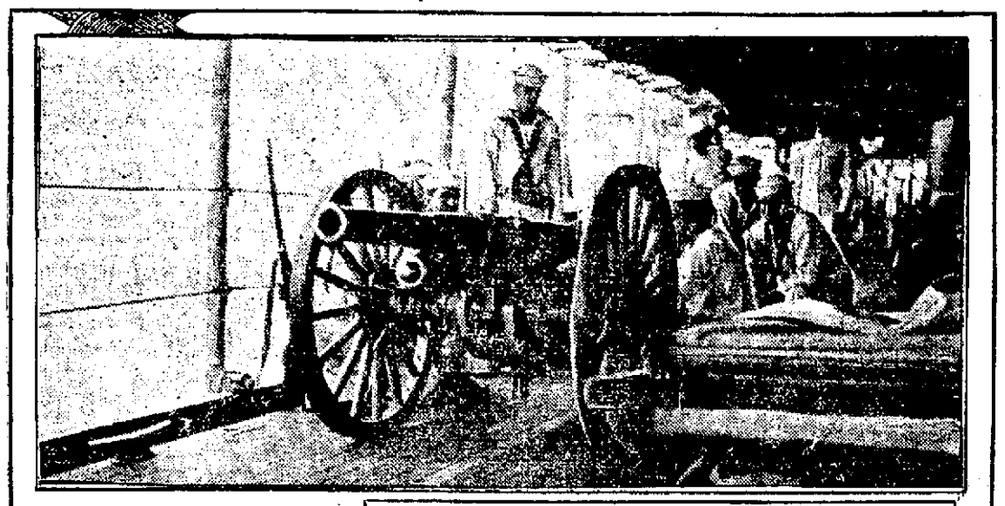

Representative Miles Furnas, of Randolph county, was on his feet in an instant with an amendment to include the name of William Jennings Bryan out of respect and consolation to the democratic side of the house, but before he could negotiate the dark and devious ways of parliamentary practice he was declared out of order by Speaker Veneman, and the resolution as introduced by Representative Strickland was adopted with three cheers and a tiger.

NEW YORK SUFFRAGETTES SELL THEIR PAPER.

MRS. HARRIET STANTON BLATCH SELLING PAPERS IN WALL STREET

New York, Jan. 28.—Greater interest was displayed in Wall street in the women who undertook to sell the new suffragist paper, the Broadside, than in the publication they were offering. From the moment the suffragists appeared in the financial district messenger boys, brokers' clerks and janitors swarmed about them and made their efforts to sell papers futile.

Twelve women started out a little before noon from the headquarters of the Women's Political union, at No. 46 East Twenty-ninth street, each wearing a white bag with green and purple letters across its front. Some who did not know they had been summoned to sell papers insisted on telephoning to their husbands for permission to descend on Wall street. Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch, president of the league, led the party.

When the women emerged from the subway at Wall street they were promptly surrounded by a mob of boys and the crowd kept increasing so rapidly the suffragists could not sell any papers. At the Nassau street entrance to the Equitable Life building Mrs. Blatch and Mrs. H. Gray dodged inside, but the throng went pell mell after them.

PASTOR UNCLE OFU AND SAMOANS ON BOARD THE LAWHILL

New York, Jan. 28.—After an absence from this port of a year and three months, the Lawhill, a big four masted British bark belonging to the Standard Oil company's fleet, came in from Manila, bringing tales of strange persons met in southern seas and with a long voyage that is much out of the ordinary of the ships that trade to the far east. Since the Lawhill has been away she has covered a distance of more than 45,000 miles and her voyage home, began July 13, 1910, was over a distance of 24,433 miles. The bark went out to Cochin, China, by the way of the cape of Good Hope with oil in cases, and returned around Cape Horn. Paston Ofu and Samoans were gazed at with open mouths by those along the pier.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago Market.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 28.—Free selling of wheat today overcame the bullish effect of a considerable number of purchases made on resting commission orders. Sentiment in the pit was largely bearish, and the lack of more aggressive support led to suspicion that leaders on the long side were well out of their wheat. Many traders, however, believed that the big holders still had lines intact. The opening was unchanged to ½@⅝c higher. May started at 97@97½c, a gain of ⅛@¼c, but gradually declined to 96⅝@96½c.

Better weather promising increased offers from the country made corn easy. May opened the same as last night to a shade lower at 50c to 50¼@50⅛c and fell to 49¾c.

Scattered demand for oats proved insufficient to hold that cereal firm in the face of weakness in other grain. May started unchanged at 34⅜c and receded to 34⅛@34⅜c.

Higher prices for hogs strengthened provisions. First sales were 2½@5c to 7½c up, except for January pork, which showed a drop of 25c. May options during initial trades went at $18.27½ to $18.30 for pork, $9.80 for lard and $9.80 also for ribs.

STOCKS AND BONDS.

The Day on Wall Street.

New York, Jan. 28.—Price movements were irregular at the opening of the stock market today with a fairly large volume of business. A further weakness was developed in the copper shares, Amalgamated Copper declining a point in the first few minutes of trading. St. Louis Southwestern advanced 1½ and Norfolk & Western, Western Maryland and Canadian Pacific ⅜ each. Union Pacific and Reading gained fractionally.

The market moved upward, although the gains for the most part were comparatively small. United States Steel rose to 79½, a new high record for the present movement. Northern Pacific crossed 120 and Chesapeake & Ohio gained a point. Higher prices uncovered some selling orders and the market receded slightly, but soon steadied again.

The market closed active and firm. Best prices of the session were made in the second hour with further gains in Atchison, Northern Pacific and other active issues. Amalgamated Copper made only partial recovery, but pressure on U. S. Steel and Reading were less marked. Union Pacific was quite the heaviest of the standard shares.

BUNKO ON BOWSER

Sad Surprise at the Wedding Anniversary.

THE SPARKLES THAT FAILED.

Samuel Starts the Evening at Home With High Resolves—Mrs. Bowser's Joy Pales on Discovery That the "Diamond" Gift Is Spurious.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.]

THERE was a good natured smile on Mr. Bowser's face as he entered the door the other evening, and the tired Mrs. Bowser was glad to see it. The cook had taken a day off to attend the wedding of a sister, and the work had fallen on the mistress.

"Never mind, old girl," Mr. Bowser answered as she explained matters. "The dinner will be good enough for anybody. If you'd telephoned me we would have gone out to a restaurant."

"Well, if you won't scold I shall be all right."

"Scold? Scold? Why, I'm glad the cook went out. We'll have a little dinner all by ourselves. Capital! Fine! Just what I would have wished for."

Mr. Bowser sat down in a jolly mood. He might have found fault with some things, but he didn't. He praised everything, and now and then he chuckled. His attitude was so strange that Mrs. Bowser finally queried:

"Was business extra good today?"

"Business all right—all right."

"And are you feeling better than usual?"

"Feeling like a new gold dollar. Shake hands, Mrs. Bowser."

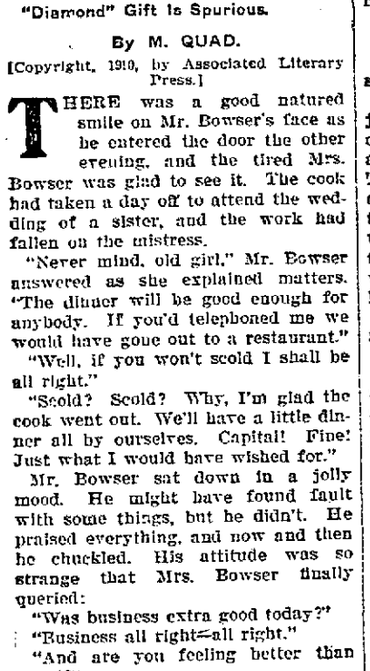

She gave him her hand across the table, but at the same time wondered if he had gone crazy.

He grinned and chuckled and finally burst into laughter.

"Mr. Bowser, will you tell me what has happened? I can't make you out at all."

"Ha, ha, ha! Little woman, do you remember thirty years ago today?"

"Why—why—let's see? Thirty years ago? My stars, but it's our wedding anniversary, and I had clean forgotten it!"

BILL NOT TRY THIS.

"Sure you had—sure!"

"But you had remembered it, you dear?"

"Of course. That's why I'm glad about the dinner. It's our little wedding dinner over again. Fine, fine! Oh, I'm not such an old codger as you sometimes take me for."

"You are just one of the best men in the world, and I am coming around the table to kiss you! How forgetful of me, and how thoughtful of you!"

The meal was not half finished yet, and Mr. Bowser continued to smile and chuckle. He evidently had something up his sleeve. What it was did not develop until they had reached the sitting room. Mrs. Bowser was on the point of saying that she would like to celebrate the occasion by going to the theater, when he announced:

Resolutions to Stop.

"It is a snowy, blowy night, and we'll pass it at our own fireside in talk. Yes, just thirty years ago this afternoon you became my bonny bride. Have you ever regretted it, dear?"

"Of course not. Have you?"

"Never. I have often talked about divorce, but that was only a bluff, you know. And I have done some blowing about your extravagance in running the house, but, of course, I didn't mean it."

"I never thought you did."

"That's sweet and nice of you. I ought to be ashamed of myself, and I am, and I promise to do better in the future. Here, on the thirtieth anniversary of our wedding day, I'm going to promise to stop certain things:

"I shall not roar any more about the coal bills.

"I won't say another blamed word about the gas bills.

"I'll never mention divorce and alimony again.

"I won't contend that I could run the house better than you do.

"I won't growl about the prices you pay to the grocer and butcher.

"I won't buy a fire escape, a burglar alarm nor a flying machine.

"I won't climb Mount McKinley nor discover the north pole.

"I won't try to save gas nor bring a patent fuel into the house.

"I won't trade the place for a chicken farm nor go to raising sugar beets.

"If we play euchre you can have the joker in the pack, and if you get it on your deal I won't say you stole it.

"There, dear, what do you think of that?" he triumphantly finished.

"Just as I said before, you are the best man in the world," replied Mrs. Bowser.

Handout of the Gift.

"And, now, dear, I want to hand you a slight token to aid you to remember the happy day. I know you will be pleased with it, for you've always wanted one. Give me a kiss and take it."

And thereupon he handed her out a bracelet set with diamonds. It was more than set. It was studded with the precious stones.

Mrs. Bowser gave a gasp of delight and reached for the bauble.

Then her hand and her face fell.

"What is it, honey? Don't you admire it?"

"Y-yes."

"Isn't it what you've long wanted?"

"I—I guess so."

"See here, now," said Mr. Bowser as he rose up, "there's something wrong here, and I want to know what it is. Would you rather have had a cluster ring?"

"No, but"—

"But what? Out with it!"

"Did you buy this at a jewelry store?"

"Did I? Did I? Well, no, but it's just as good as if I had, isn't it? You can see that it's new. I couldn't find any bracelets in the jewelry stores. They were all just out of them. Just as I got off the car this evening a gentleman stepped up to me and asked me to buy this at a bargain. It belonged to his wife, who died before she ever wore it. It's worth $250, but I beat him down to $50."

"Oh, Mr. Bowser, you didn't pay him $50?"

"I'd have been a fool not to!"

"But this forenoon a detective came along our street and warned us all against the man. He's what they call a faker. He was here half an hour before you came and offered this very bracelet for $10!"

"By thunder!"

"And I'm sure he would have taken $5. The gold is only brass, and the diamonds are glass."

Bowser Bunkoed.

Mr. Bowser, red faced and mouth open, stood for a moment and then shouted:

"Then I don't know diamonds from glass, eh? I'm a fool, am I? I need a guardian, do I? Woman, don't trifle with me!"

"But go out and ask some one. Go to a jeweler," she replied.

"I will go, madam—I will go. And I will return to confound you. You may get down on your knees to me, but it will do no good. Never—never will I forgive you!"

And three minutes later he was in the drug store around the corner.

"You bought it off a man, didn't you?" asked the druggist as he handed the bracelet back.

"Yes."

"Five dollars?"

"No—fifty!"

"Then go hang yourself! You are the biggest fool in the state!"

Mr. Bowser visited three jewelry stores in succession. In each instance the bracelet was handed back in a weary way with the remark:

"Wholesale price $2 each!"

Then he went home to find Mrs. Bowser reading. She didn't even look up, and after waiting ten minutes he said:

"In the morning you can consult your lawyer and I will mine, and we will arrange for the divorce and alimony!"

Or a Hangar Hop.

"My grandmother says they used to have barn dances in her day."

"I see the idea. Now, why couldn't we get up a garage ball?"—Pittsburg Post.

Misunderstood.

"Brown smokes quarter cigars."

"Can't he afford a whole one?"—Boston Transcript.

Our Transitory Heroes.

"He woke up one morning and found himself famous."

"Well?"

"And then went and made a monkey of himself in time for the afternoon papers to get hold of it."—Pittsburg Post.

MOTORCYCLISTS FORM NEW CLUB

Local Riders to Affiliate With National Organization.

OFFICERS ARE CHOSEN

Fort Wayne motorcyclists in a meeting Thursday evening completed the organization of what is to be known as the Anthony Motorcycle club, elected officers, adopted by-laws for its government and prepared for affiliation with the Federation of American Motorcyclists.

Officers chosen were: President, W. C. Fattic; vice president, John F. Hughes; secretary and treasurer, R. Green; road captain, L. Itenbach; first lieutenant, J. E. Chandler; second lieutenant, A. J. Hartman; executive committee, R. S. Bohn, B. H. Smyser, J. I. Van Tochine.

The announced purpose of the organization is to promote the riding of motorcycles, and riders over 18 years of age are eligible. It is said there are at least one hundred riders of motorcycles in Fort Wayne. About one-third of them are already identified with the new organization.

CITY BREVITIES.

Mrs. James Wells, of Oliver street, who was called to Marion some time ago by the serious illness of her father, has returned home.

The executive committee in charge of the Turnfest, which will be held here in June, will hold an important meeting at Turners' hall at 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

New cases of scarlet fever developed Friday at 1704 South Wayne avenue and 909 Eliza street. A number of cases of mumps have been reported by physicians during the past week.

Attention, Poultrymen!

ARE YOU SELLING your stock and eggs. IF NOT, then better consolidate with me. My new plan of selling fancy poultry, pet stock and eggs should interest every breeder in the county.

WRITE ME TODAY, giving full details as to variety you are breeding, and about how many fowls and eggs you can furnish during the season. Better still, come and see me and get my proposition. Office open evenings.

ENDS WINTER'S TROUBLES.

To many winter is a season of trouble. The frost-bitten toes and fingers, chapped hands and lips, chilblains, cold-sores, red and rough skins, prove this. But such troubles fly before Bucklen's Arnica Salve. A trial convinces. Greatest healer of Burns, Boils, Piles, Cuts, Sores, Bruises, Eczema and Sprains. Only 25c at all druggists.

BRITISH SOVEREIGNS KIND TO THE POOR OF WINDSOR.

CHILDREN WAITING WITH THEIR CANS AND JUGS FOR MILK.

London, Jan. 28.—Stories of the kindness of the king and queen to the poor could be told almost without end. A most interesting and animated sight is to be seen every morning at the church rooms, Windsor, where a group of happy, laughing children assemble to receive their quarts and pints of warm milk, allotted to them by the king. Eighty quarts of milk are sent from the royal dairies every morning to the poor people of the town, and the children troop to the church rooms to receive their allowances. Parents with large families get a quart, and those with smaller families get a pint.

MEXICAN REVOLUTIONISTS READY FOR CRITICAL MOVE.

INSURRECTOS PLANNING AN ATTACK

PASCAUL OROZCO, INSURRECTO CHIEF OF CHIHUAHUA.

El Paso, Texas, Jan. 28.—Whatever lulling thoughts of a collapsed revolution may have entered the minds of the Mexican authorities are likely to be rudely shattered within the next ten days. Weeks of apparent inactivity on the part of the insurgents have been devoted to extensive preparations for the most ambitious efforts and Pascaul Orozco the younger, general in chief of the rebel forces, now has 800 men gathered within seventy miles of Chihuahua and will attack that city with a force of 1,200 men within ten days.

With the young Orozco is Pascual Orozco, the father, second in command, both appointed by Francisco I. Madera and both instructed to move on Chihuahua at once.
